BOMB DEATH CASE RESTS WITH JURY

HOOVER DENIES SENATE SECRET SEA PACT DATA

Papers Are Withheld by Stimson on Orders of President.

SECRETARY WRITES BORAH EXPLANATION

Release of Information Held Incompatible With Public Interest.

SENATOR JOHNSON ASKED MEMORANDA

Secretary's Statement Says Faith Must Be Kept on Confidences.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Secretary Stimson, by direction of President Hoover, has refused to transmit to the Senate foreign relations committee secret diplomatic documents which the committee desired to examine in connection with the London Naval Treaty. Mr. Stimson by letter formally notified Senator Borah, chairman of the committee, of the decision yesterday.

Secretary Stimson went personally to the Capitol to confer with several senators in support of his position in withholding part of the secret correspondence. Part of the data requested by the committee was supplied. But respecting other papers desired Mr. Stimson stated: "I am directed by the President to say that their production would not be, in his opinion, compatible with public interest."

Mr. Borah will call a meeting of the committee next week to consider Mr. Stimson's letter. Meanwhile, the program for dealing with the treaty reverted back to its original status when the Republican leadership decided upon a special session.

Johnson Not Satisfied.

Senator Hiram Johnson, who is leading the fight in opposition to the treaty, does not concede the State Department's right to withhold information from the foreign relations committee. There is no question involved of making the information public, but Mr. Johnson's contention is that the committee has the right to examine confidential documents in order to properly fulfill its duty in advising and consenting to ratification. Senator Johnson said yesterday he was receiving a huge correspondence from all parts of the country respecting the naval treaty, and that the letters opposed ratification by a ratio of 8 to 1.

Secretary Stimson's letter to Senator Borah was as follows:

"Dear Senator Borah:

"I am in receipt of your letter of June 3, requesting on behalf of the committee on foreign relations certain papers relative to the Geneva conference of 1927. I am also in receipt of your favors of June 3 and June 4, transmitting copies of letters of Senator Johnson of the same dates, respectively, in which he makes certain inquiries and also asks for certain confidential telegrams of the department and also for 'all letters, papers, documents, telegrams, dispatches and communications of every sort leading up to or relating to the London conference and London treaty.'

Some Memoranda Sent.

"I am sending you by hand a set of all of the records of the conference for the limitation of naval armament, held at Geneva in 1927 which have been made public. I am also sending you a confidential memorandum which will answer as far as possible the questions contained in Senator Johnson's letter of June 3. Respecting the other papers called for, I am directed by the President to say that their production would not in his opinion be compatible with the public interest.

"These requests call for the production and possible publication of informal and confidential conversations, communications and tentative suggestions of a kind which are common to almost every negotiation and without which such negotiations can not successfully be carried on. If the confidence in which they were made to the American delegation in London is broken, it would materially impair the possibility of future successful negotiations between this Government and other nations. The necessity of preserving such confidences was made clear by President Washington at the very beginning of this Government. In reply to a resolution of the House of Representatives of March 24, 1796, he said:

"'The nature of foreign negotiations requires caution and their suc-

Gentle June Wind Proves Nemesis of Hero After 51 Steady Years.

After he had weathered gales, blizzards, tornadoes and other atmospheric irregularities for 51 years, a gentle June zephyr sent the Statue of Gen. Nathanael Greene in Stanton Park into a nose dive yesterday. Or, perhaps, it was just a plain case of heat prostration.

Six half-inch bolts held the general in place, three being in a front hoof of his prancing steed, while

GOVERNMENT FARM FIRE KILLS 11 HORSES

LOSS FIXED AT $10,000

Eleven horses were burned to death early today when a fire swept through the main stable on the Government Experimental Farms in Arlington County.

The blaze, which could be seen for miles around, attracted hundreds to the scene. Engine Company No. 13, of Washington Fire Department, aided firefighter from seven towns in Arlington County in preventing the flames from spreading to adjoining structures.

James Wick, watchman, sounded the alarm when he discovered the north end of the two-story stable in flames. Employes on the farms attempted to rescue the horses but were prevented by the heat from the furnace-like blaze.

Fire companies from Arlington County, first to arrive, quickly sent a general alarm which brought firemen to the scene from East Arlington, Cherrydale, Jefferson District, Clarendon, Ballston and Halls Hill.

Sparks from the burning building fell for some distance, and it was feared for a time that the dwelling occupied by W. W. Willis, superintendent of the farms, might be set ablaze.

The cause of the fire, which did approximately $10,000 damage, has not been determined.

FILIBUSTER STARTED ON CAPITAL DRY BILL

Tydings Blocks Two Moves to Bring Howell Plan Before Senate.

PRAISES MINT JULEPS

The opening shot of what promises to be a determined filibuster against the Howell bill was fired in the Senate yesterday by Senator Millard D. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland.

The bill, which was drafted by Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), of Nebraska, is designed to give Washington a special enforcement act and make it what President Hoover thinks it ought to be—the model prohibition city of the country.

Senator Howell resorted to two different parliamentary moves in order to get the bill up for consideration, and Senator Tydings blocked both of them.

"I don't consider taking a drink a crime," the young Maryland senator said. "Of course, if a man abuses the practice, that is something else.

Prior to this, Senator Tydings had told the Senate what happened at the Army and Navy football game in Baltimore five years ago. Present at that event, he said, were 80,000 persons, including the President, members of his Cabinet and members of Congress.

After the game, he said, 1,000 empty flasks, or "dead soldiers," were found under the grandstands. How many empty silver flasks and aluminum flasks went away in hip pockets, he said, one could only estimate.

The point was, he said, that if everybody who had taken a drink that day had been arrested, there wouldn't

PAY RAISE BILL FATE DEPENDS ON HOUSE TRIO

LEADER BARES TALK OF BREACH OF FAITH

NEBRASKAN REPORTED GAINING IN STRENGTH

Observers Aver "Big Three" Will Be Executioners if Measure Fails.

The Capper-Zihlman pay-raise bill for local policemen and firemen, a legislative football these last two weeks, was high in the air last night, and there was no telling where it would land.

For a time it looked as if the bill were headed for a Senate and House conference. Majority Leader Tilson, in fact, said it was. But yesterday afternoon it was given a boot in the other direction.

The man who booted it was Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, who, over protests of the 21 members of the House District committee, has had his way on the bill from the very outset.

Seeks Leaders' Support.

Accompanied by Chairman Will Wood, of the powerful appropriations committee, Representative Simmons late yesterday went before Speaker Longworth, Majority Leader Tilson and Chairman Snell, of the rules committee, and appealed for their support in the fight on the bill.

"Mr. Wood and Mr. Simmons told us," Majority Leader Tilson said, "that sponsors of the bill had broken faith with them. When Speaker Longworth allowed the bill to come up and pass the House last Monday, it was with the understanding that the bill was acceptable to its friends and that in that form it would be approved by the Senate and sent to the President.

"Then the Senate disapproved of the amendments proposed by Mr. Simmons, and the bill went to conference. And now, so they told us today, the policemen and firemen, having got what they could from the House, are reaching out and trying to grasp more.

Situation Not Closed.

"When I said that the House would be given a chance to send the bill to conference, I meant it. That appeared to be the situation then. The conference this afternoon has put a

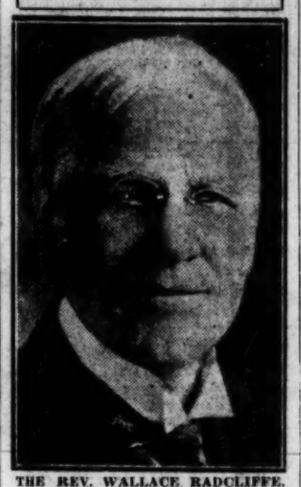
PASTOR DEAD



THE REV. WALLACE RADCLIFFE.

DR. RADCLIFFE DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Was Pastor Emeritus of New York Avenue Church; Family at Bedside.

ACTIVE AS EDUCATOR

The Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, nationally known minister and pastor emeritus of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, died yesterday afternoon at his home after a long illness.

Dr. Radcliffe was moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly in 1898, which placed him as head of the church in this country. Members of his family were at his bedside at the time of his death.

Dr. Radcliffe came to the District in 1895 and was prominent in affairs of the Presbyterian Church, both nationally and locally, for a period of 27 years. He retired in April, 1922, as pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

He was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., August 16, 1842. He studied at Jefferson College, at the United Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Princeton Theological Seminary, Lafayette College Washington and Jefferson University and George Washington University.

One of Dr. Radcliffe's first pastorates was in Reading, Pa. From there he went to the Fort Street Presbyterian Church, Detroit, where he remained until he accepted the call from the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in 1895.

Dr Radcliffe was a member of the Washington Presbytery and of the Cosmos Club. During his long service as a churchman he held many positions, the last of which was that of director of the Princeton Theological Seminary, to which he was elected at the National Assembly of the Presbyterian Church held in St. Paul, Minn., last year.

Dr. Radcliffe was the author of numerous tracts, newspaper and magazine articles on matters pertaining to the church. He lived with his wife at 1675 Thirty-first street northwest.

Dr. Radcliffe became ill several months ago. For six weeks he was

CANNON HOLDS PROCEDURE IN QUIZ UNLAWFUL

ABSENCE OF QUORUM CITED IN STATEMENT

Intended No Discourtesy to Lobby Questioner, He Declares.

Caraway Plans Immediate Return to Confer on Future Action.

(Associated Press.)

Asserting he intended no discourtesy either to the Senate or its lobby committee by walking out of the committee session Thursday morning, Bishop James Cannon, jr., in a statement last night questioned whether he could be adjudged in contempt for his action in view of the absence of a quorum.

Only Senators Walsh (Democrat), Montana, and Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, were present throughout the time the bishop was on the stand. Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, arrived in the committee room a few minutes after Bishop Cannon had left, telling the committeemen they could subpena him if they willed him further.

In the latest statement the Southern Methodist churchman reviewed the circumstances leading up to his appearance before the committee, and the events succeeding his taking the stand, asserting he considered not only unfair, but illegal" the questioning on his political activities which continued after his refusal to testify on them, and after Chairman Walsh had announced that in the absence of a quorum, no ruling could be made and "we will be obliged to discontinue that course of questioning."

Considered Questions Unfair

"This course of the committee I considered to be not only unfair but illegal, and I decided that I would not continue as a voluntary witness until the committee secured a quorum, summoned me as a witness and ruled formally upon my objections to investigating my political activities in the anti-Smith campaign. As I had never been summoned and as a quorum of the committee had not been present at either session, I was honestly of the opinion that I could withdraw upon my own motion. • • •

"If two members of the committee could not pass upon my objections to testify concerning my political activities and could not issue a subpena, I do not see how two members could legally object to my withdrawal and certainly I do not understand how I could be declared by two members of a committee to be in contempt of the Senate by my withdrawal, as I have understood that the Supreme Court has decided that no action of a committee is legal unless a quorum is present. I can but wonder also whether matter inserted in the record over my protest, with only two members of the committee present is legally a part of the record."

BRADY AWAITS ISSUE THROUGH MIDNIGHT VIGIL

ACCUSED MAN CALM ON WITNESS STAND

DEFENSE ATTORNEY HITS STATE'S CLAIM

Prosecutor Ends Plea for Conviction by Calling Leroy "Fiend."

The jury in the case of Leroy Brady, on trial in Rockville for his life in connection with the Seat Pleasant, Md., bombing which killed three persons last New Year's Day, had not returned with a verdict early this morning after receiving the charge at 8:44 o'clock last night. A large crowd packed the courtroom to learn Brady's fate, remaining until 12:30 o'clock when the room was cleared. The judges at that hour retired to a hotel to await the action of the jury.

J. Wilson Ryon, special assistant to State's Attorney J. Frank Parran, of Prince Georges County, closed arguments for the prosecution by branding the defendant "a fiend, guilty of the most ghastly crime in Maryland criminal annals."

Taking the stand in his own defense at the morning session, Leroy calmly answered defense questions designed to show that he had no knowledge of the infernal machine sent to Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady as a Christmas "gift." Gazing steadfastly at his red-haired attractive wife, who has remained by his side throughout the four-day trial, Leroy told of his affection for his sister-in-law, Naomi, and described how he had congratulated his brother, Herman, when the latter told him of his marriage to Naomi. He also said that he had offered to give Herman any money that he might need for setting up his home. Herman was jointly indicted with Leroy, and will be tried for murder in the fall.

Defendant's Mother Testifies.

The State's belated attempt to prove a motive suffered a severe blow when the defendant's mother, Mrs. Ella Brady, testified that she had never opposed Herman's courtship of Naomi. She said that Herman usually had his arm around Naomi when they went driving, and that he had always been attentive to her when he visited her home.

"My son has a locket and picture of Naomi," she said, "which he keeps among his most treasured possessions. The defense rested following the testimony of Leroy and his mother.

Robert Peter, jr., son of one of the three presiding judges, opened arguments for the prosecution. He was followed by Mr. Parran, who reviewed the State's chain of circumstantial evidence, and demanded that Leroy be hanged as "one of the most cold-blooded, dangerous criminals on record."

Crowd Intends to Wait.

Albert Boulc opened for the defense with an attack on "the State's desperate effort to get a victim for a crime so ghastly that neither I nor any other decent attorney would attempt to defend the perpetrator."

He was followed by State Senator

SIMMONS MAY WIN AGAINST HUGE ODDS

STATE WILL VOTE TODAY

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, the little giant, as Senator Heflin and a lot of other people call him, goes before his fellow North Carolinians for a vote of confidence today, and Washington observers who have been to the State say that although all the odds seem to be against him, he may get it.

The offense from which he is seeking exoneration was against something very dear to the North Carolinians, their Democracy, and the general belief is that no one but the senator could possibly get away with it.

The fact that observers who, going into the State, found that Simmons' opponent, Josiah W. Bailey, with nearly all of the State organization, and yet refuse to count Simmons out attests to this man's power over his State.

Regardless of the outcome it is the strongest fight that the senator has been forced to make in his senatorial career of 30 years, with one possible exception.

Coming into power in 1898 on the issue of freeing the State from Populist rule and eliminating the Negro from politics, he has been indisputably in command ever since. He bolted the party in 1928 and the fact that instead of keeping quiet he spoke against Gov. Smith is generally accounted as the reason Mr. Hoover carried the State.

This is the only issue against Mr. Simmons in today's showdown and he faces the electorate with that remarkable machine which he himself built up arrayed almost entirely against him. It was Mr. Simmons, himself, who taught this machine regularity though he did not know, of course, that some day his teachings would return to plague him.

To take the place of this machine he has sought to build up another from the nucleus of his group of devoted personal followers and augmented by numerous candidates throughout the State who could not tie in with the old organization.

Just, however, as it was the silent vote that threw the State into the Republican column in 1928, so will it be the silent vote that will nominate Mr. Simmons today, if he is nominated. In an ordinary primary no candidate would have a chance against the machine in this State. But in Mr. Simmons' favor is the fact that all over the State there has

Business in Washington

By H. H. LEVI,
The Hecht Co.

H. H. LEVI.

King Pharaoh's dream, interpreted by Joseph as the economic law of action and reaction, is still fashionable. Where there are no great mountains, there never are deep depressions or valleys.

Washington, the glorious city of the Nation's Capital, need not be concerned with Pharao's dreams, because in this city there never has been a boom and there never has been any great depression. When business throughout the country as a whole is affected, there always is a possibility that there will be somewhat of a tremor felt in this city, but, as a whole, Washington goes serenely on, neither stooping violently nor springing back suddenly.

Our own business has, to an extent, defied this traditional and normal even-keel business of the city as a whole. Our business is rather substantially ahead this year, just as our growth in the last seven or eight years has been substantially more rapid than the normal rate of growth of the city itself.

Perhaps this may be attributed to the fact that we found our public, that portion of the Washington public that we sensed wanted an establishment of our type, has responded and is responding because of this. Commodity prices are lower; we are buying virtually all our goods for less money, and price lines, therefore, have dropped. Since our volume is increasing it stands to reason that more people are buying more of the things that contribute to their enjoyment of the good things of life. This is the real cycle of prosperity.

Much has been said, too, of the national building program in Washington, and lives there a soul in this city who has not seen what is happening around him—the broadening and paving of our streets and avenues, the enlarging and beautifying of our parks, the erection of magnificent buildings to house national activities? If we could but visualize Washington 25 years hence, discussions of some temporary and slight economic depression in the country, its slight tremor which some people seem to think is being felt here, would be just so much excess vapor.

Forward march, Washington!

Former Senator Gore In Race for Old Seat

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 6 (A. P.).—T. P. Gore, who for fourteen years served Oklahoma in the United States Senate, announced his candidacy tonight for the senatorial nomination on the Democratic ticket.

"My hat's in the ring, my heart's in the race," the blind senatorial veteran declared in his platform, which stresses a demand for less taxes, more trade, no trusts, and asserts his belief that though the saloon "is dead as human slavery," he has a boy and shares "the anxiety which every father and mother must feel over existing conditions and tendencies."

Policeman Expires Of Injuries in Raid

Private Baur Succumbs Three Months After Being Hurt.

Private Fred W. Bauer, of the Metropolitan Police, of 2324 Nicholson street southeast, died yesterday at George Washington Hospital, three months after being injured in a raid.

Private Bauer was one of several policemen who raided a numbers game establishment in the Second Precinct on February 6. In lifting a safe, which was among the fittings of the place, he crushed two vertebrae. He had been in the hospital since then.

Private Bauer was born in Germany in 1890. He joined the police force in 1923. At the Second Precinct he was assigned to the emergency car, a detail which requires a maximum of tact and ability. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emma M. Bauer, and three children. No funeral arrangements have been made.

Private Bauer had been many times commended for his work in tracking criminals. The most recent occasion was on November 16, 1929, when he captured three colored boys. These boys had made a practice of stealing meat from cars in the railroad yards. For this he received a letter of thanks from Swift & Co., and was especially commended by Capt. Ogden T. Davis of the Second Precinct.

Stobbs Will Not Run Again for Congress

Mr. Stobbs is the sponsor of the Stobbs bill, which removes minor offenses from the classification of felonies under the Jones law, and which was passed by the House Tuesday.

PALMISANO AND HILL LOSE IN HOUSE FIGHT

CLAIM FRAUD EVIDENCE

(Associated Press.)

A decision that neither Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat) nor John Philip Hill (Republican) was entitled to the seat in the House from the Third Maryland District was reached yesterday by a House elections committee.

In taking the unusual course of denying the claims of both contestants and thus, in effect, recommending that the seat be declared vacant, the committee came to the conclusion that "Hill was not elected and that Palmisano was not entitled to be seated."

The vote in both cases was 5 to 3.

Representative Perkins (Republican), New Jersey, acting chairman of the committee, gained consent of the House for a week in which to submit the report. Representative Tarver (Democrat), Georgia, will file a dissenting minority report.

"The reason the majority decided that Palmisano was not entitled to the seat," Mr. Perkins said, "was because of the fraudulent voting, registration and the entire disregard of the election laws in counting ballots in Palmisano's home precinct in the Third Ward of Baltimore."

"We decided that Hill was not elected," he continued, "and that Palmisano was not entitled to be seated." Mr. Perkins added that there was "great evidence of fraud in Palmisano's precinct" and that the majority of the committee "does not believe that Hill was elected."

Three Democrats and two Republicans voted against seating Hill, while three Republicans voted to seat him, Mr. Perkins explained.

Five Republicans voted against seating Palmisano and three Democrats voted to seat him, the New Jersey member said.

Indications are that there will be a vigorous contest in the House over the committee's decision. However, if the conclusion is sustained by the House the seat will be declared vacant and a special election will have to be held to fill it.

Wheat to Become Chief Justice Today

Induction Ceremony Will Be Brief in District Supreme Court.

Justice Alfred A. Wheat will take the oath of office as Chief Justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court this morning at 10 o'clock. This will create a vacancy which it is understood will be filled by Jesse H. Adkins, prominent local attorney.

The ceremonies in connection with the installation of the new Chief Justice will be brief, it was said.

Justice Frederick L. Siddons, acting Chief Justice, in all probability will administer the oath.

Justice Wheat succeeds Walter I. McCoy, who resigned as Chief Justice last December 9. Recently Attorney General Mitchell declared that as soon as Justice Wheat took the oath of office as Chief Justice another man would be named to fill the existing vacancy.

J. C. Adkins Nominated For District Bench Post

The nomination of Jesse C. Adkins, prominent local lawyer, to be an associate justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court was sent to the Capitol yesterday by President Hoover.

Later in the day the nomination was referred to the Senate judiciary committee. Now it probably will be referred to a subcommittee. Whether hearings are held on the nomination will depend upon whether any protests are received.

Hoover Proposes Marine Committee

Shipping Board Head Told of Plan to Handle Problems.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday informed Chairman O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, that he proposed to appoint a committee of outstanding men to investigate and consult with the board upon policies.

The board has under consideration bids for disposal of the Black Diamond and Cosmopolitan Lines in the Atlantic and proposals under which it would lend some $60,000,000 of Federal funds to the United States Lines for new ship construction.

The President said he had received many representations dealing with the subject, and since he could not personally pass judgment upon the "highly controversial questions," he would appoint the committee. Its inquiry, he said, would not require more than 60 days.

Seven Captains Are Named For Rank of Rear Admiral

(Associated Press.)

Preparing to fill vacancies in the high naval ranks the Navy Department with the approval of President Hoover yesterday issued a list of those elected for promotion this year. Seven captains were selected to be rear admirals, 14 commanders were chosen for the rank of captain and 23 officers of lower rank were listed for promotion to commander.

The captains chosen for promotion to rear admiral are: Walter Rockwell Gherardi, of the Navy General Board; Arthur St. Clair Smith, chief of staff to the commander-in-chief of the battle fleet, who is from Iowa; Clarence S. Kempiff, the Navy hydrographer, from California; John Halligan, jr., commander of the aircraft squadrons of the battle fleet, from Massachusetts; William T. Tarrant, of the Bureau of Naval Operations, born in Mississippi but appointed from Texas; George Tilford Pettengill, Naval War College, Newport, R. I., from Idaho; Edward B. Fenner, commander of the U. S. S. Mississippi, from New York State.

Among the commanders to become captains was John H. Towers, the organizer of the first transatlantic flight and assistant chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

Immediate inquiry into charges of excessive campaign expenditures in the New Jersey and Oklahoma senatorial primary races was ordered yesterday by the Senate campaign funds committee.

The preliminary investigation was placed in the hands of committee investigators and Chairman Nye said no action would be taken by the committee until their reports have been received. He left the city last night and definite committee action in either State before the end of the month seemed unlikely.

The charges received by the committee were not made public. In New Jersey, Senator Nye said, the complaints did not involve all three Republican senatorial candidates, but he did not specify which ones were accused of "flaunting the $50,000 limitation placed on candidate by New Jersey."

Refuses to Disclose Charges.

Dwight W. Morrow, Joseph Frelinghuysen and Franklin Fort are battling for the Republican senatorial nomination in New Jersey in a race involving the prohibition issue. Mr. Fort is the dry candidate. The primary will be held June 17.

Senator Nye likewise refused to disclose the nature of the charges in the Oklahoma senatorial primary, although he said they involved the candidates in both parties. Senator Pine (Republican) is a candidate for renomination in that State.

"The source of the complaints in Oklahoma," he said, "are not sufficient to warrant repeating."

To Investigate Chicago Fund.

Leaving for his home in North Dakota, Senator Nye said he would stop in Chicago to arrange for hearings there late this month on the Illinois primary held in April.

"If reports are true," he said, "the accounting given to us by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, of her expenditures in the Illinois primary accounted for only a small part of the expenditures in Illinois. Her records show no expenditures in Chicago."

Mrs. McCormick, who defeated Senator Deneen for the Republican senatorial nomination, told the committee she spent $252,000 of her own money. Her record shows that none of this was spent in Cook County in which Chicago is located. Senator Nye intends to determine who financed her campaign in that city.

The committee also is awaiting the report of the county organizations in Pennsylvania.

STATE MAY HINDER STARVATION DEATH

Prosecutor Launches Quiz Into Attempt of Danville Man to End Life.

CONDITION ABOUT SAME

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 6.—In his rude farm shack near Danville, where a self-imposed starvation is slowly crumbling down his rugged constitution, Frank Davis waited in vain for a predicted death tonight as Pittsylvania County authorities made a belated entry into the strange case.

The 58-year-old recluse, who is deliberately committing a slow suicide, was perceptibly weaker tonight and steadfastly refused food as he continued to shift about on his bed, but as the hours he had set as his last rolled by, he breathed normally. Moreover, his physician, Dr. S. E. Hughes, declared that Davis' condition indicated that he may cling to life for "some time yet."

Meanwhile, Commonwealth's Attorney P. J. Hundley veered off the noninterference policy of the authorities in the case by launching an investigation into several phases of the situation. He announced that he would confer immediately regarding the case with Dr. J. S. De Jarnette, superintendent of the Western State Hospital at Staunton, and promptly ordered Sheriff Charles Murphy to visit the starving farmer for a full report. The action came after evidence of strong public opinion and the prevailing belief that some step should be taken to save the man's life.

Davis, however, has given no indication of any change in his prearranged plan to end his life, and has very frankly told visitors that his act concerned only himself and that it was the affair of no other person. He has explained his act by declaring that he was tired of living.

Today marked the twenty-sixth day of his foodless period. He told visitors today that he was in no pain and that he was happily awaiting the end, although he expressed surprise that death did not come during the day as he had expected.

Will Be Examined at Asylum.

Staunton, Va., June 6 (A.P.).—Dr. J. S. De Jarnette, superintendent of the Western State Hospital for the Insane, was expecting Frank W. Davis, Danville food striker, at the institution tomorrow—the day he had set for his premediated death by starvation.

State's Attorney Posey J. Hundley, of Pittsylvania County, today requested the services of State psychiatrists from the hospital, whereupon Dr. De Jarnette suggested that the man be committed for observation.

Danville physicians previously had said that the 60-year-old foothill farmer, who has fasted for 26 days, apparently was sane.

Merchant Is Struck Down.

When Louis A. Herman, 54 years old, of 717 H street northeast, turned to g techange for two colored men who had bought a pair of stockings in his store yesterday, one of them struck him over the head with some blunt instrument, he reported to police. The men fled without getting anything, but Herman was taken to Casualty Hospital and treated for cuts to the face and neck. Not serious, the hospital said.

U. S. ENVOY WARNED OF TARIFF REPRISALS

EDGE PARRIES PLAINTS

Tourcoing, France, June 6 (A.P.).—The threat of tariff reprisals by Europe against the United States was conveyed to Ambassador Walter E. Edge tonight by Jules Joire, president of the Tourcoing Chamber of Commerce. Speaking at a dinner given jointly by the Roubaix and Tourcoing chambers, M. Joire expressed the hope that an understanding between the affected countries would be reached and that "our industrial regions will not have to group all their strength, as they are determined to do, to defend their rights.

"Numerous countries of Europe," he said, "have shown clearly their intention on this point: If the United States closes their markets they will be considered justified in doing likewise."

George Motte, president of the Roubaix chamber, warned Americans regarding a policy of "political economy in which one may see a tendency toward a hegemony, against which you have seen the resistance of those who thought themselves menaced by it." He alluded to the recent demonstration of laceworkers at Calais.

M. Motte likened America to a "young people full of life and fire who, at 20, dash off to conquer the world and find that the realities of life clip some feathers from their dream wings."

The ambassador made little comment on the criticism other than to reply that France also has tariffs, and that "considering the higher costs and wages in the United States it is a question whether you are not giving greater protection than we are. Anyhow, you don't buy our manufactured products, which you would if your duty was not adequate protection."

He remarked humorously he had seen prosperous plants running double time and wondered if the French were not better off than the Americans.

Treasury Offers New Certificates

$400,800,000 Issue Bears an Interest Rate of 2⅞ Per Cent.

(Associated Press.)

The Treasury yesterday offered for subscription about $400,800,000 of Treasury certificates to mature in one year carrying 2⅞ per cent interest. The issue will be dated June 16, 1930.

Easy money rates throughout the country were reflected in the offering, which is the first in a long time to carry less than 3 per cent interest. The amount, which may be more or less than the $400,000,000 announced, is expected to take care of the Treasury's needs until September.

As the fiscal year closes, the Treasury will have $550,000,000 of Treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing on June 16 and about $95,000,000 in interest payments on the public debt payable on the same day.

TARIFF SHOWDOWN LIKELY NEXT FRIDAY

Single Vote Will Be Taken on Both Conference Reports in Senate.

RATE SECTIONS ALTERED

(Associated Press.)

A final showdown on the tariff bill in the Senate is anticipated by leaders of all factions by next Friday at the latest.

Under an agreement proposed yesterday by Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, and consented to unanimously by the Senate, that branch will take a single vote on the two conference reports comprising the Hawley-Smoot measure.

While at least one Republican, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, has not yet made up his mind whether to support the bill, majority chieftains are claiming victory by one or two votes after conceding several doubtful votes to the opposition. Senator Reed said he would not make a decision until he had made a further study of the conference changes. He was abroad attending the naval conference when most of the final revision took place.

Final Action Seen Soon.

Should the measure pass the Senate next Friday, Republican leaders look for final House action the following Monday or Tuesday.

Conferees yesterday corrected all but one of the rate sections against which Democratic points of order were made and sustained Thursday by Vice President Curtis. They deferred until Monday final rewriting of the watch sections to meet opposition challenges.

The most important change agreed to was acceptance of the House rate of 7 cents a pound but not less than 35 per cent ad valorem on cheese and cheese substitutes. The previous conference agreement provided for 8 cents a pound but not less than 40 per cent and was contested on the ground that it went outside the limits of Senate and House duties by eliminating a flat 8-cent rate on cheese made of sheep's milk and feta white cheese, both imported exclusively by foreigners in this country.

Under the new levy all cheese would come in at 7 cents, but not less than 35 per cent, as against an existing duty of 5 cents, but not less than 25 per cent for all but Swiss cheese, which bears a duty of 7½ cents, but not less than 37½ per cent.

Blaine Hits New Rate.

Senator Blaine (Republican Independent), Wisconsin, said the new rate made the bill "more unpopular than ever" from his point of view.

Conferees made further corrections by separating rayon filaments from yarns and providing a minimum duty of 40 cents a pound on the former, if over 30 inches in length, and 45 cents a pound on yarns.

All reference to frozen cherries was eliminated, but the understanding is that these would come in as preserved cherries at a rate of 9½ cents a pound, plus 40 per cent.

Mexican Cattle to Enter.

Another section was revised to permit free entry of horses, mules and cattle from Mexico and Canada for pasturage purposes for a period of eight months. The original conference agreement fixed only a three-month ratio for cattle from Mexico.

Senator Smoot was elated over the quick work of conferees and said the measure would be reported back to the Senate Monday and debate begun Tuesday. He expects the discussion to last about three days.

Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, was working yesterday on a speech on retaliatory measures threatened by foreign countries against the new American tariff.

Fess Replies to Shouse.

Replying to a speech made in Ohio Thursday night by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, said yesterday that in "seeking to minimize the very major part which Senate Democrats have had in writing the pending tariff bill," Mr. Shouse "indicted in no uncertain terms many of the members of his own party in the Senate."

After quoting Mr. Shouse as saying only half a dozen Democrats were "tempted" to vote for the bill and that "these few" votes relieved the Democrats of any complicity in its making, the Ohioan, in a statement issued through the Republican national committee, said the Democratic chairman spoke in "utter disregard of the facts."

He said 20 Democrats voted for higher rayon duties, 11 supported higher protection for wool, cement and lumber, and 10 voted with he Republicans on the increased sugar levy. Now Mr. Shouse was described by Mr. Fess as "this self-nominated candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination."

While lauding the work of the coalition, Mr. Fess said, the Democratic chairman "overlooked the fact that the coalition was functioning 100 per cent when the wool duties were approved and when repeated efforts to lower such duties were defeated."

Tag War Delayed For Conference

Gloth, Returning From Richmond, Asserts Arrests Will Cease.

Efforts to force Washington merchants to purchase Virginia tags for their trucks used to haul produce or other articles to Virginia is being held in abeyance for at least ten days, according to an announcement made by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, who returned last night from Richmond, where he had a conference with Gov. John Garland Pollard and Motor Vehicle Commissioner T. McCall Frazier.

Gloth stated that his visit to Richmond was the result of the wholesale arrests being made by State police who were citing all operators of trucks bearing District of Columbia tags found hauling out of Virginia into the District of Columbia to appear in the Arlington County police court.

Gloth said that no further arrests will be made pending a conference to be held within the next ten days with Gov. Pollard, Motor Vehicle Commissioner Frazier and M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of traffic for the District of Columbia.

CLUBWOMEN FACE DRY REPORT CLASH

PRAISE OF ACT ASSAILED

Denver, Colo., June 6 (A.P.).—Reaffirming the stand of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in favor of prohibition, the preliminary report of the resolutions committee was greeted with prolonged applause when presented at the first business session of the organization's twentieth biennial convention here today.

The prohibition resolution, sponsored by Mrs. J. C. Pearson, of Marshall, Okla., chairman of the American citizenship committee, is to be brought up for action tomorrow.

Sinister Acts Charged.

The resolution recites that "there are sinister influences at work seeking to undermine the efficacy of the eighteenth amendment," and that "individuals and organizations are making strenuous efforts to destroy the faith of the people of the United States in prohibition and to promote the idea that prohibition is contrary to the principles of our Government."

Some opposition among the delegates developed tonight against the prohibition resolution and an amendment is expected to be offered tomorrow by Mrs. R. F. Lindsay, of Mount Pleasant, Tex., president of the Texas federation. Her amendment will move to strike out the word "sinister."

Mrs. Lindsay's amendment will also seek to eliminate the phrase reciting that the federation "reaffirms its convention that prohibition offers the best means for curbing the liquor traffic and its attendant crimes," making the paragraph read "that the General Federation of Women's Clubs, through its delegate body, reaffirms its continued support to the eighteenth amendment and the rigid enforcement thereof."

Other resolutions included one for participation of the federation in the George Washington bicentennial celebration and one favoring ratification of the treaty drawn up at the London naval conference.

The preliminary report of the resolutions committee was made by Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, of Chicago.

Home-Making Gains.

Growth of the movement for scientific home-making, not only in the United States but in many foreign countries was pictured by Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brocton, Mass., first vice president. She told the 5,000 delegates and visitors that the homemaker was "just beginning to realize that she is a part of the life of the community. She is just waiting for us, as I know from my personal contacts with her last year * * *"

Mrs. Frederick G. Smith, of Somerville, Mass., membership chairman, announced that since the last convention two more States have voted universal membership—that is, they have inducted all their women's clubs into the general federation. These two States are Indiana and Louisiana.

Unbidden Attendant Dies in Voodoo Meeting

Manzanallo, Oriente, Cuba, June 6 (A.P.).—In the midst of a voodoo meeting here last night, Pedro Serrano Romero staggered through the cultists as they moaned and beat the air, made his way to the crude altar in their center and dropped dead at the feet of the high priest.

Police said Antonio Jimenez, guard at the door, told them he had stabbed Romero when the latter insisted on entering without giving the password.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY WEIGHT EXPERTS

Burgess to Head Conference Reforms Discussed at Last Session.

TRIP SCALES DISCUSSED

Dr. George K. Burgess, director of the United States Bureau of Standards, was reelected president of the National Conference on Weights and Measures at its closing session at the Bureau of Standards yesterday.

Howard S. Jarrett, commissioner of weights and measures in West Virginia, was elected first vice president, succeeding Francis Meredith, of Boston, and Albert B. Smith, director of the Bureau of Standard Weights and Measures of Pennsylvania, was made second vice president to succeed Mr. Jarrett.

F. S. Holbrook, of the United States Bureau of Standards, was reelected secretary of the conference, and George F. Austin, jr., assistant supervisor of weights and measures for Detroit, Mich., was made treasurer, succeeding his father, who is retiring after 30 years of active work in weights and measures standardization.

Condemn Oil Bottles.

A resolution condemning the long, thin bottles used by some service stations for selling motor oils was adopted, the point being made that such bottles are "conducive to fraud" in that the motorist has no way of knowing how much oil he gets, nor how much sticks to the sides of the bottles.

Suggested by the growing practice of treating coal chemically to prevent dust, another resolution was adopted approving of such practice but only with the provision that the spraying add not more than 30 pounds per ton to the weight of the coal, and that the public be duly advised by billing and advertising that the coal has been sprayed.

Standards for brick ice cream cartons proposed by the ice cream industry were approved by the conference.

Trip Scales Discussed.

J. C. Tinkeyn, deputy State sealer of scales of Ohio, reviving the long-discussed question of trip scales, or those operating with a side beam along which a poise slides to indicate specified weights, recommended that users of such scales be required to place them crosswise on their counters, so that the customer may see that the poise is set properly; in common usage, the scale faces the weigher and away from from the customer, so that the buyer has no way of knowing that the scale really has been set for the correct weight.

Calling attention to the inaccuracy of penny scales, such as are placed in drug stores, or street corners, and other places for the convenience of dieting consumers, Carl E. Dart, president of the Columbia Scale Co., of New York, a leading manufacturer of such devices, urged uniform laws in all States for their regulation and control.

The conference will be held again in Washington in 1931, at an exact date to be decided later.

Names of New Cruisers Made Public by Adams

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Adams said yesterday that four new 10,000 cruisers are to be named the Portland, Astoria, Minneapolis, and New Orleans.

The Portland, named for the Maine city, is under construction at Quincy, Mass.; the Astoria, at the Puget Sound Navy Yard, the Minneapolis, at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, and the New Orleans, at the New York Navy Yard. The fifth cruiser of this year's building program, was named the Indianapolis last December.

HOME BASE CHEERS ZEPPELIN'S RETURN

Friedrichschafen Voices Joy as History-Making Trip of Airship Ends.

RHONE VALLEY AVOIDED

Friedrichshafen, Germany, June 6 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin rested tonight at her home base at the end of a history-making voyage which had carried her to North and South America, over a portion of Africa and twice across the equator in nineteen days.

Dodging terrific electrical storms that threatened her with disaster over southern France, the Graf detoured to Germany, turning aside from her customary course in the Rhone Valley and passing over Soleetre, near the Swiss frontier.

The last two days of the Graf's voyage were made memorable by the most unseasonable weather Spain has witnessed in years and again by just such an atmospheric disturbance as all but wrecked Dr. Hugh Eckener's giant dirigible in 1929, when she was forced to abandon an Atlantic crossing at a point near the suburbs of Valence, and finally landed near Toulon.

A wildly enthusiastic throng greeted the returning voyagers at the end of the dirigible's seventh—transatlantic voyage. The city from end to end was bedecked with flags. As the great craft came in sight of her hangars at a few minutes after 7:22 p. m. (1:22 p. m., Eastern standard time), cannons were fired, sirens shrieked and the bells of all churches pealed.

Police with great difficulty succeeded in holding back the ever increasing crowd from the roped enclosure. It was an equally difficut task to escort to the field Mrs. Eckener and the wives of Capt. Lehmann and Capt. Fleming, who arrived with a director of the Maybach Co.

Soon after being tied to her mast the Graf's commander began to make plans for other activities of the Zeppelin which will keep the dirigible in the air much of the time.

There will be numerous flights over Germany and Switzerand. Dr. Eckener is scheduled to pilot his craft to Berlin on June 21 for the world power conference. Other flights tentatively planned include cruises over the liberated Rhineland, Westphalia, North Germany, the Palatinate, Austria, England, Iceland, North Cape and also Mediterranean and Baltic flights.

The Zeppelin took off from this base Sunday, May 18, left Seville, Spain, on May 20, and arrived at Pernambuco, Brazil, on May 23. It visited Rio de Janeiro and, returning to Pernambuco, departed May 28 for the United States, avoiding a previously scheduled stop at Havana, Cuba, arriving at Lakehurst, N. J., on May 31, and departed two days later for Seville.

Arriving at Seville yesterday the airship remained just 31 minutes, discharging passengers and replenishing her fuel and provisions. The voyage from Seville to Friedrichshafen lasted 24 hours and 47 minutes.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE unfeeling world will never know just what a deep sigh of relief the Democrats felt yesterday when the set-up was arranged by which the entire tariff bill, flexible provision, rates and all, will be voted upon by the Senate at one time. This will insure the passage of the bill.

The Democrats had been deathly afraid that there would be separate votes on the measure, one on the flexible provision and one on the rates. They had been maneuvering for days to keep this from being brought about.

In spite of their vaunted hatred for the flexible provision as written they were afraid that if it were separated from the rest of the bill it would be voted down. And being voted down, Mr. Hoover might, after all, veto the bill.

THIS is all very confusing because the Democrats are professedly against the bill, and the great majority of them really are, but they would not have it fail of passage for anything in the world.

They are different from the Progressives in this respect. The Progressives would like very much to change this flexible provision and bring it within the terms of the provision originally sponsored by the Democratic-Progressive coalition. If they could do this they would not much care what became of the rates. The power of changing them would be in the hands of Congress which, in so far as the Senate is concerned, would be the Democratic-Progressive coalition.

IT IS funny that the Democrats would not look at the matter in the same light. Or perhaps it is not funny, but just politics. It certainly is one of the reasons they are always referred to as destructive, instead of constructive.

Their strategy, carefully and deliberately arrived at, is that the bill must be passed and signed by the President. Then they will have something to go to the country and shout about. The more harm the bill works on the country the better it will be from their viewpoint.

And it is really surprising how difficult they are finding the pursuance of this strategy.

* * * *

PICK up a Senate roll call and study the senators in relation to their likely vote on the final passage of the tariff bill. Follow this up, if you care to, with polls of the senators.

You can not figure the passage of the bill. The very best you can get is a possible tie, but even this looks improbable. This being the case, you would think the administration forces would be decidedly down in the mouth.

The fact that they are not, and the fact that in spite of the apparent shortage of votes for the passage of the bill, that it will pass, means only one thing. It means what everybody about the Capitol knows—that the Democrats will give the Republicans just enough votes to pass the bill.

This is the strategy of the Democrats. A lot of observers say they are right. It would seem, however, that their best strategy would be to kill the bills. The only thing, certainly the main thing the Republicans have ever offered the country is their ability to deliver a tariff bill. If the Democrats were to take this away from them it would seem that they would have to go before the country next time with no tongue at all. In fact, they would be absolutely dumb.

The tariff is their only language. It would take them many years to learn a new tongue.

SENATOR SIMMONS TO LEARN FATE AT PRIMARIES TODAY

been an unusually heavy registration. In some districts it has been even heavier than that of 1928. To some degree this is accounted for by the fact that the Bailey people, in the cities especially, have registered Negroes in large numbers. But the heavy registration is considered far more as favoring Mr. Simmons.

One would not think that without Al Smith present in person and in the flesh this great silent vote could not be wrought up again.

But, although the former New York State Governor has only an interest that one in his position and being human would have in such a race—a feeling of satisfaction if Mr. Simmons should be defeated—the effigy of him has been imported by the Simmons workers.

In so far as the two candidates are concerned they have done little or nothing, at least in the way of making speeches. Mr. Simmons has been on the job here in Washington, occasionally saying something about "Raskobism," and Mr. Bailey, although an orator and campaigner of the old school, has been content to let his workers press the campaign on a strictly anti-Simmons issue.

Campaign Is Intense.

But the campaign has suffered none in intensity as a result of the failure of the candidates to take the stump. It is the 1928 fight over agin, dressed up and brought up to date, but still the "Pope versus the North Carolina Protestants."

It is because this is the issue that one would be foolhardy to predict Mr. Simmons' defeat even with all the old political signs pointing against him. Mr. Bailey is just as dry as Mr. Simmons. Indeed, at one time, he used to be the editor of a prohibition paper.

At one time it was expected that should Mr. Simmons be defeated the Republicans would have a good chance of carrying the State in November. They are having a primary today also with three candidates. It had been figured that Mr. Simmons' followers are the kind who would not stop at any extreme, and in the event of his defeat in the primary would, in large numbers, support the Republican candidate in the fall.

G. O. P. Interest Lost.

However, after the defeat by the Senate of Judge Parker's nomination for the Supreme Court, the Republican primary has largey lost its interest.

Should Mr. Simmons survive this great crisis of his career it will be of considerable comfort to Senator Heflin of Alabama, the next bolter to the face the crucial test. Mr. Heflin has been read out of the party and is running as an independent. For sometime past Mr. Heflin has been trying to link his fortunes with those of the North Carolina senator by referring to him in speeches as the "little giant" and so forth.

It would not follow by a long shot that a Simmons' victory would mean success for Mr. Hefin in November. Mr. Simmons, for one thing, is in the party and Mr. Heflin is out. There is a great difference, too, between the two men. But it would be heartening to Mr. Heflin, a Simmons' victory would, because it would show that the anti-Smith hangover is still strong down his way.

BISHOP EXPLAINS WALKOUT ON LOBBY COMMITTEE INQUIRY

Bishop Cannon concluded his statement with a further reference to the $48,300 spent in the Virginia State anti-Smith campaign, on which he refused to testify, asserting that "a small vindictive group of Virginia politicians, for political reasons for use in future campaigns are determined, if possible, to get the names of the Virginia anti-Smith workers and the amounts paid them for their work in that campaign, which information it is not my purpose to give them."

In opening his statement the bishop recalled how he wrote Chairman Caraway, of the committee, he would be glad to appear if the lobby committee wished any information concerning the board of temperance and social service of his church and how when "the effort was made to investigate my activities as a leader of the anti-Smith Democrats, I filed with the committee a statement questioning the jurisdiction of the committee on that point * * * and Senator Walsh stated that the committee would take my statement under advisement."

Warned on Refusal.

"I supposed that it would be considered by a quorum of the committee and official decision be reached. * * * When the committee met again Wednesday morning, Senator Walsh announced that 'there is not a quorum of the committee present, and it would be impossible for us to make any order in the premises. If you persist in refusing to answer the questions which the committe desires to propound to you along that line, we will be obliged to discontinue that course of inquiry.' Nevertheless, after admitting that a quorum of the committee had not passed upon my objections, Senator Walsh warned me that my refusal might become a 'penal offense.'

"I should probably have insisted then upon the inability of the committee to ask further questions legally without a quorum, but I decided to remain. I was amazed, however, that despite Senator Walsh's distinct statement that it would be necessary 'to discontinue that course of inquiry,' question after question was asked me concerning my personal and political activities in order to get some matters in the record, regardless of the failure of the committee to rule upon my objections and the declaration of Senator Walsh quoted above."

Caraway to Return at Once.

Dexter, Mo., June 6 (A.P.).—Senator T. H. Caraway, of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate lobby committee, plans to return immediately to Washington to confer with committee members regarding the refusal of Bishop James Cannon, jr., to answer questions asked by the members.

"I do not think it was ever the committee's intention to attempt to force Bishop Cannon to discuss his campaign activities against Alfred E. Smith for the Presidency," Senator Caraway said.

"As far as I am concerned I am not interested in calling the bishop for questioning."

Senator Caraway returned to his native county here today to address a Southeast Missouri Democratic rally.

Alberta Rancher Wins In Suit for Earldom

London, June 6 (A.P.).—A London newspaper said tonight that the six months' law inquiry into the title and estates of the Earldom of Egmont has resulted in favor of the former Alberta rancher, Frederick Joseph Trevelyan Perceval.

Evidence from many parts of the world was filed during the long and involved suit. The other claimants to the title were James William Perceval, a baker of North London, and Robert Pownall, an optician of Haydock, Lancashire. Both claimed descent from the second Earl of Egmont. These two claimants, it is said, intend to appeal the decision, which was made by P. W. Chandler, master of the supreme court (chancery division).

Stone Setter Falls to Death.

Atlanta, Ga., June 6 (A.P.).—M. L. Winfrey, 44, a stone setter, fell to his death today from a scaffold on the eleventh floor of a seventeen-story building under construction in the heart of downtown Atlanta. His father and three brothers, likewise employed as stone setters, looked on helplessly as a guard rail, against which he was leaning, gave way and he plunged to the street.

Two Persons Victims Of River Wharf Blaze

Augusta, Ky., June 6 (A.P.).—Two persons burned to death here today in a fire which broke out at a wharf on the Ohio River. The victims were James Wayson, 76, wharf master and his adopted son, Hobart, 14.

The wharf belonged to the Greene Line, which operates between Cincinnati and Huntington, W. Va. Damage was estimated at $8,000. Wayson and his adopted son lived at the wharf. Evidently they were trapped and had no chance to escape.

Four Killed, Three Hurt In Collision of Autos

Duluth, June 6 (A.P.).—Two young men and two women are dead and three others are in a Duluth hospital seriously injured as a result of a head-on collision between an automobile and a street car last night.

Violet Hanson, 20, Duluth, was instantly killed while three other occupants of the car, Fred Hanson, 18, Mrs. Mary Stewney, 29, both of Duluth, and John Hartman, Minneapolis, died today.

PANTAGES SET FREE ON $100,000 BOND

Court, in Fifth Hearing on Rich Showman's Health, Finds Life in Peril.

IN JAIL FOR ASSAULT

Los Angeles, Calif., June 6 (A.P.).—Alexander T. Pantages, multimillionaire theater owner, was released from the county jail late today under $100,000 bond after he had been in custody since October, pending decision on his appeal from a 1 to 50-year penitentiary sentence for criminal assault on Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer.

Pantages won in the State Supreme Court today the fight he had waged since December for release on bond in order that he might obtain expert medical care for a heart ailment, recurrent attacks of which had caused his confinement in the jail hospital for five months.

The court ruled the man's life was endangered by his confinement, after considering evidence presented at three hearings in the superior court at which Pantages failed to win temporary release.

Pantages was dressed in a street suit, prepared to leave the jail hospital when his attorneys reached Sheriff William I. Traeger's office with the necessary documents approved by Superior Judge William Doran and the clerk of the Supreme Court.

In the corridors of the Hall of Justice Pantages was met by his wife, his daughter and one son, Lloyd Pantages. The family departed immediately for the Pantages residence, where the multimillionaire will remain under care of his physicians.

Six months ago he opened his fight for release on bail pending action upon the appeal. Three times the superior court which convicted him denied the claims of his physicians that his life was in danger. The court of appeals, passing upon the decisions of the lower court, likewise refused to release him. In all four cases the courts had supported the contentions of physicians for the State that his life was not endangered and that he was receiving proper treatment.

Then the high court became deadlocked. A justice pro tem broke the tie.

"The overwhelming weight of the evidence," the supreme court rules, "is that the condition of the petitioner is serious and that the surroundings are such that not only his health but his life is in danger."

GEN. GREENE STATUE PLUNGED FROM BASE

three more ere in the rear hoof, one front and one rear hoof being raised aloft in an attitude denoting equine spirit, savoir faire, or something equally nonchalant.

General Takes Dive.

Some time in the past, though, obviously, not very recently, two of the rear bolts snapped off, leaving the horse's hind quarters held in place only by a single half-inch brass rod. Even a bronze horse seems to need more support than that in these torrid days, for yesterday all of the remaining four bolts, front and rear, snapped simultaneously, and the courageous general zoomed so precipitously that he was buried right up to his neck in the dry soil of Stanton Park.

That happened shortly after 3 o'clock, right while the thermometers in the Weather Bureau Laboratory were registering close to the peak temperature for the day. Men from the National Capital Park and Planning Commission were sent to the scene immediately to render such first aid as might be possible and to estimate the damage.

Brow Buried in Soil.

They found the general's noble brow inextricably buried in the soil, and, indeed, his chin and shoulders, but, although they have not yet made their official report, it was apparent that the only actual damage done was to the greensward, and the only monetary loss involved is that of the labor of hoisting the general back up on his perch and replacing the six shattered brass bolts.

On June 24, 1874, Congress appropriated $40,000 for the creation of an equestrian statue in bronze of the famous Revolutionary leader, and Henry K. Brown was commissioned to be the sculptor. A few months later Congress appropriated an additional $10,000 for a granite pedestal.

The statue was completed in 1877 and turned over to the Government in 1879. During that year it was hoisted atop its pedestal in the center of Stanton Park at Fifth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast.

FATE OF PAY BILL DEPENDS ON TRIO

different light on the situation. However, the matter is not closed."

Present at the conference also were Representative Zihlman (Republican), of Maryland, chairman of the House District committee, and Representative McLeod (Republican), of Michigan, ranking member of that committee. They deny that they have broken any pact with Mr. Simmons.

The two men favor a more liberal bill than does Mr. Simmons, but above all, they want some kind of a bill. Mr. Simmons, if he still feels the way he once did, does not think any kind of a pay-raise bill is justified.

Defeat on Floor Seen.

If the controversy is ever taken to the floor of the House, Representative Simmons, it is believed, would be given the beating of his Capitol career.

Anyway that is what the supporters of the bill say. In the last two days, however, Mr. Simmons has been doing considerable missionary work among the members, with the result, it is reported, that a large number have rallied to his support, including Minority Leader Garner.

The only way to prove how the members feel, however, is to give the members a chance to vote. This the leaders thus far have refused to do.

Leaders All-Powerful.

The average person, removed from Capitol Hill, is under the fond illusion that in Congress the majority rule. How much of an illusion this really is may be judged by the present situation.

The question is not whether the House wants a thing; it is whether the leaders want it. And that is the question now.

If the pay-raise bill dies, the leaders will be its executioners.

PRESIDENT REFUSES NAVY TREATY DATA

Senate Denied Access to Secret Communications Regarding London Pact.

BREACH OF FAITH SEEN

cess must often depend on secrecy; and even when brought to a conclusion a full disclosure of all the measures, demands or eventual concessions which may have been proposed or contemplated would be extremely impolitic; for this might have a pernicious influence on future negotiations or produce immediate inconveniences, perhaps danger and mischief, in relation to other powers.'

Cites Committee Appearance.

"Both the Secretary of the Navy and I have been before your committee and have been examined at length. Officers of the Navy have also freely given their views to your committee. Moreover, two members of your committee were members of the American delegation at London and are familiar with every phase of the negotiations from beginning to end and stand ready to make their knowledge available to interested members of your committee.

"The question whether this treaty is or is not in the interest of the United States and should or should not be ratified by the Senate must in the last event be determined from the language of the document itself and not from extraneous matter. There have been no concealed understandings in this matter, nor are there any commitments whatever except as appear in the treaty itself and the interpretive exchange of notes recently suggested by your committee, all of which are now in the hands of the Senate.

"Very respectfully,

"HENRY L. STIMSON."

Statement to Press.

In a statement to the press, Secretary Stimson said in part:

"In the interest of the ratification of the treaty by our Senate, I should be only too glad to have every step in the negotiations known and every confidential paper published, for it would only show that the American delegation served their country with zeal and success and were at the same time fair to their colleagues from other countries and sincerely desirous of promoting an agreement fair to all. But unfortunately a complicated negotiation such as this can not be carried through without many, many private talks and discussions, man to man; many tentative suggestions and proposals.

"Delegates from other countries come and tell you in confidence of their troubles at home and of their differences with other countries and with other delegates; they tell you of what they would do under certain circumstances and would not do under other circumstances, and some of these confidences necessarily get into confidential cables and reports. Now if these reports and cables should become public, or if the members of the American delegation should reveal these confidences on the witness stand who would ever trust an American delegation in another conference?

"This is a consideration which must particularly be kept in mind in disarmament conferences, for as I have said already publicly many times, disarmament is a continuous process involving many steps and many conferences. The London conference is only one such step; many others must follow and it is especially important that the reputation of the American name for integrity and reliability shall be scrupulously preserved."

Suspected Gem Hiding Place Is Found Empty

Chicago, June 6 (A.P.).—Officers today broke into a safe deposit box in search of $250,000 in stolen gems, believed to be part of the loot of a jewel theft ring in New York. They found the box empty.

New York and Chicago police had cooperated in the search for the gems they believed had been hidden by members of the ring, several of whom were arrested last week in New York. Armed with a search warrant, the investigators drilled into the safety box to which Robert C. Nelson, alleged leader of the conspiracy, and his wife were said to have had access.

Chicago Suburb Bank Held Up; $4,000 Taken

Chicago, June 6 (A.P.).—Two robbers, one carrying a shotgun, today robbed the State Bank of Niles, a suburb, and fled with $4,000. The president, the cashier and the village treasurer were compelled to lie on the floor in a vault.

PACT RATIFICATION URGED BY MORROW

Discusses London Treaty in Speech in Interest of Senate Candidacy.

HOOVER GIVEN PRAISE

Paterson, N. J., June 6 (A.P.).—Speaking in the interest of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow at a mass meeting tonight urged ratification of the London Naval treaty. It was the first time he discussed the treaty in his campaign.

"Every one," he said, "was running around in circles telling what the other nations were doing in preparation for war. However, there will be another naval conference in 1935 and I hope Germany will be present as I wish she had been at the London conference."

Ambassador Morrow asserted that by ratification of the treaty this country "will be actually safer than if we go back to the old system of building on suspicion while we ourselves, by unrestricted building, breed suspicion in other people.

Kept to U. S. Policy.

"The American delegation to the London Conference," he said, "kept in mind throughout the whole conference the traditional policy of our Government to avoid involvement in European questions. The American delegation made no committments, expressed or implied, guaranteeing the security of any other nation."

For the second ime in his campaigning, Mr. Morrow, who has been hailed as a potential President of the United States, warmly commended President Hoover.

"President Hoover deserves the greatest credit for his courageous part in bringing about the London conference after the failure that had taken place in our previous efforts," he said. "The invitation to Prime Minister MacDonald to come to this country, and the visit of Mr. MacDonald were the great factors in bringing about the understanding between the two principal naval powers of the world.

Asked to Declare Himself.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 6 (A.P.).—Former Senator Joseph S. Freylinghuysen today called upon Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, whom he opposes for the Republican nomination for United States senator, to declare whether he is a candidate for the Presidency.

"I have received circulars asking me to join the Morrow-for-President Club," Senator Freylinghuysen said in a statement, "and there is evidently a definite organization being created for that purpose. Mr. Morrow was nominated by two prominent citizens for President, former Gov. Edward C. Stokes and Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University.

"It is a laudable ambition to aspire to the Presidency of the United States, but it is somewhat confusing when a candidate for the Presidency still retains the portfolio as Ambassador to Mexico and also is a candidate for United States senator."

Effort to Try Vare Aid Here Renewed

Philadelphia Sheriff, Who Defied Senators, Faces New Court Fight.

Philadelphia, June 6 (A.P.).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today heard argument in the Government's new attempt to bring Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham, of this city, to trial in Washington on charges growing out of his refusal to tell the source of $50,000 which he gave to the W. S. Vare senatorial campaign fund in 1926.

Mr. Cunningham refused to give the information to the Senate campaign investigating committee, of which Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, was chairman. He was indicted in the District of Columbia and ordered taken to Washington by the Federal district court here, but this action was reversed in a 2-to-1 opinion by the Circuit Court of Appeals which has been asked by the Government to review the case again.

Mr. Cunningham is involved in another case in connection with the refusal to answer the questions. The Senate had ordered his arrest for contempt and the United States Supreme Court upheld the action. It was after the Supreme Court decision was given that the Government asked the appellate court to review the case argued today.

REBEL GUNS' ROAR AUDIBLE AT TSINAN

Northerners Cross River Into Shantung; Americans Urged to Depart.

DOUBLE THRUSTS MADE

Shanghai, June 6 (A.P.).—The Nationalist government's armies battled desperately today to hold back the rebel tide rolling from both north and south toward central China.

After fighting for a month to halt the Northern alliance rebels driving through Honan and Shantung provinces toward Nanking, the capital, the government was called upon to meet the menace from the south. Kwangsi Province rebels and bandit hordes, numbering 80,000 from several provinces, advanced today to attack the Nationalists at thier new base south of Yochow, Province of Hunan.

Driven yesterday from Changsha by the rebels, 10,000 Nationalists retreated northward to form defense lines with the large Tungting Lake on their right and the broad Yangtze River to their rear. The Nationalist government, realizing the gravity of this rebel thrust at the tricities, Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, commercial and strategic centers of China, ordered all available troops mustered.

A veil of censorship appeared to han over military operations in Honan Province, where a long series of battles between the Northern rebels and the Nationalists was reported two days ago as going against the government forces. Retreating then before rebel attacks along the Haichow-Tungkwan railway, the Nationalists were reported in a precarious condition on the main battle front of China's civil war.

The Northerners, having crossed to the Yellow River into Shantung Province, approached Tsinan today. The sound of the artillery firing as they fought the Nationalists was plainly heard in Tsinan. The American consul was said to have urged Americans to leave the city.

In Shanghai, Nationalist officials met to strengthen the financial sinews of war. Nearly two weeks ago Finance Minister Soong telegraphed to President Chiang Kai-Shek leading the Nationalist troops in Honan Province, that speedy victory was imperative.

JOHN R. BUCHANAN FIGHTS WIFE'S SUIT

John R. Buchanan, wealthy Washington and Virginia clubman, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to dismiss the suit for separate maintenance filed against him recently by his wife, Ruth Lester Buchanan.

Mrs. Buchanan, in her suit, charged that her husband had ceased to pay her alimony in the sum of $1,000 a month and that he had deserted her last February.

Mr. Buchanan declares that his wife has a vicious temper which she has failed to control. He asserts that on many occasions she has threatened to commit suicide. He also declares that on last February 2, in one of her alleged fits of temper, she tried to kill him by pointing a loaded revolver at him and pulling the trigger. Except for the fact that she knew nothing about loading a pistol and the fact that the hammer of the gun fell against an empty chamber, he would have been injured and perhaps killed, the husband says.

Mr. Buchanan declares that his wife is a very extravagant woman, and claims that while he had paid her $500 a month from last November, she had contracted clothing and jewelry bills amounting to more than $5,000.

Mr. Buchanan objects to his wife's custody of their three children and asserts that he can not visit them because he understands his wife has bought another pistol.

Attorneys Minor, Gatley and Drury appear for Mr. Buchanan. Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert and R. H. Yeatman appear for the wife.

The wife's petition for temporary alimony was scheduled to have been heard yesterday, but Justice Alfred A. Wheat continued it for two more weeks.

$75,000 ARMY FIRE CAUSE OF INQUIRY

ENGINEERS SUFFER LOSS

An Army board of inquiry is seeking the cause of a spectacular fire which early yesterday destroyed a wartime warehouse building at Fort Humphreys and resulted in damage estimated between $75,000 and $100,000.

Col. Edward H. Schulz, commanding officer at the fort, yesterday directed an inventory of valuable engineer's equipment which was lost in the blaze.

Discovery of the fire halted an officers' club dance at the post. Without changing their formal clothes, officers augmented the force of 600 enlisted men who had been called from their quarters by the alarm.

An adjoining ordnance building, in which ammunition was stored, was protected by a wall of water projected by soldier firemen. To prevent spreading of flames Alexandria fire companies were summoned. Ammunition stores were removed from adjacent buildings.

In the midst of the fight two soldiers were overcome by the smoke. Neither was seriously affected.

Soldiers scoured forest areas nearby to search for forest fires which might possibly be caused by burning embers. Capt. J. M. Ward, fire marshal, directed the fire fighters.

Two carloads of engineers' supplies which had been placed in the building before the fire were totally destroyed, as well as the complete equipment of the Thirteenth Battalion of Engineers.

Economic Revolt Sends 29 to Prison

Russian Officials, on Trial, Admit They Spurned Soviet Theory.

Kharkov, U. S. S. R., June 7 (A. P.).—Twenty-nine defendants, nearly all government officials connected with the agricultural department, today were sentenced to from one to ten years imprisonment, on charges of economic counter-revolution. They were charged with favoring the kulaks, rich peasants, directing their influence and authority toward weakening the collective farm movement and imposing taxation burdens on the poor peasants.

The defendants admitted before the supreme court that they had lacked confidence in the Soviet's rural policy of collectivizing poor peasants' farms, believing the kulak farm the only form of agricultural progress.

Declaring that they had become convinced the struggle against the dictatorship of the proletariat was hopeless, the defendants pleaded guilty and asked the courts to give them a new chance.

Dr. Olaya Tells Chicago His Plans

Colombia President-Elect Promises Business Administration.

Chicago, June 6 (A.P.).—Dr. Enrique Olaya Herrerra, president-elect of Colombia, told Chicagoans today as he studied Midwest conditions during a visit to the metropolis of the Mississippi Valley, that business men aided in his election as president of Columbia, and a business administration of a high level would mark his tenure of office.

He was welcomed to the city by a delegation of civic and military leaders and entertained at a luncheon given by the Association of Commerce and officers of the 1933 Century of Progress Exposition.

One of his first acts after arriving was to announce he has arranged for an American financial commission to visit Colombia. The commission will be headed by Prof. E. W. Kemmerer, of Princeton University, and on its report will depend the floating of further loans in Colombia.

WHO'ZAT?

1. He was a Frenchman.
2. During the reign of Louis XIV he was the instructor of several of the king's grandsons.
3. He held high ecclesiastical positions.
4. His disagreements with Bossuet, another famous religious leader, brought him into disfavor with the king.
5. This disfavor was aggravated by the inadvertent publication of a book "Les Aventures de Telemaque," which he had written to amuse one of his pupils and which the king considered a satire on absolutism.

WOMEN TO DEFEND MRS. HAMMERSTEIN

Widow of Noted Impresario Convicted of Morals Charge by Judge.

CRY OF PERJURY HEARD

New York, June 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein, widow of the impresario, a woman presented at four European courts and once a reigning beauty, was found guilty of immoral conduct by Magistrate Smith today in Women's Court and was remanded for sentence Monday.

A tall, buxom woman of 47, dressed in unworldly clothes, she was taken off at once to be fingerprinted and to be examined by health department doctors, after which she was lodged in the women's prison to stay until Monday. She was silent and docile as a matron led her out of the courtroom. Once out, however, she exclaimed, "But I'm not guilty. Why can't I go?"

Women Cry, "Framed."

Immediately sentence was pronounced, the corridors of the Jefferson Market Court Building were filled with an excited buzz as the women who have backed her defense gathered in groups. There were exclamations of "She's an innocent woman" and "She's being framed."

All declared emphatically that the case would be appealed, even though the magistrate were to let Mrs. Hammerstein off with a suspended sentence.

Mrs. Mary Hamilton, former head of policewomen, said tonight that she had asked District Attorney Crain to investigate the testimony of the four policemen who in court told an unvarying tale accusing the stately Mrs. Hammerstein. She said he had replied that such a request should come from the presiding magistrate.

According to Mrs. Hamilton, clubwomen have promised to finance an appeal. The women most interested in Mrs. Hammerstein's defense have already formed a preliminary organization, Mrs. Hamilton said.

A mass meeting to protest against "false arrest and the acceptance of perjured testimony in our courts," and to demand "cleaner courts and a wider judiciary divorced from politics," will be held soon, according to Miss Sara Graham-Mulhall, former deputy State commissioner of narcotics, and Mrs. Catherine Parker Clivette, president of the Greenwich Village Historical Society.

Holds Client Trapped.

Another protest meeting will be held Wednesday night by the Brooklyn Heights Forum, according to Mrs. Marie Lassell, who said she was connected with that organization.

After two defense witnesses had testified today, Henry H. Klein, attorney for Mrs. Hammerstein, told the court his client was the victim of an "entrapment." He asserted that he had confidential information concerning a person who had given false information to the police. The lawyer said he was reluctant to give this information in open court but would do so if necessary. Magistrate Smith, however, declined to hear him at all.

Mrs. Hammerstein may be given a sentence of anything from one day up to an indeterminate period—as much as three years—in the workhouse. Fines are never imposed in prostitution cases.

TYDINGS OPENS FILIBUSTER ON DISTRICT DRY MEASURE

If people of the class who were at that game are going to take a drink, he said, there is no use in trying to stop the people in Washington from taking one.

Senator Howell said that the drinking in Baltimore is due to the fact that there is no enforcement act there. Now had the game taken place in the Maryland counties adjacent to Washington, he said, the fans could have been arrested for both possession of the liquor and for drinking it.

Conceding that Baltimore has no enforcement act, Senator Tydings declared that has the lowest crime record of any city of comparable size in the United States.

"Under this crazy bill," said Senator Tydings, "the possession of a pint of liquor would subject a home in Washington to invasion by armed officers of the law.

"The bill is designed to amend the national prohibition act, but the senator does not do the consistent thing of proposing that it apply to all sections of the country. He limits it to the District, and I say there is no excuse for additional prohibitory laws here."

The debate, while amusing to the galleries, held little interest for the other senators, who spent the time talking to each other or reading.

COURT HOLDS TAXI'S OWNER RESPONSIBLE Charges Against Driver Pair Lacking Proper Cards Are Dismissed.

RULING SEEN AS WEIGHTY

Holding in effect that all taxicabs operating from the streets are common carriers and that owners are responsible rather than men who drive them, Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court yesterday dismissed charges against two men who were charged with operating taxicabs without proper identification cards.

The decision, which was sweeping in character, is said to affect all flat-rate taxicabs now operating in the city.

Judge McMahon's decision was handed down in the cases of J. L. Follin, a driver for the Black & White Cab Co., and Charles E. Watson, a driver for the Diamond Cab Co.

Other Case Held Not Affected.

Attaches of the corporation counsel's office declared that the decision would in no way affect charges against Leon Brill and H. W. Ostrow, presidents of the Bell and City Cab Co.'s, respectively, who are charged with operating vehicles under improper licenses.

Judge McMahon ruled in the case of Watson that "The Diamond Service Co. had one of its taxicabs bearing license tag No. L-986 equipped with a meter standing in a public street on the south side of Massachusetts avenue just west of Dupont circle and was operating said taxicab therefrom, which place was not designated a public hack stand.

In response to a telephone call made to the Diamond Cab Co. by Sergt. Harrington (Sergt. J. D. Harrington, hack inspector) the taxicab operated by Watson was sent from that place on Massachusetts avenue to a Connecticut avenue address, where Harrington was waiting."

Conclusion of Court.

Continuing, the judge said: "Congress intended that owners of all carriages kept for hire other than those kept in a particular garage which was licensed should pay the specified license per carriage. The imposition of that tax is not limited to those carriages kept for hire only at the public stands established by law."

In the other case the judge said: "I can come to no other conclusion than that the taxicab kept for hire at a place on the public highway on Twenty-second street is a passenger vehicle for hire and is taxable as such under the act of July 1, 1902, and is not exempted from the tax, within the proper meaning of the law."

THREE BRITONS HELD BY RAIDERS IN INDIA

WOMAN IN TRIO SEIZED

Bombay, India, June 6 (A.P.).—Unrest of tribesmen on the northwestern frontier continues to focus the anxious attention of the Europeans here, coupled with the news that two British officers and the wife of one of them have been kidnaped by trans-border Achakzai raiders.

The British have used airplanes against the hostile men of the hills, however, and tonight the situation on the frontier appeared to be in hand. A number of Royal Air Force machines and a column of infantry engaged a force of Afridi tribesmen which had penetrated almost to the walls of Peshawar, and something resembling pitched battles were fought although details are lacking. It is understood that the tribesmen suffered heavy casualties and the military forces a few.

The Europeans kidnaped were Maj. E. L. Marley, a sapper stationed at Quetta, and Capt. J. C. Frere, of the Twelfth Secunderabad Infantry Brigade, and his wife.

Kidnaping Occurred Wednesday.

The incident occurred Wednesday afternoon at a point 7 miles from Chaman on the main quetta—Chaman road. The three were traveling in two motorcars driven by Indians and were held up by a barricade of rocks. Scarcely had the machine stopped when the raiders fell upon the occupants and carried them across the frontier.

The first news of the event was received in Chaman from the engineer of a train which passed close to the spot shortly afterward. Seeing the barricade and the two empty cars, he stopped for an investigation and then rushed at full speed to Chaman. Police and troops sped to the spot, but were unable to overtake the raiders before they crossed the border into Afghanistan, 6 miles distant.

It was learned that the kidnaped persons were placed on camels and taken to a nomad village near Kunchai, about 20 miles southwest of Chaman in Afghan territory, where they spent Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Negotiations Prove Futile.

A jirga (tribal gathering) of local chiefs was sent to find the raiders and one of them, Haken Spin Baldak, was requested to handle the negotiations. Yesterday he sent a small group to Kunchai, but when their negotiations were futile, he went in person, accompanied by a body of Afghan troops in six motor trucks. It was believed the release would be effected shortly.

It was reported that the prisoners have been treated considerately. No motive for the kidnaping has yet been established.

Down in the salt-raiding country a lively affray occurred at Dharasana today, where salt raids have become somewhat of a routine affair. One-hundred sixty-seven Nationalist volunteers attempted to seize the government salt pans but were beaten off by a charge of police. Some of them sat stolidly in the road, making no effort to obtain salt and paying no attention to orders to disperse. They were bodily removed.

Four Sentenced to Death.

A report from Sholapur said that four persons were sentenced to death tonight for the murder of policemen during the recent rioting in that city. The judge who heard the cases was an Indian, N. J. Owadia.

A committee of the Indian Merchants Chamber of Bombay announced it would forward to authorities the resignations of Sir Purshotamdas Tkakurdas and Lalji Naranji, the chamber's representatives in the Legislative Assembly and Bombay Council, respectively.

Rockefeller Offers New York Park Site

Tender Made of 60 Acres in Upper Manhattan, Worth $7,000,000.

New York, June 6 (A.P.).—John D. Rockefeller, jr., offered to the City of New York today a 60-acre tract in Washington Heights, northern Manhattan, for a public park, and offered to spend about $5,000,000 to make the tract, valued at $7,000,000, suitable for public purposes.

Mr. Rockefeller tendered the $12,000,000 gift in a letter to Mayor Walker, who characterized it as "a very gracious offer." Action on it was deferred until a meeting of the board of estimates on June 13.

Former Mayor Hylan refused to accept Rockefeller park gifts because of "strings" attached. In connection with today's gift Mr. Rockefeller asked city permission to close parts of two East Side streets adjoining the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Inquiry Begun in Death Of Golf Professional

San Antonio, Tex., June 6 (A.P.).—After a postmortem examination had disclosed a deep wound at the base of the skull, police today began an investigation into the death of Cliff Kuppers, golf professional at the Hillcrest Country Club, who was found dying in his wrecked automobile this morning 8 miles out on the Babcock road.

Police advanced the theory that Kuppers was dealt a blow on the head and then the car was wrecked to cover up the crime.

M'FADDEN ATTACKS YOUNG PLAN LOAN

HITS SECRET DIPLOMACY

New York, June 6 (A.P.).—Representative Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania, tonight issued a statement attacking the announcement of the State Department in Washington that it has no objection to flotation in the United States of part of the first Young plan reparation loan.

"The statement issued today by the Secretary of State and his assistant," he said, "gives the approval of the present administration to J. P. Morgan & Co. for the sale of German and reparation bonds to the extent, possibly of $100,000,000 in the United States.

Sees U. S. Policy Reversed.

"Faithful to the European cause, the State Department in this announcement brings powerful and sorely needed aid to the European governments. By this action of our Government, it fixes a foreign policy for the United States of far-reaching consequences and one which reverses Government policy definitely followed since the war.

"It injects the United States into the midst of the most bitter and permanent intra-European feud that has ever torn that continent. And it does it through a long course of devious and secret diplomacy foreign heretofore to the councils of a republic and abhorrent to the long-tried principle of republicanism."

(Associated Press.)

Without awaiting final adjustment of the task of floating the first Young plan reparation loan of $300,000,000 in nine of the world's financial centers, the State Department announced yesterday it had no objection to the issuance in the United States of a part of the loan.

Still involved in delays by various technicalities confronting the committee charged with evolving the final agreement between the bankers and the German governm nt, the flotation of the loan is not expected for another week.

$84,500,000 Sought Here.

The portion of the loan to be floated in New York by a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. has been estimated at $84,500,000 in word from Paris. One-third of the total issue will be used as a loan to Germany and the remainder will be employed in the commercialization of German reparation bonds.

The issue price is expected to be 91 or 92 but Secretary Stimson and Undersecretary Cotton, who jointly announced the department's decision, said they had no definite information on the details of the loan so far as the New York market was concerned.

The syndicate asked the department whether it would disapprove the issue. The department, ever since it established its foreign loan policy after the Word War, has followed the practice of not indicating its definite approval of an issue but merely indicates whether it has objection to the flotation.

DEPORTATION MADE TONG WAR PENALTY

betrayal of secrets, blackmail, or perhaps a little racketeering, white man style."

The fourth Chinese killing within 48 hours in the metropolitan area tonight intensified police precautions in Chinatown on the even of a tong peace conference called for tomorrow.

Cheong Fook, 40, died on the sidewalk in Forsyth street a few minutes after he had been slashed in the abdomen by a Chinese identified by bystanders as Tei Gat, 32. Eddie Gong, secretary of the Hip Sing Tong, which is at odds with On Leong Tong, denied that either Fook or Gat was a member of the Hip Sings, or, as far as he knew, of any other tong. Gong said he believed the stabbing resulted from a private dispute.

Gat was captured by a crowd and turned over to police.

Today's earlier victim was Lui Sing, a Brooklyn laundryman, shot dead today as he lay in bed. Police learned that last week Lui Sing had been offered an opportunity to contribute $5 a week to some friends who would see that no one bothered him or took his business away. He declined with thanks. The offer was repeated. He again declined. Then he was told he'd better make up his mind to accept or commit himself to the care of his ancestors. He apparently did the latter.

The new gun with which he was killed was left lying by the body, a typical tong gesture.

Everett, Mass., June 6 (A.P.).—Sing Wong, 40, was shot to death tonight in his laundry while at work. Three shots were fired through a partition saparating the front of his shop from the rear, one hitting him in the head.

Police said they believed another Chinese entered Wong's shop and shot him down without warning.

Police Commissioner Eugene Hultman, of Boston, which adjoins Everett, today issued warnings to Chinese leaders that tong warfare must not be allowed to break out. Early yesterday seven shots were fired into the headquarters of the Hip Sing Tong in Boston.

A heavily armed cordon of police kept a constant vigil in Washington's Chinatown last night when word was received that Chinese gunners and hatchetmen had been imported here in the new tong outbreak which has left three deaths in its wake in three cities in the East.

Sergt. Alvin S. Bohrer, with Plainclothesmen A. D. Mansfield and H. G. Wanamaker, of the First Precinct, led the armed battalion of policemen who swarmed over the section in search of suspicious characters. After several hours of vigil a part of the squad was returned to regular duty.

Seventh Day Adventists Back Hoover Dry Plans

San Francisco, Calif., June 6 (A.P.).—A committee of five appointed after an enthusiastic session of the religious liberty department of the quadrennial conference of the Seventh Day Adventists here today was instructed to draft a telegram to President Hoover, supporting him in his prohibition law enforcement program.

Prof. A. W. Spalding, of Washington, D. C., director of the denomination's home commission, declared that "Society will break, the church fail and the Nation lose its power and its prosperity if home influences continue to weaken." He spoke on self-indulgence, impatience, disorder, extravagance, irreverence and frivolity as weaknesses that make the church feeble and the flow of gifts to its promulgation sluggish.

OLD CONFEDERATES RIDE IN BIG REVIEW

FLOATS ADD TO PARADE

Biloxi, Miss., June 6 (A.P.).—The largest crowd in Biloxi's history today watched and cheered themselves hoarse as the old Confederacy was again glorified in the veterans' reunion parade.

The long march of nearly 6 miles in the heat of the day was too strenuous for any of the old soldiers to make afoot. The 3,000 veterans rolling by in hundreds of flag and ribbon draped automobiles, saluted the thousands that lined the parade's course and waved Confederate flags as they gave their "rebel yells," which were answered in kind by the enthusiastic onlookers.

From the prancing horses of Forrest's Cavalry, whose riders led the march with black plumes on their wide-brim hats flying to the breeze, to the trucks filled with old Negro former slaves and Negro servants and bodyguards of dead war heroes, who brought up the rear, there passed into history another campaign successfully brought to conclusion.

Marine Band Plays.

With mounted traffic police clearing the way, Adjt. Gen. Hairston, of the Mississippi National Guard, grand marshal of the parade, rode at the head with his staff, followed by the United States Marine Band.

The first car bore Gen. L. W. Stephens, new commander of the veterans, and Gen. R. A. Sneed, retiring commander in chief. Next came the Hammon, La., American Legion Drum and Fife Corps and the veterans, the first big truck bearing the soldiers of old Company B., of Nashville, Tenn., and behind those rode the State, coast and city officials.

Then came one of the most colorful groups, veterans of Forrest's cavalry. Following were the veterans. Back of them came band after band and with them the Sons of Veterans, Women of the Confederacy, Spanish War Veterans and American Legionnaires.

Automobiles carrying wives, widows, sons and daughters of the old soldiers were augmented by floats and gayly bedecked cabs filled with pretty sponsors from the Southern States, mounted police of the city, fire trucks and ambulances, all passing in review before the stand, saluting there the commanders of the veterans and State, county and city officials with the Governor of Mississippi.

Veterans Cheer and Sing.

The veterans, riding in one of the few remaining processions which they will have as the years quickly bite into their ranks, celebrated what to them is the most glorious event of their reunions. The strain of entertainments and business activities over, they relaxed all except their throats and lifted their shouts above the martial strains of the bands as airplanes circled over the shore escorting the rolling pageant.

The bands were the only marchers of the procession, and they stepped forward gallantly. "Dixie" was heard most often as the march went past the reviewing stand. The veterans were carried on to their encampment on the outskirts of the city, and before sunset many were preparing to entrain for the homeward journey.

THE TREATY PAPERS.

President Hoover decides that it is incompatible with the public interest to transmit to the Senate committee on foreign relations all the correspondence relating to the London naval negotiations. Secretary Stimson conveys this information to Senator Borah and to the press, quoting aptly from similar decisions by President Washington and President Harding. The latter declined to forward papers relating to the four-power treaty negotiated at the Washington conference in 1922.

The basic reason for holding international correspondence of this nature in confidence is that other governments relied upon the inviolability of their tentative proposals, which never would have been made if they were to become public. In the search for agreement it is impossible to make the whole world a conferee. The finished product, and not the process of manufacture, is the thing to be judged. This rule applies to a treaty as much as to the process of erecting a building, and with more force; for a treaty is the work of several nations, all of equal authority. The quarrels and internal outbursts that would ensue if all tentative suggestions were published would not only frustrate treaty making but might overturn governments.

Secretary Stimson could have cited the action of the constitutional convention of 1787, which carefully guarded its deliberations from the public and presented only the completed work. Both Gen. Washington and Benjamin Franklin observed that the Constitution could not have been formulated otherwise than in secret.

The withholding of such papers always elicits the question, "Is there anything in them that can not bear the light? Is there any secret bargain that commits the American people without their knowledge or consent?" Secretary Stimson gives emphatic assurance that no obligation has been contracted that is not in the treaty. This assurance is sufficient for the average citizen, although it may not be accepted by opponents of the treaty.

Included in the membership of the Senate committee on foreign relations are two senators who participated in the London negotiations and signed the treaty. Secretary Stimson suggests that they can furnish to their colleagues any detailed information required.

President Hoover is on solid ground when he refuses to reveal the confidential communications of other governments. In running the gantlet of the Senate the treaty may be roughly treated, and the charge of secret diplomacy may have some effect in the debate, but at least the United States will not be chargeable with violation of confidence and inexcusable indiscretion. Further intercourse with foreign nations would be badly handicapped if the disclosure of papers never meant for the public eye should become a feature of the Senate debate.

The Senate is now asked to consider the treaty as it stands. Take it or leave it. With the sweeping assurance of the negotiators that no understandings have been reached that are not stated in the pact itself, the public will be disposed to base its approval or disapproval of the proposed naval arrangement upon the exact terms of the document.

"TRAFFIC SAFETY WEEK."

Thanks to efforts of members of the police and fire committee of the Chamber of Commerce, the Washington Traffic Bureau has decided to institute, as from October, 1930, an annual "Traffic Safety Week," during which time organized endeavors will be made by the police of Maryland and this city to eliminate faulty brakes and headlights among motorists. There is no reason, however, why the Traffic Bureau should postpone to October the observance of such a week. It certainly is not a new scheme. The announcement that the week would be "instituted" is an admission that the bureau has failed to continue the "Traffic Safety Week" which it and others instituted several years ago.

That there is now urgent need for the observance of such a week four times a month is evident to every pedestrian and motorist. The safety rules are not enforced. At the time the whistle-signal plan was inaugurated it was announced that, immediately upon hearing one whistle, all street cars, automobiles and pedestrians approaching intersections should take note that there would be a change in the direction of traffic. A minimum of fifteen seconds were then to elapse before two whistles should be sounded, chiefly to permit pedestrians safely to reach the curb. This rule is broken habitually by many traffic officers. Consequently pedestrians must literally run for their lives.

In addition to their regular daily efforts to eliminate all glaring headlights, dead lights and tags, faulty brakes, unnecessary speeding, reckless driving, cutting corners, ignoring signals, &c., traffic police should observe all their own signal rules which give notice when traffic is to change direction.

DRYS OPPOSE PURCHASER PENALTY.

Senator Sheppard, outstanding dry, made an eloquent plea before the judiciary committee for his bill to make the purchaser equally guilty with the vendor under the eighteenth amendment. "Ultimately," he said, "the whole structure of liquor lawlessness rests upon the buyer of illicit liquor. Without him, the traffic in illicit liquor could not persist. Unmenaced by the terror of the law, he practically subsidizes moonshiners, rumrunners, high-jackers, bootleggers, corruptionists, gangsters and the whole unsavory crew who are held together by the cohesive power of profit. It is for the buyer that these criminals exist. He supports them."

Senator Sheppard's argument in favor of penalizing the purchaser is impressive. But practical considerations stand in the way of such legislation.

It may be doubted that a law making the purchaser equally guilty with the vendor in liquor transactions could withstand the scrutiny of the Supreme Court. The eighteenth amendment prohibits the "manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors." The national prohibition act which gives effect and force to the eighteenth amendment, must be in complete harmony therewith. Senator Sheppard holds that "the purchaser is as essential to the act of sale as the seller," and that "not only does sale require a buyer as well as a seller, but there can be no doubt that the term traffic includes purchase as well as sale," adding that "the punishment of the purchaser is within the scope of the eighteenth amendment, which specifically and in terms prohibits sale." The courts, however, have held that purchase is not an inherent part of sale. They probably would hold that the mention of "sale" in the eighteenth amendment would not validate an act directed specifically against the purchaser.

The real obstacle that stands in the way of enactment of the Sheppard bill, however, is the opposition on the part of organized drys to measures that would make the prohibition laws still more unpopular. It might be possible to get a bill through Congress making the purchaser equally guilty with the seller if the organized drys would support it. But when the national prohibition bill was under discussion in Congress the drys resisted every effort to include the purchaser in its provisions. The situation that led to the exclusion of the purchaser at that time has not changed. Drys will not risk the breakdown of prohibition through the marshaling of public sentiment against it. It is significant that last winter the national council of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment suggested that the Sheppard bill be abandoned.

PAY OF UNIFORMED SERVICES.

The end of the session approaches and the joint congressional committee, created to consider the pay-scale for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Public Health Service, Coast Guard and Coast and Geodetic Survey, and to draft legislation for its readjustment and modernization, has not even so much as reported. Meanwhile members of the uniformed services remain in the state of "genteel poverty" to which the Government neglectfully consigns them.

The last general revision of the pay-scale for the uniformed services was made by Congress in 1908. Minor adjustment amounting to an increase of about 11 per cent over the 1908 scale was made in 1922. In the last 20 years, however, the cost of living as reflected in Department of Labor indexes has increased about 104 per cent and in the same period the pay of various branches of the Federal service has been increased from 25 to 175 per cent. Considering the slight increase of pay given in 1922, and the reduced purchasing value of the dollar, the personnel of the services is at present receiving little more than half the remuneration it received in 1908, when Congress presumably placed a fair valuation upon its services under the economic standards of that day.

An interdepartmental pay board was created early in 1929 in response to a suggestion advanced by the Secretary of the Navy to study the effect upon the several services of the laws governing pay and allowances and to recommend such modifications as might appear necessary to increase the efficiency of the personnel. In July the board published its report, which seemingly proved the inadequacy and inequality, in comparison with salaries paid in civilian life, of the existing service pay scales. In this report, the joint congressional committee has a framework upon which to mold legislation that will provide for adequate remuneration of the personnel of the uniformed services.

There is no possibility of enacting legislation to this end in the few days remaining before the adjournment. Nor is it likely that Congress would see its way clear to affording partial relief by providing temporary increases pending the general revision. But "genteel poverty" is becoming cruelly burdensome in the services, resulting in decreased efficiency and lowered morale. The joint committee should arrange to conduct its investigation during the recess, so that a program for scientific revision would be ready for action early in the next session.

THE VOLLBEHR COLLECTION.

The House of Representatives early next week will be given an oportunity to vote on the proposal to acquire for the Library of Congress the Vollbehr collection of 3,000 Fifteenth Century books, each of them rare, and many of them never before seen in the finest public or private libraries of this or any country. A perfect copy of the Gutenberg Bible printed on vellum, of which only two less desirable specimens are in existence, is included in the collection.

When the Vollbehr collection was first exhibited at the Eucharistic Congress in Chicago, and subsequently at various cities throughout the country, it excited keen public interest. In response to repeated expressions of hope that it would find lodgment in this country, perhaps at Washington, Dr. Vollbehr proposed to donate one-half the value of the collection if an individual American would contribute the other half, so that the 3,000 tomes could be given to the Library of Congress. Representative Collins, however, was of the opinion that the public should be permitted to participate in the purchase. He secured Dr. Vollbehr's agreement to give half the value of his collection to the United States if during the present session Congress should contribute the other half, amounting to $1,500,000. Hearings on the bill, attended by experts, developed that this, the world's outstanding collection of incunabula in private hands, had a present market value of from $2,500,000 to $5,000,000.

No member of Congress, bearing in mind the shortsightedness of Congress in connection with previous proposals to acquire such rare items as the Jefferson library, George Washington's public and private papers, his private library and the original manuscript of his Farewell Address, the library of George Bancroft, the Hartley papers, &c., should hesitate to take advantage of the opportunity to enrich the Library of Congress with this matchless collection.

Sir Hubert Wilkins leases a submarine from the Government for $1 a year. After all the talk about submarines at London it's a wonder the Government could get even that much rent for one.

PAEAN TO THE SOUTHWEST.

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The census points its prophetic finger to the Southwest.

It tells us that Dallas has a population of 260,000; that Houston alone of the larger cities has more than doubled its 1920 figure of 138,000, and is now the first city of Texas; that Amarillo, in the remote reaches of the Panhandle, has leaped from a huddle of shacks to the assertiveness of reinforced concrete and 43,000. Fort Worth, Galveston and San Antonio, not yet in the returns, will carry on the marching story.

Associated with Texas in that geographical expression, the Southwest, is Oklahoma. Born in 1889, in the thunder of flying heels, its capital, Oklahoma City, which had 91,000 10 years ago, reports 182,000, leaving Tulsa in second place with 140,000 and Ponca City, in many respects the fulfillment of the city planner's dream, a distinguished third.

The history of the Southwest, productively, might be told in three words—cattle, cotton, oil—and the greatest of these is oil. The cowboy on his mustang was succeeded by the planter in his motor car and now the princes of petroleum swing across the spaces in airplanes.

All of these larger cities of the Southwest have their individual characteristics, as Will Irwin has interestingly observed. Dallas, dignified, mature, with the superiority of tradition reveals the conservative Eastern mood. Houston is unmistakably Southern. San Antonio, dining al fresco under tropical skies, has the Spanish carnival spirit, reminding Irwin of the San Francisco that was. Fort Worth booms along with Western swagger, "seasoning its breakfast in oil." El Paso washes its hands in the United States, its feet in Mexico. There is a tint of Indian color in Tulsa, and Oklahoma City, one might say, is a cosmopolitan daughter of the prairies.

Oil has transformed them all. What of that day somewhere on the calendar, when the oil is gone? The Southwest is already laying the foundation of its industrial future. The cities are even now engaged "in the battle of the smokestacks." Their manufacturing tomorrow will presently dawn. The cotton mill is inevitable. Texas, of course, leads the world in cotton, with Oklahoma practically a million-bale State. And, after oil, Oklahoma's coal and the lignite of Texas assure endless fuel which the magic of chemistry will transmute into an inexhaustible source of gasoline. The Rio Grande Valley even now is issuing a citrus challenge to Florida and California. Texas strawberries decorate the Christmas markets of the North, and grapefruit orchards flourish where a little while ago were miles of mesquite. Agriculturally the Southwest has everything. Ships come up to Houston's back yard, which, with Galveston, "sends to sea a greater bulk of freight than even magnificent New York."

Texas, as every one knows, is literally an empire and as such must dictate in a large way not only our industrial history but also our political destiny. Its area of 235,000 square miles is equal to four New Englands. Its partition into five States was recently, and seriously, advocated by Representative Garner, Democratic floor leader in the House. Lone Star sentiment will not now hearken to such heresy; but the political realities, as presented by Garner, must ultimately prevail. Divided into five States, each of an area greater than that of 23 States, including New York, each with a population equivalent to that of Maryland or West Virginia, Texas would have ten senators instead of two, and the voice of senatorial authority would be spoken in the accents of the Southwest. The necessities of local government plus its proportionate and necessary share in the Federal field forecast the carving of Texas.

Well?

THE TERSE AGE.

It happened in Denver, says the Omaha World-Herald. A couple stood in front of a bishop. They joined hands. The bishop said, "Married"—and nothing more. Denver attorneys say the marriage was legal. Possibly, some time, this same couple will stand before a judge seeking separation, and possibly the judge will merely look them over and say, "Divorced." Then may come a time when one or both of the interested parties will die and the officiating personage may merely remark, "Dead," and the earth will begin to fall into their resting place. We are reaching quite a terse age, aren't we?

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

BEFORE HER TONSIL OPERATION.

Entered the doctors with grins on their faces,
There is nothing so gleeful for doctors as cases.

As for me, I can laugh at a feast or a wedding,
But a surgical job is a subject for dreading.

I couldn't discover what they saw to smile at.

I looked at their gowns and I felt my cheeks paling,
But the grins on their faces showed no signs of failing.

"Well, how is the patient?" said they, In a steady
And musical voice mother answered: "I'm ready!"

Still further, I fancy, my nerve to unsettle,
They rattled their instruments round in a kettle.

They said: "We'll be done in ten minutes or less time,
We're using a local, but running express time."

I shrieked as I fled in affright through the doorway:
"I can make fun in my way, but never in your way!"

In a short time they shouted: "There's no use to slay us!
Nell's tonsils are out! You can come back and pay us!"

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise:

I should have said "dearest," for this is going to sound like a mid-Victorian irate father bawling out his erring daughter, and a little more affection at the beginning might soften the blow and make you understand that it isn't as bad as it sounds.

Now that's all cleared up, here are the harsh words straight from the shoulder.

You are treasurer of two organizations—some kid society in your church and some club at your school.

These organizations are hard-up and dead on their feet, apparently, for their combined cash assets never have exceeded five dollars during your term of office.

The money has been parked in your bedroom—was parked there, I mean—month after month, one fund in a jewel box and the other in a drawer of your dresser.

It was small change, convenient and easy to spend.

So you spent it. Occasionally you would need a dime or a quarter when I wasn't within reach, and doubtless you reasoned—quite logically—that one quarter was worth just as much as another and you could get money from me to replace the two funds when they were exhausted.

That is precisely what happened. You spent all the money, and when the two organizations had need of it you came to me for a check.

Well, that's that.

Now another thing.

I'm boss around here, which means that the laws governing you are my laws.

One of these laws, as you knew, prohibits parties on school nights.

Yet you were filled with enthusiasm when some of your crowd began to arrange for a moonlight picnic in Wood's pasture Wednesday night, and joined in their planning—hoping and expecting to spring the little surprise on me at the last moment when I couldn't say "no" for fear of breaking your heart.

It was good strategy if it did fail.

Now consider the two matters.

You spent money entrusted to you by others, and you broke a law—in spirit at least—thinking you could soft-soap the judge and make him think you above the law.

People who break laws get into trouble, even if they are charming, important people the judge hates to punish.

The law must be upheld, no matter who is broken in the process, and you must learn that law deserves respect for its own sake.

Many "nice" people who thought they could break laws with impunity because of their social prominence are now in jail.

And many are in jail because they used money entrusted to them—without thought of stealing, of course, without feeling of guilt, and fully expecting to pay it back.

That is embezzlement—in plain words plain stealing.

Is it right to embezzle five dollars if it is wrong to embezzle five thousand

Take no chances, Honey. Money entrusted to you is sacred, sacred, sacred. It is wrapped in your honor.

Guard it; keep it separate and apart; never for a moment think of it as something you are free to use.

How many essentially decent people would be respected still if they had learned to do that?

That's all. I'm not really scolding—just telling you.

Love, DAD.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

OUR OWN ANNUAL HONORARY DEGREES

Zither, Herman X.—Philosopher, Sunday automobile tourist and citizen extraordinary. Upon you we confer the degree of Doctor of Red Light Philosophy for consistent self-control in heavy traffic, for outstanding patience when facing the red lights and for your notable record for never keeping your finger on the horn in the absurd notion that the noise will in some strange manner efface all other motor vehicles from the highway and widen the street. We know of no other person in the United States who has contributed so much to common sense.

* * * *

Whicketts, Wingate P.—Male tenor, public entertainer and baked apple addict. It gives us pleasure to award you the degree of Doctor of Commendable Obstinacy. Although a singer of much ability, for whom a career as a radio entertainer seemed certain, you steadfastly refused to croon into the microphone in imitation of Rudy Vallee, and thereby brought upon yourself the approbation of the unseen audience and your immediate discharge from the radio authorities. You have been compelled to go back to your old job in the doughnut factory and your future now looms definitely behind you, but you remain one of the great heroes of modern times.

* * * *

Jeloopus, Holloway J.—Business man, mathemetician, lightning calculator and patron of hotel grill rooms. It gives us pleasure to crown you Doctor of Incredible Tendencies. Although a typical business man, in many respects, and despite the fact that you make a habit of taking your noon lunch with fellow Rotarians in hotel grills, you have conspicuously refrained from illustrating business opportunities by pencil calculations on white tablecloths. We understand that you are also worthy of commendation as an executive who does not draw funny faces on your desk blotter when talking with visitors. We know of no man in American life today who has done more to merit recognition and reward. Remember us to the wife and kiddies.

* * * *

Gospeppers, Luther W. — Stamp collector, cross-word puzzle expert and motorcyclist. To you, Luther, we cheerfully award the degree of Doctor of Eminence. As a motorcyclist, anxious to cover as much ground as possible with the maximum discomfort, it is nevertheless true that you always obey the "Go Slow. School Ahead" sign. You have passed examinations showing that you are otherwise normal and we are happy to honor a citizen of such outstanding virtue.

* * * *

Duxberry, Willis G.—Baker, pastry cook and master of the underwater swim. It is a great privilege to bestow upon you one of our largest nondetachable degrees, that of Master of Munificence and Doctor of Extraordinary Benevolence. Boss of one of the country's best known chain lunch rooms, you have made it a hard and fast rule to put the emphasis on the number of berries rather than the thickness of the crust in strawberry shortcake. Furthermore, you have, despite bitter denunciation from fellow craftsmen, chosen ripe berries and had them washed. You have never skimped on the berries in a long and honorable career and we feel that your contribution to the art of strawberry shortcake making entitles you to a notable place in history.

Congress, in passing the Spanish war vets' pension bill over the presidential veto, had as its slogan "Remember the Maintenance!"

That Chinese war could be stopped overnight if the League of Nations would put Christian forks in all Chinese mess kits.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Federalist" Questions Whether Moral and Abstract Sympathies Are a Good Basis for a Republic in Naval Dealings With an Empire.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his recent Cambridge University speech, Ambassador Charles G. Dawes spoke of how through the last 300 years the American people "have preserved the British traditions of free government, of minority and individual rights, of law and order, and of liberty under the law." To this he added:

"It is well for the world that this tie exists, for in the joint hands of these two peoples rests the ark of the covenant of human freedom."

While this idea is not new, it may still be worth repeating. It is one of the first by which I was inspired in my schoolboy days. A thousand sophomores have given it a glowing publicity since our Government was established. In saying which it is not my intention to be invidious, since the truth is that ideas of a quality to become sophomoric are among the best.

But if we may assume that the words of Ambassador Dawes are intended to make favorable sentiment for an Anglo-American three-power treaty, they should have no weight. Because principles which they share in common may have helped in the political enlightenment of the world is not a good reason why England and this country should join hands in world politics.

I still maintain that such a union would in the course of time be disastrous to America. For the reason that we are a republic and Great Britain an empire. In the toils of imperial diplomacy our moral influence would be lost. To which, of course, the ever ready reply will be, "Oh, but the king is only a figurehead and the empire is a benevolent protectorate."

May be so. But I have an idea that at the present time conditions would be less ominous in India if our republic were the protecting power. I feel certain that, if England had been a republic near the end of the nineteenth century, the flourishing Boer republic would not have been destroyed.

It may be true that the British Isles are permeated with the abstract principles of human brotherhood. But the map of the world forbids the supposition that we can with absolute safety indulge in armament chaffering in partnership with the British Empire. FEDERALIST.

Just About the Weather, That's All—But Guess Who Writes It?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of Mark Twain's most exquisite witticisms was that "Everybody talks of the weather and nobody does anything about it." This philosophy has obsessed the minds of the bright young men who write headlines for our daily newspapers, and no members of the staff have succumbed to its seductions more than our efficient city editors.

These latter gentry send their reporters to read the thermometer in the kiosk, where all the heat that beats down on the asphalt paving and the cement sidewalks is concentrated under a roof that is never insulated. They find that it is, say five or seven degrees hotter than the hinges of the bad world, and then begin to look for suicides, heat strokes and ice cream sodies.

That is old Form 165, to be sure, and is certainly the most interesting part of the newspaper, for it is the one sure-fire conversation topic at dinner or at breakfast, when the conversation has run down and is often so hard to start again. It is a wise editor who puts the weather on the front page. The late Col. C. P. J. Mooney always printed a whole column of it on page 1, column 2, of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, and as the weather was so was his paper's circulation.

We forget, those of us who live in the city, that but for this weather we complain so much of we would starve to death. To us it simply means discomfort, perspiration and suspiration. But that heat and the sunshine that goes with it means strawberries in May, peaches in June, watermelons in July, corn on the cob, red ripe tomatoes, butterbeans, greens and every delicious thing that grows in the garden.

It means green grass on the lawn for us to water in the evening and mow in the morning, to keep our waistlines down, and it means umbrageous covering for man and beast when Apollo rides highest at noon, and a nice lovely courting place at night when you swing in the grape vine and hold hands. Who ever did his courting in a grape vine in December?

Don't cuss the weather, brother. If you must talk about it, ask some one where are the watering troughs of yester-year that stood at every corner on Pennsylvania avenue. Where are the queer straw bonnets that old women and mules wore in the good old summer time to fend off the rays of the ardent sun? PRESS GAL.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Capital Folk Mentioned in London News

Names Prominent Here Appear in Activities Overseas.

By JEAN ELIOT.

LETTERS from London dealing with the activities of the season read very much as if they had been written in Washington a season or two ago. Not only do the names of Mrs. Guy D. Goff, Mrs. William Mason Wright and her daughter, Mrs. David McK. Key; Miss Vera Bloom and Mrs. George Murray, all well known in Washington, figure in the accounts of the four courts held at Buckingham Palace in May. But Washingtonians are being entertained from time to time by the United States Ambassador and Mrs. Dawes, the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Matsudaira and the Chinese Minister and Mme. Sze, all of whom had a prominent part in social activities in "our village Capital" in the recent past.

At a luncheon given recently by the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Matsudaira in honor of the French Ambassador and Mme. Fleurian and the Duchess of Somerset, Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom, wife and daughter of Representative Bloom, were guests. They attended also a dinner given by the Chinese Minister and Mme. Sze, at which Baron de Cartier de Marchienne, Belgian Ambassador to the Court of St. James, was the honor guest. Baron de Cartier, too, was long his country's envoy in Washington and was dean of the diplomatic corps at the time of his transfer to the London post.

Moreover, Dr. Timothy Smiddy, who was the first Minister of the Irish Free State to the United States, is now Irish high commissioner in London. Mrs. Bloom and Miss Bloom, who are at Claridge's for several weeks, spent a happy Sunday with Dr. Smiddy and his daughter, Pearl, a great favorite here while her father was on duty in this country. Mrs. Smiddy was then visiting another daughter, Cecil, who is now married and living in Ireland.

Count and Countess de Rogeri, who were with the Italian Embassy group in Washington for several years, have also been in London attached to the embassy. But they have recently returned to Italy for a holiday. Count Rogeri has been transferred to Ottawa and he and Countess Rogeri expect to revisit London briefly before starting for Canada.

Belgian Ambassador Returns to America.

The Belgian Ambassador and Princess de Ligne, with their family, will arrive in New York tomorrow afternoon and will come to Washington the first of the week.

Frau von Prittwitz und Gaffron, wife of the Ambassador to Germany, will leave for Gibson Island Tuesday or Wednesday to occupy the cottage taken by the ambassador for the month of June and a part of July. The Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz will sail for Germany about the middle of July.

Mme. Varela, wife of the Minister of Uruguay, who is passing some time at her home in Montevideo, recently entertained there at a reception in honor of the new United States Minister to Uruguay and Mrs. Leland Harrison.

Nicaraguan Minister Is Host at Dinner.

The Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de Sacasa entertained at dinner last evening in honor of the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Francis White. Other guests were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Herbert Owen Williams, Capt. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. William Schubart, of New York; Dr. Carlos Salazar, of Guatemala and his son, Senor Carlos Salazar, jr.; Dr. Mariano Vasquez, of Honduras; Mrs. M. de Clare Berry, Senora de Gasteazoro, wife of the Minister of Nicaragua to Panama, and Senorita Gasteazoro; Senor Silvo Pena, of Guatemala; Dr. and Mrs. Dana Munro, of the State Department; Mrs. Sabina McDougal, Mr. Hans Sitariz, of Nicaragua; Miss Marjorie Talman, Senor and Senora de Canales, of Honduras; Senorita Maria Sacasa, and the Counselor of the Legation, Senor Dr. Don Evaristo Carazo.

Mrs. Sara Lee Phillips will arrive in New York tomorrow from Tennessee and will be at the Plaza until Thursday, when she will sail on the Paris for Europe, accompanied by her grandson, Walter Evans Edge, jr., and Miss Rosa Lee. They go to Paris, where they visit Mrs. Phillips' son-in-law, the United States Ambassador to France, Mr. Walter Evans Edge, and Mrs. Edge.

Senator Walter F. George is at the Carlton, where he will remain during the present session of Congress.

The Hon. Mr. and Mrs. John F. A. Cecil will sail today on the Fort St. George for Bermuda for a holiday visit. On their return they will go to Biltmore House, their estate at Asheville, N. C., where their two small sons, now at the seaside, will join them.

Miss Macatee Is Wed To Mr. T. S. Repplier.

Miss Martha Charlotte Macatee, daughter of Mrs. Martha C. Macatee, was married yesterday to Mr. Theodore Silkman Repplier, of New York, the ceremony taking place in All Saints' Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Henry Teller Cocke officiating.

The bride had her sisters, Miss Lina Macatee and Miss Mary Cook Macatee, as her only attendants, and she was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Charles A. Macatee. The best man was Mr. Ewing Repplier, of Boston, brother of the bridegroom, and in the group of ushers were Mr. Samuel Syme, Mr. James Francis Greene, Mr. Heats Goldsboro and Mr. Judson Bowles.

Miss Macatee had chosen a bridal gown of ivory satin, made in the empire style and trimmed in rare lace. A tulle veil fell from a cap of matching lace and she carried a white prayerbook from which fell a shower of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids wore gowns of pink organdy with hats of pink milan and slippers to match their costumes. They carried old-fashioned bouquets of pink carnations and blue delphinium.

After the ceremony there was a reception for the immediate families, held at the home of Mrs. Macatee, 3825 Legation street. Among the out-of-town guests present were Mrs. Henry R. Gross, of Chicago; Mrs. Theodore Gilman, New York; Mr. C. A. Macatee, of Ashland, Ky.; Mrs. Samuel Orr and her daughter, Miss Ruth Orr, of Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Francis Arthur Repplier, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Olmstead, of Front Royal, Va., and Mrs. Edgar Pulton, of Front Royal, Va.

EDUCATIONAL POLICY FOR NEGRO OUTLINED

326 RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Dr. William E. Burghardt DuBois, editor of the Crisis, official organ of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, in an address to graduates at the sixty-first annual commencement exercises at Howard University, held yesterday in the amphitheater on the campus, outlined an educational policy for the Negro in America, North and South, which was received by an audience of 5,000 with prolonged applause.

Robert Russa Moton, president of Tuskegee Institute, and Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, who will sail for Haiti next Tuesday to carry out the educational work of the President's Commission to that republic, were on the platform. Dr. Moton to receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws along with Dr. DuBois, and Dr. Johnson to confer the degrees upon them.

"Education and Work" was the theme of the commencement address, the Booker T. Washington philosophy which developed industrial education being cited as the first step in economic development of the Negro, but one which had not settled the Negro's problems.

Problems of Negroes.

"This philosophy," the speaker said, "trained the Negro industrially, and bridged the transition period between slavery and freedom, but it taught the Negro trades the technique of which is now revolutionized by machinery, and agriculture, in which occupation the individual farmer is now driven to the wall.

"Tuskegee, Hampton and Howard are unable to teach modern technique. The industrial schools have been transposed into colleges, and the colleges have developed a white collar proletariat depending for their support on an economic foundation that does not exist. They have produced vulgar exhibitions of literary extravagance, stupidity and indifference, giving us more than our share of plain fools, handing out knowledge—but what knowledge?

"Higher training and vocational guidance must develop a composite leadership of men and women able at one and the same time to do the work independent of other racial organizations and cultured enough to plan for future growth and development in American civilization regardless of what course white America may take.

"The Negro has the opportunity today to build an industrial organization based on logic and ethics not comparable elsewhere in the world. There must be social statesmen in charge, rather than dilletantes and technicians, who will not consider educational or economic problems of the Negro near solution until he has constructed Zeppelins and through the air established contacts with progressive development throughout the world."

Diplomas were awarded by Dr. Johnson to 326 graduates, 192 collegiate, 117 professional, 12 graduate and 5 honorary. There were 25 awarded commissions as second lieutenants of infantry and 24 awarded internships in Freedmen's Hospital.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

ALTHOUGH the conference dates are a full three months away, rumblings of the impending negotiations between the professional musicians and the motion picture theater owners already are beginning to be heard. There is, as yet, of course no indication of what either side will demand, or be willing to accept. But there are indications that the conclaves will be unlike any ever heretofore held between the association of Washington theater managers and the local union of the American Federation of Musicians.

Heretofore, these get-together meetings have been purely home-town affairs participated in by representatives of both sides who have known each other as friends for years. I doubt if there is a theater manager in the Capital that A. C. Hayden, president of Local 161, can not slap on the back and call by his first name. But the theaters themselves are no longer local institutions and the individual manager finds himself in the unaccustomed position of having to seek beyond the borders of his own community for his lead in conducting such negotiations as must be put under way and culminated in one fashion or another next August.

There is not now a single downtown, first-run picture house—or an important neighborhood theater either, for that matter—that is not a part of a national circuit controlled by powers with headquarters outside the National Capital. The time has come when an adjustment between musicians and theater managers—and it is true also of stage hands, electricians and operators—to meet only the exigency of the local situation no longer will suffice. The final decision must be rendered with regard to its relation to the broader problem of the circuits' positions as they pertain to the entire country.

This—and both sides admit it—seriously complicates things for the local boys, who, while they have had their differences, never have found it impossible to compose them satisfactorily to all concerned. Alien viewpoints and influences are to be injected into the conferences for the first time this year, with the Warners, Loew, Fox, Universal and Radio the interests involved.

To a layman merely looking on from the sidelines, it appears very much as if this might be the end of the local Theater Managers Association so far as any real executive authority is concerned. The final decisions will be made by the big shots in New York and the home town fellers will have to content themselves with loud lamentations at the passing from the scene of the Tom Moores and the Harry Crandalls.

Despite the fact that Leon Brusiloff, conductor of the symphony orchestra at the Fox, has done a noble job of pinch hitting as master of ceremonies since the departure of Alexander Callam, the forecast exclusively made in this column many weeks ago is about to come true. Beginning a week from yesterday, Friday the 13th—and what a lucky day that is, heaven help us!—Sam Jack Kaufman will take up the post that has from time to time been occupied by Benny Davis, Lawrence Downey, Freddie Berens, Bert Frohman, John Irving Fisher, Mr. Callam and numerous others since the m. c. vogue fastened itself upon the industry.

Mr. Kaufman is a tall, personable chap who should make a quick and favorable impression, judging from the handsome photograph of him and his wavy blond hair that has come to my desk. He is a pianist of ability and is said to have a way with him in the introduction of his fellow artists. He comes to Washington from the Fox Theater in Portland, Oreg., although he has played numerous successful engagements in houses of the first rank much nearer by, including the Stanley in Baltimore, the Stanley in Philadelphia and the Mosque in Richmond.

It may be remembered that I suggested that the initials of the new incumbent would be S. J., unless some one was playfully reversing Jack Stebbins' on me, but that was only because the meager—but authentic—tip I had at that time designated this gentleman as Sam Jack, omitting nothing but his real name!

Although I have no intention of making this an "I told you so" column, the temptation is strong to note that Johnny Payette, general manager of the Warner Bros. local enterprises, is pursuing precisely the genealogical course that we recommended on Thursday. During this "family month," June 9 to 13, inclusive, will be dedicated to mother. During this period any mother who admits that she is 50 years old or more will be admitted free to any performance in any Warner theater.

From June 16 to 20, inclusive, dear old dad will come in for a bit of belated attention and a trifle the best of it. During this interval any father who presents himself at any Warner theater between the hours of 6 and 7:30 p. m. with two youngsters will be admitted free gratis for nothing without digging into the jeans for even so much as a lone copper.

They'll get around to Uncle Charlie, Aunt Jerusha and Cousin Hezekiah yet, but I doubt if the month will hold out long enough to get around to us bachelors. But after all, it is a "family month."

Along with the Friday openings at the Fox they have decided to feature Morton Floodas in a series of special organlogues. For his first, this week, he is playing an old favorite, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," spot lighted and using everything there is on the triple-manual Wurlitzer, and it is going over like a house afire.

And that Friday opening, by the way, showed an increase of several hundred dollars on the matinee alone, with capacity at night. Why it should is a pretty puzzle for you to figure out some rainy evening. But it did.

Next Friday night, if you are a sundodger, will mark the discontinuance of the popular Friday midnight performances at the Earle. They will be dropped for the summer, but probably resumed in the fall.

Don't forget, the reviews of the new bills will be in Sabbath's issue of The Post, not Monday's.

CAPITAL TO BE HOST TO BIBLE STUDENTS

25,000 to Arrive in City Today for Two-Day Annual Meeting.

PARADE BEING PLANNED

In most of the Protestant churches one of the most significant developments of modern times is the institution of the adult Bible class, which, in many cities is the real heart and life of the Sunday School. Until one probes into this matter he has no idea of the importance of these classes for men and women.

All over this broad land are these classes which have a membership that is larger than that of the juvenile groups, and even larger than the actual church membership. In Shreveport, La., for instance, there is a men's class of more than 2,000 members, which meets every Sunday morning in a theater. In Memphis in one suburban church a brother and sister teach two classes which are so large that they jointly had to erect a building that will house 3,000 or more people. In numerous other cities, North and South, these classes can be matched and even outnumbered. In a number of them there are federations of Bible classes which embrace all Protestant denominations and once a month have a big feed and much splendid discussion.

This movement naturally had to head up in a National Federation of Bible Classes, of which Joseph H. Montgomery, of Philadelphia, is now president. It holds its annual meeting in Washington today and Sunday, and 25,000 delegates are expected to attend, most of whom will come from the District, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania and this seaboard section.

Mass Meeting This Evening.

A parade this afternoon from the Capitol to the White House will open the convention, to be followed by a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel at 6:30 p. m., and a mass meeting at the Auditorium at 7:30 o'clock.

At sunrise Sunday morning there will be a prayer meeting at Temple Heights, Connecticut and Florida avenues, at which communion will be celebrated and served to those of all Christian creeds.

Among those who have a prominent place on the program are Dr. Otho F. Bartholow, the pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who was the organizer and first president of the National Federation of Men's Bible Classes.

Several eminent ministers from other cities are in Washington attending the federation and will be guest preachers at churches here Sunday morning.

Dr. Lester H. Clee, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Newark, N. J., will preach for Dr. Jason Noble Pierce. In his own church he teaches a Bible class having over 200 members, said to be one of the largest in the world. This class is now erecting its own building.

Dr. Bartholow to Preach.

Dr. Bartholow will preach at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church South in the morning.

Dr. Everett Smith, pastor of the First Christian Church of Miami, Fla., who also teaches the great outdoor Bible class of 3,000 members taught by the late William J. Bryan, will preach at the Ninth Street Christian Church.

Maryland will have a large contingent in the parade and will be represented in the various services. Allen R. Hartman, of Baltimore, will lead the delegation, and it will be accompanied by the band of the Emanuel Bible Class of Baltimore.

The parade will start at 2:15 o'clock and will march from Peace Monument to the Ellipse, passing in review at Pennsylvania avenue and Fifteenth street. It will disband on Seventeenth street.

Maj. Gen. William J. Everson will be in charge, with Maj. Frank A. Frost, Lieut. Col. Charles R. Stark, jr., and Lieut. Forest F. Bartle as aids.

The first division will be composed of visiting Bible classes, with the Harrison Bible Class of Congress Street Methodist Protestant Church as escort of honor. William H. Harrison will be in command.

Capital in Second Division.

The second division will be composed of Bible classes of the District of Columbia, with Lieut. Col. Stark commanding.

The third division will be composed of floats and automobiles, with Capt. William E. Barkman commanding.

Special police arrangements were made public yesterday by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, for the parade.

No parking will be permitted after 12 o'clock noon on Maryland avenue between First and Third streets southwest; on First street from Maryland avenue southwest to Indiana avenue northwest; B streets northwest from Third street to New Jersey avenue; Arthur place northwest; south side of Indiana avenue between First and Third streets; north side of Pennsylvania avenue between Peace Monument and Fifteenth street; Treasury place from Fifteenth street to East Executive avenue; west side of Fifteenth street from Pennsylvania avenue to F street.

Vehicular traffic will be cleared from the Avenue at 2 o'clock and bus traffic will be rerouted from the Avenue during the passing of the parade. The street cars, however, will run. Special details of police have been assigned to guard the parade route.

Pentecost

By The Rev. HARVEY BAKER SMITH, Pastor of Columbia Heights Christian Church.

The 1900th anniversary of the birthday of the Church is observed June 8, Pentecost Sunday.

A world in slavery then; a free world now.

Women regarded as property then; her companionship on equal terms now.

The sick despised, and often killed, then; now hospitals and every scientific care.

War the only arbitrament of differences then; now, the council table, peace treaty, the friendly approach.

Pentecost and the coming of the Spirit of God into the Church is the explanation.

Something happened at that Pentecost in Acts, second chapter.

Jesus said, "Ye shall have power when the Holy Spirit comes, and ye shall be my witnesses unto the uttermost."

The Spirit came, the power was given, the Church advances.

How the Christian Church Was Born

The story of Pentecost by Doctor Luke, a contemporary document of great beauty and vivid quality. Oldest copy in the Vatican Library.

Tomorrow is one of the greatest days in the Christian calendar. It is the nineteen hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Christian Church, known as Pentecost. The day itself was forecast in Old Testament prophecy by Moses in the Book of Leviticus.

Every Christian Church throughout the world will observe the day, and many, many sermons will be preached on Pentecost and what it means. None of them, perhaps, so short, compact, spirited and full of the Holy Ghost as was St. Peter's, but all around the world the miracle of that day will be told, just as it was foretold of old in prophecy.

A celebrated Oriental physician named Doctor Luke was precent at Pentecost. He was a noted Jew, and of him no less a man than H. G. Wells, the English historian and novelist, himself a rationalist and materialist, said that he had written the only perfect biography in existence. This, of course, is his well known Life of Jesus.

This Doctor Luke wrote the historical narrative of Pentecost, the only contemporary account we have. The oldest copy of his story is in the Vatican library at Rome, but there are some others in other great libraries.

As many readers of a secular newspaper might not see Doctor Luke's vivid story of Pentecost, it is being reproduced here for their reading.

By DOCTOR LUKE.

And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.

And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting.

And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them:

And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

And there were dwelling at Jerusalem, Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven.

Now when this was noised abroad, the multitude came together, because that every man heard them speak in his own language.

And they were all amazed, and marveled, saying one to another, "Behold, are not all these which speak Galileans?

"And how hear we every man in his own tongue, wherein we were born?"

"Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judaea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus and Asia, Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, Jews and proselytes, Cretes and Arabians, we do hear them speak in our tongues the wonderful works of God."

And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, saying one to another, "What meaneth this?"

(Then Peter rose up and preached to them a model sermon.)

Now, when they heard this (sermon), they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the Apostles, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?"

Then Peter said unto them, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and yet shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

"For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call."

And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, "Save yourselves from this untoward generation."

Then they that gladly received His word were baptized, and the same day there were added unto them about 3,000 souls.

And they continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in the breaking of bread, and in prayers.

And fear came upon every soul, and many wonders and signs were done by the Apostles.

And all that believed were together, and had all things common.

And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need.

And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart;

Praising God, and having favor with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved.

Two Capital Congregations Will Form National Church

District Presbyterians' Plans Indorsed by Assembly.

A very lively interest has been taken in the prospect of the Presbyterians having another national church in Washington, an account of which was published in The Post on Thursday.

This matter has been before the church for several years, and now that the general assembly has indorsed it and has agreed to raise some half a million dollars to go into the enterprise, it seems to be an assured program.

The matter is being handled by two organizations, one the National Capitol Presbyterian Commission, representing the general assembly. This board is headed by Dr. George B. Stewart, of Auburn, N. Y. The other board is a chartered institution and is known as the Board of Trustees of the National Presbyterian Church, of which Dr. John C. Palmer, minister of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, is chairman. This board operates under a charter granted by the State of Maryland and officially secured by the general assembly.

It was stated in the report that Dr. Stewart made to the general assembly, and which was enthusiastically received by that body, that the creation of a congregation as a foundation for the national church was a primary duty, and this had been done by combining tentatively three congregations—the Church of the Covenant, the First Church and Washington Heights, but the inclusion of the last named "is in abeyance until the selection of a site for the national church has been determined."

This choice, it is now understood, rests with the Church of the Covenant, which is putting in all over a million dollars into the enterprise; and it is further understood that its choice of a site will not meet the requirements of Washington Heights Church, so that the National Church will be formed from a merger of the Church of the Covenant and the First Church alone.

Already the Church of the Covenant has made a contract with the First Church for merging with that institution, and Dr. Patterson, minister of the First Church, wired Dr. Stewart at the general assembly that his church boards had unanimously voted to go into a conference with the Church of the Covenant looking to a merger with the First Church. Of course the congregation of both churches will have to ratify the action of their boards before the contract is legal.

The First Church has a large lot on Massachusetts avenue which is being considered for the National Church, but the selection of a site is a matter that will be determined by the National Church itself, in accord, of course, with the wishes of the contracting parties.

Children's Programs Slated.

Children's day will be observed in many of the churches tomorrow with the young people holding the floor and giving the program.

Mr. Niles is a returned missionary, and before coming to Georgetown taught in Princeton Seminary the classes of Dr. Charles R. Erdman. He was offered a chair in the seminary as assistant professorship, but preferred the regular ministry, and accepted the call to his present church.

CATHEDRAL LIBRARY GIVEN HYMN WORKS

Dr. Clayton Presents George Coles Stebbins Deposit to Church.

NUMBERS 1,000 BOOKS

By ELISABETH A. POE.

Washington Cathedral Library has received a notable addition in the George Coles Stebbins Deposit of Gospel Hymn Material presented by Dr. James B. Clayton of Clifton Terrace, who has been collecting this material for a number of years.

Dr. Clayton named his gift the George Coles Stebbins Deposit in honor of the venerable singing evangelist of the original Moody group and its only survivor, who is now living in Brooklyn, N. Y., vigorous and still composing and publishing hymns at the age of 85 years. Mr. Stebbins, who was the author of the famous Northfield Hymnal and the New Church Hymnal as well as other collections of sacred music, has been composing for 57 years.

Mr. Bliss and Ira Sankey also preceded Dr. Stebbins in the great original Moody group. He was the "Gospel Singer" choir-leader, conductor and composer, in memorable campaigns conducted not only by Moody, but by Maj. D. W. Whittle, Dr. George F. Pentecost, George C. Needham and Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman. Therefore, Dr. Clayton thought it most appropriate to name this collection of source material of gospel and evangelical hymns in honor of this singing evangelist.

Made Special Bookplates.

The Rev. Joseph Fletcher, canon and librarian of Washington Cathedral, has had special Washington Library bookplates made for the George Coles Stebbins Deposit to be placed in each item of the collection which numbers more than 1,000 books, hymnals and histories of this evangelical movement, many of them "long out of print." There is in addition, in process of completion, a compilation of approximately 25,000 hymns and songs arranged and placed in loose-leaf binders.

Mr. Stebbins donated to the collection about 200 of the best treasures of his private Gospel Hymn library, a copy of his "Reminiscences," a large number of his printed songs and five of the original manuscripts of his sacred songs which have a premium value among collectors but which Mr. Stebbins preferred should go as his gift to the deposit in Washington Cathedral Library.

These manuscript songs include "Saviour, Breathe an Evening Blessing," "Only a Little While," "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping," "Yielded to God," and "Some Day," later called "Saved by Grace," which was written at Newport, R. I., and there sung by Mr. and Mrs. Stebbins in a Moody meeting.

Sold 100,000 Copies.

A large number of leading American evangelists in addition to Moody and Sanky, used the Gospel Hymns in their meetings as represented in this collection. But Moody and his associates brought them into the widest use. Moody enlisted such soloists, composers and conductors as Bliss, Sankey, Stebbins and others who met the demand for popular religious songs with amazing success. More than 100,000 copies of "The Prize," by Root and Bliss, were sold, while the series of six books, specifically known as "Gospel Hymns," passed the 1,000,000 mark. Hundreds of similar books have been published, some coming out in every year from 1871 to 1930.

Speaking of the collection recently, Dr. Clayton declared: "Of the more famous evangelists who used some book or books of their own and produced either by themselves or under his direction, twenty-one are represented in the George Coles Stebbins Deposit, as follows: Baptists, A. B. Earle, Elder Jacob Knapp and Henry Marvin Wharton; Congregationalists, Edward Payson Hammond, B. Fay Mills, D. L. Moody, Asahel Nettleton, Reuben Archer Torrey and D. W Whittle; Methodists, B. B. Bosworth, Alfred Cookman, Thomas Harrison, Sam P. Jones, John S. Inskip, Luther W. Munhall, William McDonald, Sam Small and Charles H. Yatman; Presbyterians, J. Wilbur Chapman, George F. Pentecost and William A. Sunday. To these may be added a great book compiled by George Campbell Morgan, Congregationalist, and a book by Gypsy Smith, Methodist, both of England.

Many Autographed Copies.

"The more prolific, and otherwise prominent American composers, and singing evangelists, of the Gospel Hymns, or compilers of such books, are represented in this collection with satisfactory completeness, and, in many instances, by autographed copies," continued Dr. Clayton, who is himself a retired Baptist minister.

"These include five books of Charles M. Alexander; eight of Peter Philip Bilhorn; four of Philip Paul Bliss; 18 written by William B. Bradbury; four by William Howard Doane; 20 the work of Edwin O. Excell; 13 by Charles H. Gabriel; 12 of J. Lincoln Hall; eight by Thomas Hastings; 15 by William J. Kirkpatrick; six by Robert Lowry; 15 by James McGranahan; 13 by Lowell Mason, 'the father of American church music'; eight by I. H. Meredith; nine by C. Austin Miles; two by H. R. Palmer; three written by Philip Phillips, the 'singing pilgrim,' who preceded all other singing evangelists; seven by Homer A. Rodeheaver; six by George F. Root; 26 by Ira D. Sankey; 22 by George Coles Stebbins; 11 by John R. Sweeney; seven by Charlie D. Tillman; 14 by Daniel B. Towner; six by Grant Colfax Tullar and one by Isaac B. Woodbury."

"Why should a collection of 'Moody and Sankey' songs find lodgment in the great National Cathedral in Washington?" Dr. Clayton asked. "Because the latter is more than the 'National Cathedral.' It is a House of Prayer for all people and the 'Moody and Sankey' movement was one of the greatest religious movements that the modern world has known. All that is germane to the religious life, especially religious life fostered by the Gospel of Jesus, should be fittingly represented in what will be one of the supreme structures sacred to Christ."

Available to Students.

The George Coles Stebbins Deposit of Gospel Hymn Material will be available to students of such matters and those interested in the field of Hymnology. More and more the growing theological library being assembled by Washington Cathedral officials is being used by those in search of source material of this nature.

The first wing of Washington Cathedral Library, the gift of Mrs. Violet Blair Janin in memory of her mother, Mary Jesup Blair, was opened in the spring of 1927, making freely available to clergy and special students—more than 20,000 books now owned by Washington Cathedral. It is the beginning of what is planned as one of the most complete theological libraries in the country. Provision will be made for 300,000 books. The fundamental purpose behind the building of the Cathedral Library is to inculcate the spirit of learning on Mount St. Alban along with the spirit of worship in the Cathedral edifice.

No effort will be made to duplicate information in the Congressional Library or in other libraries in Washington. The library on Mount St. Alban will include books on the history of Christianity from its beginnings (the growth of the Kingdom of God in the last twenty centuries) on doctrine, liturgics, church music, homiletics, preaching, biography, church law and church architecture.

BAPTIST PASTOR

REV. DR. JOHN E. BRIGGS.

CHURCH TO MARK 61 YEARS' HISTORY

Dr. Tudor Will Participate in Mount Vernon Place Celebration.

DR. LAMBETH IS GUEST

Sixty-one years ago the congregation of the old M Street Methodist Church marched in a body to the new Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. While it was quite an event in the history of the congregation, there was no contemporary newspaper account of it.

Mothers carried their babies in arms in the parade, and some of those babies were baptized at the first service in the new church. Young children walked in the procession, hand in hand with their fathers and mothers, herding them in line to keep them from being lost.

A new Mount Vernon Place Church, the National Church of the Southern Methodists, stands on the lot occupied by the old church which received the marching hosts of Israel so many years ago. Of those who went through the portals of the old church few remain, and most of these are very old. Those who can get to church Sunday will take part in the anniversary celebration.

There in the pulpit, now somewhat older than when he met them at the door so long ago, they will see the venerable form of the Rev. Dr. W. V. Tudor, long one of the most eloquent pulpiteers in the South. There also they will see their beloved pastor, the Rev. Dr. William A. Lambeth, and also a minister from the Methodist Church North, who is their guest preacher.

No church in Southern Methodism has had such an array of distinguished pastors as this one. These bishops alone served it: David S. Doggett, John C. Granbery, A. W. Wilson and E. E. Hoss. These great preachers also served it: The eccentric John Hannon, John A. Kern, W. W. Bennett, Leonidas Rosser, James A. Duncan, W. P. Harrison, J. T. Wightman and Forrest J. Prettyman.

New Church Organ Will Be Dedicated

Fifteenth Street Church to Have Special Rites Tomorrow.

A happy Sunday is in prospect for the congregation of the Fifteenth Street Christian Church, for in addition to being Pentecost the church will dedicate its new pipe organ, an instrument of some 800 pipes. The dedicatory exercises will take place in the afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock, and all the Christian churches in the city will participate in them.

A special organ recital will be given by Louis Atwater, dean of the Washington Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, both afternoon and night, and the choir of the church, composed of 25 voices, will be augmented by the quartet from the Vermont Avenue Christian Church.

The Rev. C. N. Williams, secretary of evangelists from the Chesapeake area, will be the speaker at the services throughout the day.

The minister of this congregation, the Rev. Dr. S. Read McAlpin, expects his people to have a rather wonderful day of it. "They are just 500 plain folks," said he, "the very best on earth."

Tabor Presbyterians Choose Woman Elder

Tabor Presbyterian Church, Washington, has the honor of electing the first woman elder in the history of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. Mrs. Florence M. Granton is the elect lady so honored. The general assembly just adjourned completed the necessary legal change making this possible at its recent session in Cincinnati.

R. H. Logan, J. D. Wentz and E. M. Whissonant were elected trustees at the same congregational meeting.

New Pastor to Preach At Wesley Methodist

Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church has a new pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. Phelps Hand, who has lately been superintendent of the Washington District.

Dr. Hand succeeds the Rev. Dr. Fred C. Reynolds, who was transferred to Grace Church in Baltimore. He will occupy a pulpit to which he is no stranger, preaching tomorrow.

Rev. William L. Darby Given Honorary Degree

A Washington minister, the Rev. Dr. William L. Darby, secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, was honored this week by his alma mater, Cumberland University, conferring the degree of doctor of laws on him. Dr. Darby was the commencement preacher.

FIFTH BAPTIST SEES STEADY EXPANSION

"Poor Folks' Church," Under Rev. John E. Briggs, Has Splendid Record.

HAS HAD THREE PASTORS

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

There is one church in Washington which is popularly known as "the poor folks' church," and that is the Fifth Baptist Church on E street southwest. Just how it got this designation no one seems to know. Maybe, like Topsy, "it jist growed."

Just as often this church is spoken of as "the popular poor folks' church." This means, of course, that it has a message to poor folks and for poor folks, and that poor folks feel at home in its pews.

There is no good reason why poor folks should not find a friendly welcome in all churches, and surely they do, but it is not so often the friendly hand-grasp at the front door so much as the message from the pulpit that gives the welcome to the unprosperous who wear Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes.

Controversy Over Bell.

I remember hearing my dear old father tell of a famous debate that went on in one of the Methodist conferences of the South over the proposition of having a bell in the church tower to draw the people to church. It raged, he said, two days, and finally the presiding bishop, Dr. James O. Andrew, put a stop to it, with this sage remark:

"Brethren, my experience and observation is that if you put the bell in the pulpit you will draw the crowds."

The Fifth Baptist Church must have its bell in its pulpit, though its handsome edifice is graced with a tall and stately tower. That bell has been ringing now for 21 years, for on Sunday the pastor, the Rev. John E. Briggs, celebrates the end of his first long pastorate there. He now has his second wind and is starting out with his youth renewed like the eagle, ready for another long flight of a score and one years.

Church Had Three Pastors.

In all of its long history the Fifth Baptist Church has had but three pastors. The Rev. C. C. Meador, who organized the church 74 years ago, served it as pastor for 47 years, and was succeeded by the Rev. Weston Bruner, whose pastorate extended over a period of only five years. Then came the long, tall, young Tarheel from the South—the Rev. John E. Briggs.

It is thus seen that the popular pastor of this popular church has a high mark to shoot at if he hopes to live long enough to break Dr. Meador's record.

Washington is a notable city of long pastorates. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe was pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church for 28 years and Dr. Joseph Kelley, pastor of Fourth Presbyterian Church half a century. There are probably other long and notable pastorates, of which this writer has not heard.

Must Have Message.

How can a minister serve one congregation so long and hold them and see them grow and increase in all good works? He must have a message for them that is as old as the Eternal Truth itself.

I am afraid that Dr. Briggs' message would not be popular in some churches, for he preaches the old-time religion with its doctrine of hell fire and eternal damnation. As he phrases it, his teaching is "a bottomless hell, a topless heaven and an all-powerful Saviour." This is what all the great preachers have taught. It was the burden of Savonarola's flaming message; it was the soul of Martin Luther's stalwart sermons; it was the heart of John Calvin's stern theology; and it was the battlecry of John Wesley by which he saved the civilization of England. In our own day, it has been the very core of the teaching of that great evangelist, Gen. William Booth.

This modest Baptist minister whom the poor folks love is not illiterate, or uneducated, or a backwoodsman. His native county, Person, is right on the Virginia border near Danville. It was settled by Virginians, and its men and women have been among the leaders in the Old North State. They believe in culture and they acquire it. So far as they know, it has never stood in any man's way, and particularly in no minister's way.

Holds Several Degrees.

If having college degrees makes a man educated—and that is the standard in some circles—Dr. Briggs is very highly cultivated, for he not only has those which he earned by the sweat of his brains, but colleges and universities have felt honored to confer their honorary degrees on him.

This, however, is the mere mental furnishing of the man. His message is from his heart and is sent to the hearts of his hearers. Somewhere he read what Solomon said, that "out of the heart are the issues of life." And it may have occurred to him that the greatest thoughts men have come from their hearts. That is why some ministers still preach the terrible doctrine of lost souls. It does make the dry bones rattle and it does fill empty pews. And Dr. Briggs says it does save men from their sins.

What have been the fruits of such preaching? This is a fair question. It is a biblical test. It is also the test that materialists of this day and generation apply to worldly affairs.

Growth of Congregation.

In 21 years Dr. Briggs has added 2,848 new members to his poor folks' church, 1,701 of them received by baptism. A school of religious education building, known as Darlington Memorial, has been built at a cost of $60,000. It will accommodate 1,000 persons. The Sunday school, with an enrollment of 1,832, is one of the largest in the city. Dr. Briggs teaches the adult Bible class, which has a membership of more than 400.

In many respects the twenty-first year was the best of the pastorate—273 new members being taken in, and 169 by baptism. It should be explained that these 169 are converts, "sinners snatched from the grave." That surely is a measuring rod by which to test any man's preaching.

Like the British Empire, the sun never sets on the work of this poor folks' church. It has missionaries in the far flung fields, whom it supports—Dr. Robert E. Chambers, for more than 30 years in China; Dr. George Green, a medical missionary in West Africa, and Miss Gertrude Joerg, a missionary in Tampa, Fla. It also has missionaries at work in Washington, who for more than 30 years have conducted a Bible school and social center down near Washington Barracks.

This is a remarkable record, is it not, for a church that does not make much noise?

Will Dedicate Pulpit Rest.

Petworth Baptist Church is planning a big day for Sunday, June 15, when the pulpit rest, a gift of the ladies of the church, will be dedicated. The pastor, the Rev. Henry J. Smith, will make a special talk to the young people of his church who have just graduated from school.

TEACHERS' TRAINING SCHOOL UNDER WAY

FREE INFORMATION GIVEN

The city-wide Standard Teacher Training School, now in session in the Calvary Baptist Church, has begun with a very creditable enrollment. Four courses are being taught, as follows: Administration of a vacation church school, training in worship, primary material and methods, and junior material and methods. The remaining sessions will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week from 7:30 to 9:30.

Promotion of the training school is one of the many forms of service which the Federation of Churches renders to all denominations. It is conducted by the department of vacation schools under direction of the Rev. E. O. Clark. Last year various churches in and near Washington conducted 31 vacation church schools with a total enrollment of 2,613 children, receiving daily instruction in religious education for four weeks after the close of the public schools.

The closing feature of the daily program is that of handicraft, in which children are taught to make useful articles, ofttimes illustrating the Bible lesson previously given.

The Federation of Churches supplies free information and helps in the conduct of the school to churches of any denomination desiring it. It also promotes community schools, wherein several churches cooperate; it conducts a clearing house for teachers and principals and renders general supervision after the schools are in session. Many churches are already making plans for a vacation church school this summer.

Pastor Back From Convention.

The Rev. William E. LaRue, minister of the Takoma Park Baptist Church, has returned from the Northern Baptist Convention, at Cleveland, Ohio, and Sunday morning will give his people echoes of that gathering.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 6.—A unique feature of the Atlantic City trade show was the secrecy with which the new radio sets to be offered to the public in the fall were guarded. At Chicago last year everything was on view. In fact, the object of the June trade show is to afford dealers and jobbers from all over the country a preview of the new sets.

It seems, however, at previous shows that certain unscrupulous manufacturers, noting other manufacturers had something they didn't have, rushed home after the show and by fall were also offering the same thing to their customers. While some of the new sets were displayed at Atlantic City, many others were not.

Two big manufacturers had their sets in the auditorium exhibit booths, but hidden from the eyes of every one excepting their own dealers. The booth of another prominent manufacturer was darkened, but if the inquirer had been given the "O. K." the room number of a certain hotel was whispered to him, where he could see the new set.

One of the largest manufacturers in the United States made no pretense at showing his new sets. His exhibit consisted of several golden doorways, padlocked and lettered in green, "Open August 1," which is the time set for introducing the new receivers to the public. So quite a crimp was put into the pirating of ideas.

The net result was that nothing of a sensational nature was offered at Atlantic City. Year before last the trade show brought forth the dynamic speaker and the socket current set, last year the screen grid, but though there was a lot of talk about tone control, nothing radical was introduced this year.

A NOVELTY was the midget sets from the West Coast, weight about 25 pounds, socket current, 5 to 7 tubes, screen grid, dynamic speaker, the whole thing selling for $59.50. These sets, not portables in any sense of the word, excepting in size, are the product of an infant industry in Los Angeles, where about twenty manufacturers are turning them out.

The assertion was made at the show that although the number of radio sets sold each year has increased from 1,750,000 in 1926 to 4,438,000 in the year 1929, the number of radio set manufacturers has decreased from 600 in 1926 to less than 100 today, and that 1930 would see a further contraction.

The inference drawn from this was that the radio set manufacturing business no longer attracts the manufacturer who is poorly financed or is willing to do only a small business.

Prices on the new standard sets will be about the same as they were last year.

THE radio exhibits which appeared tremendous in the Chicago exhibition hall were almost lost in the massive Atlantic City Auditorium, the floor space of which is about 32 acres.

A feature of the convention, however, which measured up to expectations in size was the banquet, served in the ballroom, adjoining the auditorium, at which 2,500 persons were seated.

Loud speakers were not allowed to run wild at Atlantic City as in Chicago, where the lake-front hotels were one great blare from sets being demonstrated.

Naturally this aroused the ire of guests not attending the convention and profiting by the experience. Each Atlantic City hotel posted a large notice, which read, "Rooms engaged are for sleeping purposes and not for demonstrating radio sets."

ATTRACTING the crowds along the Boardwalk were the two radio-phonograph "band-wagons" operated by rival companies. They were auto trucks equipped with horns for amplifying either radio music, or if there wasn't anything particular going on in the radio line, phonograph records.

In volume the music coming from one of these auto trucks from an ordinary phonograph record was equivalent to an organization about twice the size of the Marine Band. These trucks are now being tried out by the Army for soldiers to march by—a band truck at the head of a regiment of soldiers—and those who heard the music at Atlantic City could readily imagine them leading an army and replacing the old style Army band.

Baby Mine

Dare Interprets the Mode

Clever Fingers make a too short chiffon dress over into an adorable pyjama suit for tea! (A Dah-ray Idea.)

Paris, June 6.

I'VE just spent the most engrossing week-end taking stock and turning everything upside down in my wardrobe, and redesigning all the stil' good, but out of fashion, things that were hanging around taking up space. Those that didn't lend themselves to the mood of the moment got put away into mothproof trunks, instead of being left to take up room and worry my nice new togs by their useless presence.

Scarcely anything is ever so hopelessly out of date but what something can be done with it. As I have told you before, it has to be looked at not for its present lines, but for the material in it and how it is cut. Forgetting all about the garment as it is at the moment, you rip it up, have the pieces cleaned and pressed, and then—this is important—instead of trying to adapt your garment to your pieces of material, adapt your material to the garment that you have already selected to make.

There really should be no such a thing as a "made-over" garment. It's a new dress made from material that was in an old one, if you wish. And if this of itself is well made and smart, as it certainly can be, then you really have something.

Good materials don't wear out and are seldom cut out into such small pieces that they can't possibly be used for anything else. How about looking your wardrobe in the face this week-end, and seeing how many new dresses you can make out of what you find there?

* * * *

And of course sit down first and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of the Washington Post, for the leaflet I made for you as I went along with my own make-overs! There's enough similarity in dresses and coats and things so that you should be able to adapt some of my suggestions to your own wardrobe. For instance, the lovely chiffon dress I have illustrated for you today—we all have some like that, hopelessly short of course, and seemingly impossible of saving. Well I have illustrated the pajama blouse that is made for the house, and with a separate skirt, a lovely summer blouse for the street.

Then there was the old-fashioned tailored suit which made a most wonderful— now I'm giving all my secrets away and you just have to send for the leaflet to find out the rest of the things I did and you can do with old-fashioned togs.

* * * *

And at the same time let's take a glove and stocking and bag and shoe inventory—just go through them all relentlessly, one at a time of course.

For your gloves, separate them into two boxes—one for your old ones that you know you will only use for driving or shopping, another for the better ones. Put out all of those that have to be mended or cleaned, throw away those that you've had kicking around for some time and for one reason or another you know that you simply will never use.

And here's an idea. Have a box of gem clips and several small pieces of paper as well as a little note book with you. As fast as you come across something that has to be repaired, jot down where it is and what it is and clip it to the article. This will save you searching again when you get ready to mend it.

And as you go along, in the note book jot down those things that you find you have to buy sooner or later. This will save you time and haphazard buying too.

* * * *

Tomorrow you should make it a point to look in the Sunday Post for the weekly Dare fashion letter. We know you'll enjoy it.

Au revoir!

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I HAVE a damp, shady stretch in my garden where even grass refuses to grow. All I have ever been able to get to grow has been iris. Do you know of anything that might be coaxed into existence in such a spot?
MRS. D. T. T.

Japanese spurge (pachysandra) will always do well in a shady place. This is one of the best known ground-cover plants.

Please tell me a remedy for rust, which always attacks my phlox.
MARJORY B. L.

For rust or blight the most efficacious remedy is made by dissolving two teaspoonfuls of copper carbonate in one-half teacup of ammonia. Add to this 6½ gallons of water and apply this spray twice a week, using it full strength.

Please tell me of a vine that you really feel might live in a shady garden.
MARTHA B. F.

Kudsu (Japanese), Dutchman's pipe, amepelopsis, English ivy and euonymous will all do well in shade.

Please tell me if the adonis (pheasant's eye) is suitable for a rock garden. I want to buy one new plant this year for my rather small but wandering garden.
MRS. CHARLES T. Y.

The adonis is a particularly fine variety for a rock garden. The flowers are bright and deep yellow. The foliage is finely cut and ornamental The adonis amurensis blooms in April and the adonis vernalis in May and June. The adonis will bloom in sun or in shade, but partial shade is preferred. It is not a gypsy, for it resents being moved—in fact, it takes four years for it to show its true beauty after being moved.

Please tell if the seed you sow—of the columbine must be seed which has just ripened.
MARIE McM.

It is usually advisable to sow seed shortly after it is ripe, the reason being that the seed germinates irregularly. The plants make little growth during the hot summer from spring-sown seed. I think it is well for the amateur to purchase started plants of columbine, which, if planted together, will sometimes cross to form many hybrids.

I mean to use some dusty millers to edge some borders. My garden is rather large, so I have borders in sun and others in shade. Where do you advise me to plant the dusty millers?
EMILY H. T.

They will do best in an open, sunny position, but see that you have a fairly good soil for them.

Please tell me what to use for mildew which has attacked my rambler rosebush.
MRS. THOMAS H. Y.

Dust the foliage while it is still damp with dew with flowers of sulphur. You can get dusting sulphur from any seed house.

What Today Means to You

"GEMINI"

IF June 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 7 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon and from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Astrologists give danger signals on this date in regard to running physical risks. It is a poor time to travel; the stay-at-homers will reap the biggest harvests. Great events in the sporting world are augured. The children born on this June 7 will be determined little creatures, and they will hang on with grim, crab-like force to their ideas and ambitions. They will be friendly and sociable in manner, and will easily make friends.

Your emotions are too intense and too changeable for you to be altogether dependable. Your sincerities have the depth of the moment, and your enthusiasms come and go with the changing of your moods. You are too much a slave of your feelings, and are too lacking in logic to realize your instabilities. You are surprised, grieved and feel abused if people call you inconstant or fickle—your memory is short when that of others is long. It is not yesterday or tomorrow, but today, which interests and worries you.

Although you are easily prejudiced, your likes and dislikes are interchangeable—your loves of today are your hates of tomorrow. You would much oftener be in "dutch," if it were not for your good nature, your facinating personality. As you generally feel yourself to be in the right, you are not bothered with pricks of conscience, and your spirits are usually high.

You have brilliant brainstorms, sometimes practical, and sometimes most impractical; you sometimes follow them up, and other times they are dropped. Slow, methodical reasoning is something you can not, and care not to do. You must act on the impulse, you must obey your inclinations of the moment. Although you work without method or system, you are able to do some very clever things—when in the right spirit. Your life will be a series of ups and downs, but one into which will be crammed a great deal of pleasure.

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner).

During previous weeks in the Saturday series for beginners, the importance of leading toward not from tenaces has been stressed. Similar in importance is leading toward a King with small cards or a King-Queen with one or more small cards. A moment's thought will show why this is so.

If the hand containing the King should lead low and the partner's hand contained no high card in the suit, the adverse Ace would not be forced out unless it happened to be a singleton, and so the leader's King would remain unestablished. Even if the lead were repeated, the King once again probably would be unestablished. But if the lead were made from the other hand toward the King, there would be an even chance of being able to win either the first or the second trick with it. (A lead is from a hand when made by that hand; it is up to a hand when made by the adversary on the right; it is toward a hand when made by the partner; and through a hand when made by the adversary on the left).

In the same way, when the holding is King-Queen and one or more small with no high cards in the partner's hand, leading away from the honors would mean that the Ace would capture one of them and only one trick would be made in the suit; but leading toward them would mean that while only one trick would be made in the suit if the Ace were held by the adverse hand at the left of the two honors, two tricks would be made if the Ace were held on the right of them.

If the lead of the above suit be made from closed hand, either an honor or a small card must be led; if the honor, the adversaries take the first trick with the Ace and the third with a small card; if a small card be led, the adversaries take the first trick cheaply, the second with the Ace; in either case two tricks are lost by Declarer. But if the suit be led twice from dummy toward closed hand, only one trick will be lost.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

"Man's Love."

MADELINE has asked a life-sized question in today's mail. Madeline is 21 and says that she has just been thinking, and it has occurred to her that a girl could very easily be fooled about a man's love. (Impossible, Madeline, impossible!) He might say he loved her and not love her at all. Who ever heard of such a thing. Well, anyway, right there Madeline took pen in hand and asked the sizable question aforementioned. What's the question? Just "How can you know if a man really loves you?" Can you imagine finding that in your morning mail! And at that we are going to attempt an answer. Yes, we are feeling strong and mighty and very sure of ourselves; so here we go.

In the first place, it does not make the least bit of difference whether a man really loves you or not if he really believes that he does. Mose marriages are founded upon a man's firm conviction that he is at last in love and that his worldly goods, life and liberty are well lost in the great cause. And so he finds himself a few years later the stern parent of a couple of sheiks or flappers, and tries to remember what happened and can't, and so goes along, gets bald, makes his will, disappears from the earth, and is too busy then with other matters to care how he happened to become a married man.

But we are here to tell him that it was just because he really believed he loved a woman. And she really believed it, too! All the rest followed.

About "four out of five" weddings is one where the man not only believes himself in love, but is right in believing it. And this is not by any means a happier marriage. They buy a lawn-mower, just like the others, and eventually buy sleds and bicycles and raccoon coats, and make their wills, and hurry on, like the others, never knowing they were the one out of five.

But "how can you know whether it is going to mean marriage," is what Madeline wants to know. How can you know whether he even really believes he really loves? Watch his performance, Madeline. Spring a toothache the day of the big ball game! It's worth it to know. So, marshal a good throbbing toothache. And see whether you matter! Get sick, or even just pretend in the midst of a "prom." Suddenly remember a much regretted "past." See if you mean life and love to him. You will soon find out! and if these methods seem too drastic, just tell him about mother's new coat or kid brother's broken arm, and see if he yawns, or if everything that is near and dear to you has magically become so to him.

If he can pass these tests he either loves you or believes he does. If he fails them, then he loves your kisses and you matter not the least bit in the world, though he marry you a million times over; so try him out, put him through the traces, and while you do it try a few tests on yourself. Madeline, darling, you will be surprised.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DREAMS AND NUMB FINGERS.

A. J. R. writes: 1. Does it indicate an acid condition to dream very often that animals are biting my fingers and when I wake up find my fingers numb? 2. Is it true that it is bad to eat oranges at night? Many people have told me so, but nobody seems to knqw the reason why.

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No. You would not have gained by asking those who gave you advice.

PROBABLE CAUSE OF SNORES.

Mrs. A. H. H. Writes: I would like to know what makes a person snore and if there is any remedy for it.

REPLY.

Sleeping with the mouth open.

RECORDS BOWEL MOVEMENTS.

A. K. writes: A record of bowel movements is kept on charts in hospitals. Why not a record at home? The initials of the family members could be marked on the family calendar daily. Parents in this way can watch children and keep check on themselves.

What do you think of the idea? I am trying it out by having calendars next to toilet paper and if bowel movement takes place away from home it is recorded on reaching home.

REPLY.

NERVES MAY BE CAUSE.

E. S. N. writes: I just read a question regarding a condition of small blisters between the fingers, itching and later discharging a watery fluid, for which I think I can suggest a remedy. I have had it myself and was told it was a skin trouble of nervous origin. Application of zinc oxide ointment is most beneficial to it.

REPLY.

By MAX SCHMELING
(As told to Paul Gallico).

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 6.—I see where the National Boxing Association has finally decided to recognize the winner of the fight between Sharkey and me, June 12, as the champion of the world. There was doubt as to the action of the N. B. A. because last winter it questioned Jack Dempsey. If Dempsey planned a comeback, the N. B. A. was not going to recognize Sharkey or me as the champion.

I will admit that Jack Dempsey has a claim ahead of either of us. So has Gene Tunney. I consider both Jack and Gene men to be defeated before a claim for a title can be registered, but with both of them definitely retired I can not, in all justice, see where any other fighter has a claim ahead of my opponent and myself.

Between us we have gradually eliminated the men who, in turn, have eliminated other men until it drew down to two outstanding candidates, Otto von Porat put in a claim, but Paulino Uzcudun defeated him and I defeated Paulino. There are others who follow George Godfrey, but Sharkey defeated Godfrey.

Describes Carnera As Joke.

I understand the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission is not going to recognize a champion until after the Carnera-Godfrey bout. Carnera is a joke and Godfrey has been defeated, so I can see no logic in that. I think that outside of Sharkey and myself the only two men who figure are Tunney and Dempsey, and if I win the championship, I promise and will welcome a chance to meet both Jack and Gene.

I have been criticized for playing too much golf. I have trained seventeen times since May 11 and will get in at least 20 days of hard work before I begin to taper off next week.

A friend of mine came to my cottage much perturbed and said "Maxie, you have laid off for a year, and now you are working only 20 days of five rounds sparring. How can you expect to win the championship with just 20 days of work?"

My answer is that if I can not get in shape in 20 days I can never get in shape—and I know I am o. k. I played 36 holes of golf yesterday, and I went fishing today, and, as the sun was hot some claimed that I was overdoing it, and that I was sapping my energy. Supposing the night of June 12 is a muggy, sweltering, sultry night with the air close and the humidity high, I will be able to stand it because I have accustomed my body up here in the mountains to the extreme of cold when we had it and now to the extremes of heat.

Sharkey's Manager Invited to Match.

I am not doing any secret training and I am not holding back anything. Coach Andy Kerr, of Colgate, was here to visit me and his visit reminds me of the story of the football coach who sent his rival a complete set of all his plays, but appended a note saying, "I regret that I can not tell you when I am going to use each one."

It is so with Sharkey. I do not care that Jack Conway, his manager, comes into my camp to watch me prepare myself. He is welcome. I hope he enjoys himself here. It is a beautiful country. If he sees my variety of right-hand and left-hand hooks, crosses and uppercuts, that is well, too.

But I will not tell Mr. Conway or Mr. Sharkey when and in what order I am going to use them—no, indeed.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 6.—Never a hard occupation, the job of covering a heavyweight prize-fighter's training camp has been made well-nigh effortless by the helpful press agents of the Madison Square Garden Corporation and I am beginning to feel self-conscious about referring to pugilists and their managers as idle persons with an aversion to useful toil.

On the walls of the sitting room of the field-hands' cottage on Gus Wilson's muscle plantation, where the newspaper chaps compose their dispatches, there are long mimeographed bulletins and statistics suitable for bodily preemption, all prepared by Norman St. Denis and Walter, his paw. If it were not for a conscientious habit developed early in my newspaper training, I should merely take the wire chief gently by the arm, lead him around the room examining the wallpaper until I came to an essay suiting my purposes, and remark "send about 2 feet 8 inches of that one about Jack Sharkey's fortune, and put my name over it, as I have an appointment to drink some beer with Jack Curley down the road a piece."

Training Camp Output Made to Order.

One finds the entire proposition of the prize fighter's training very thoroughly covered to order by Norman St. Denis and Walter, his paw. Out yonder, somewhere in some lean-to or pigpen, inspiration glows the whole night through and the mimeograph thrums in the mechanized production of standard, reliable training-camp copy.

Jack Sharkey has made so-and-so many hundred thousand dollars in his career as a prize fighter, and so forth, for about five feet of literature and very good, printable matter, too, containing neither fancy words nor controversial statements, with convenient stopping places, or joints, about every three inches down the sheet.

Or a man may prefer something about Jack Sharkey's measurements as compared with those of Hercules Jim Jeffries, Dempsey and Gene Tunney. A yard of that might do; familiar, but tried and found reliable.

Drama Piece Also Available.

Or one may favor an interview with Jim Corbett or a review of Sharkey's career starting way before the time that King Solomon, his sparring partner of the present time, beat him in a fight in Boston. This is a drama piece. One fellow goes on to wealth; the other hires out as his punching dummy.

The St. Denis boys, Norman and his paw, are willing to go even further, standing ready to leap into a camp chair along the wide pine shelf and maul a typewriter for any desired amount of special, written-to-order matter in fair simulation of any given individual's style, if ny. They are very versatile and obliging and a man need only turn them on, set the automatic stops at a thousand words, and let them run.

This boy Norman is coming along. I remember meeting him first down in Miami about five seasons ago. He had mimeograph ink on his hands even then and I think he was apprenticed to a realtor's publicity department. His paw, of course, is well known. His paw, Walter, was sport editor of the old New York Globe until the late Frank Munsey bought the paper and combined it with one of his other papers. Somehow, Walter didn't get combined, himself, and presently he turned up in the Garden firm's department of public relations, as superintendent and foreman over the most prolific battery of mimeographs in town.

Walter Is Versatile Publicist.

Norman was here and there for a while and now here he bobs up in full charge of the mimeographs at Sharkey's camp, subject to the supervision of his paw who rattles hither and yon between Schmeling's place, way upcountry at Endicott, Orangeburg, and the main publicity plant in the Garden's offices downtown.

Walter is a myriad-minded journalist. He can do a cynical piece for a cynic, an expert piece for an expert, a straightaway newsjob for a straightaway reporter, or a series of paragraphs, separated by jim dashes, of the kind usually found under small boxheads reading "Training Camp Jottings." He states that his boy Norman is pretty well rounded by now.

Shorey Lone D. C. Golfer Surviving

Gains Middle Atlantic Semifinals With 2 Victories.

Special to The Washington Post.

RICHMOND, Va., June 6.—John C. Shorey, crack linksman from the Bannockburn Club, tonight alone remains to carry the hopes of the National Capital in the annual Middle Atlantic States golf tournament which will come to a finish here at the James River course tomorrow.

While three other Washington amateurs were brushed aside in either first or second matches today, Shorey proved his worth by defeating two able opponents. The Bannockburn star eliminated Malcolm Jones, Richmond City champion, in the opening duel, 4 and 3, and in the afternoon beat Dr. J. B. Bullard, also of Richmond, by 5 and 4.

Harry Pitt, of the Manor Club, who yesterday shot a 75 to place second in the qualifying round, passed from the championship picture in his quarter-finals match with William Howell, of Richmond, 1927 State amateur title holder, 3 up and 2, but only after a ding-dong battle. Pitt previously had eliminated a fellow townsman, Roger Peacock, of Indian Spring, 2 and 1, being forced to utilize all of his cunning in his successful efforts to turn back Peacock.

Corkran Eliminates McCallum.

Bernard W. Corkran, of Baltimore, the defending champion, blasted the hopes of Walter McCallum, veteran Washington player, the first round, 2 and 1, but the Marylander himself was decisively beaten in the afternoon by another Baltimorean, Alex Knapp, 5 and 4.

Tomorrow's semifinals matches, starting at 10 o'clock, will find Jack Howard clashing with Alex Knapp in one bracket with Billy Howell, the blonde college flash crossing clubs with Shorey in the other bracket. The finals will take place in the afternoon.

The match between Howell and Harry Pitt today was one of the outstanding of the top flight. The Richmond boy was at his best, shooting par golf for the first nine holes, with Pitt holding his own along the same route. They were all square at the turn, then Howell uncorked a dazzling brand of putting and approaching and outmatched the splendid shooting of the Washington player. Howell clicked off a 72 for the eighteen holes, even par, while Pitt shot 74.

SOTHERN'S 4 DOUBLES TIE RECORD

Former Washington Sandlotter Gets 5 Hits for Phils.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—Denny Sothern, Washington, D. C., sandlot graduate, playing center field for the Phillies, today equaled an all-time major league record when he hit four doubles as the Phillies triumphed over the Reds, 14 to 5.

Sothern, a star sandlot football and baseball player with the Georgetown A. C. and Knickerbocker Clubs in Washington several years ago, made five hits in five times at bat, his other blow being a single, and he scored five runs.

Coming to the Phils four years ago direct from the Blue Ridge League, Sothern has been a regular from the start and is recognized as one of the fastest men in the major leagues.

Anson Set Record In 1883.

According to the Associated Press, the first players in major league baseball to get four doubles in one game were Adrian C. ("Pop") Anson, and Abner Dalrymple, of the Chicago Nationals, on July 3, 1883. The mark subsequently was equaled by Thomas J. Tucker, of the Boston Nationals; Joseph J. Kelley, of Baltimore; Edward J. Delehanty, of the Philadelphia Nationals; Clifford C. ("Cactus") Cravath, of the Phillies; Frank Dillon, of the Detroit Americans, and Frank Isbell, of the Chicago Americans. Isbell accomplished the feat in the world's series of 1906.

Von Porat Relents; Will Fight Stribling

Chicago, June 6 (A.P.).—Otto Von Porat, Norway's leading contribution to the heavyweight ring, was returned to good standing by the Illinois State Athletic Commission today when he yielded under pressure and agreed to meet W. L. "Young" Stribling in a 10-round match at the Chicago Stadium, June 18.

The Norwegian heavyweight and his manager, Ed Stevenson, made a verbal agreement a week ago with the stadium for the match, but refused to sign yesterday. The stadium complained to the commission and Stevenson and Von Porat were suspended for six months.

Nats-Detroit Trade Talk Fruitless

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

DETROIT, June 6. — Although Managers Walter Johnson and Stanley Harris were seen in a huddle for a few minutes just after today's final game of the series here was declared off because of rain, both reported nothing doing in the matter of trades, even going further and declaring that their talk was of a personal rather than of a business nature.

The fact remains, however, that Harris had intimated that he could make Johnson an attractive offer and that Johnson took the attitude that it would do no harm to listen to it. Furthermore, via the grapevine route, it is learned that Harris put out some "feelers" as to whether the Nationals would be interested in offering any talent for Pitcher Earl (Dapper Dan) Whitehill and, to his sorrow, discovered that the Washington club was nob interested.

As late as last season, the Nationals might have been interested in a proposition which would give them the southpaw, who seemed to have the "Indian" sign on them, but this is another year and so far Whitehill has failed miserably. Once popular here, the cash customers now give him the well-known raspberry every time he toes the slab and his usefulness here seems to be at end. A change of scenery probably would help Whitehill, but the Nats apparently do not feel that there is a big enough change between Washington and Detroit.

Open Cleveland Series Today.

Manager Walter Johnson led his charges out of the Ford City early this evening headed for Cleveland, where a four-game series is listed to start tomorrow afternoon. The Nats have been so busy watching the front-running Athletics that they have not bothered to look behind them, but the fact remains that the Indians are close on their trail and it is up to them to shake them off in the coming battles.

If they are to hold on to their present runner-up position, they must get better pitching than they have received of late. It was their fine early season box-work which did more than anything else to keep them at the top of the heap, but the mound staff suddenly collapsed and Johnson has not seen a starting pitcher finish since May 27, when "Sad Sam", Jones beat the Yankees.

"Ruth & Co." pounded Fred Marberry off the hill the following day and then Ad Liska, Irving Hadley, Lloyd Brown and Sam Jones, who previously had looked like the league's big five, were trounced in succession by the Mackmen, who came from behind to wipe out the Nats' three-game league lead and to go in front themselves Tuesday.

Moore on Option to Chattanooga.

"Chief" Carlos Moore, the young right-handed pitcher bought from Birmingham last fall, left the Nationals tonight to join Joe Engel's Chattanooga Club on option. He was on option here until June 15, with $17,500 due if he were retained. The Nats decided to go through with the deal and to send him to the Lookouts, where he will be worked regularly and given a chance to develop in the hope that he will come back to the Johnsons this fall with a good chance of making the grade.

The downpour which washed this afternoon's scheduled fracas off the boards was a real one. It hit Navin Field so quickly that the ground force was unable to get the infield covered. The Washington players had to cross the field to get to their locker room, and several were trapped on their bench and were forced to take a good soaking when the drain in the dugout became clogged and the water became bench high. An hour after game time the sun was shining brightly.

C., of New York, national 20-mile champion; Gus Moore, of the Brooklyn Harriers, national senior 10-mile and cross-country champion; Russell Jakel, of the New York A. C., Metropolitan 20-mile titleholder, and Whitey Michelson, veteran Millrose A. C. runner.

Officials of the race, holding a possibility that a record would be broken today, made a careful survey of the course yesterday and decided that a slight change in the announced route would have to be made in order to make the distance correct. In order to make it exactly 15 miles, the Ellipse circle will be traversed four times at the start, instead of two, the extra two laps giving the course its exact distance.

Mike Lynch Heads Local Runners.

Mike Lynch, who has long been associated with distance running in the District, will head the list of Washington entrants. Haskell F. Clark and Bob Bankower, who were the first District runners to finish in the City Club marathon last year, are considered likely candidates for the same honor today. Jerry Looney, representing the Knights of Columbus and Bus Nicholson, Ione City Club entrant, are the other District entrants.

Arrangements have been made with the park police to clear the route of traffic and prevent parking of automobiles around the Ellipse. Provisions have been made to detour traffic away from the course during the running of the race.

Maj. William C. Rhodes, vice president of the American Olympic committee, will start the runners. John D. O'Reilly, Georgetown University track coach, will serve as referee.

Zero Milestone To Be Start.

The course of the race follows:

Starting at zero milestone on the Ellipse, four circuits of the Ellipse roadway, south on Seventeenth street to John Paul Jones statue, west on Tidal Basin road to polo field, to footpath to south side of Riverside drive, to inlet bridge, t Speedway to Hains Point to Fourteenth street, to bridle path, to zero milestone and back over same route, excepting circuits of Ellipse.

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

WASHINGTON PARK RACE TRACK, June 6.—The Thomas Curran Memorial, $5,000 added, for 2-year-old colts and geldings, has attracted the best field of juveniles of the current meeting here today, and will be run as the fifth race.

The Watkins-Regan entry of INSCO and FOREIGN EXCHANGE is selected to win. INSCO is perhaps better than his running mate, but either one might win the stake were the other withdrawn. BILL MORRIS, the fastest 2-year-old at New Orleans in the early part of the year, should be the contender, although he has apparently gone back through too much racing in winter. SCHOONER, from the Rancocas Stable, has a chance, and should be in the money. The Greentree Stable has a colt in the line-up—SHINING—which is believed better than he has shown. The track is sloppy.

FIRST RACE—The Rancocas Stable's ZUBLENA seems best of the 3-year-olds and upward in this race. On Jamaica form, this filly should beat the field. SHIFT is rated the contender. VALDOSTA has a chance for part of the purse. ZUBLENA is a superior mudder.

SECOND RACE—Maiden 2-year-olds start here. The Greentree Stable has an entry in it that looks like a winner in SPAR and SPRING CLEANING. The last named is regarded best of the entry. FOREIGN EXCHANGE, named to go also in the feature, may start in this race instead and should prove the contender. CHARMER, from the Rancocas Stable, seems best of the others.

THIRD RACE—JOHN T. D. is the choice for the third event. He is not very consistent, but is seldom found in a weaker field than this and can run in the mud. ROYAL CHARGE will find the track to his liking and is a dangerous contender. MISS MARYLAND should improve over her last race and is a money probability.

FOURTH RACE—The Rancocas Stable's LEUCITE seems to be a standout horse. Track conditions suit. He should beat FIRST MISSION, the strongest of the opposition, easily. EQUATION will be well backed and is a front runner. LEUCITE seems to have the class on the field.

FIFTH RACE—BROWN WISDOM, coupled with TIPPY TOE, is picked to carry off the purse. SILVERDALE is the contender and at the weights has a chance. MORSUN is rated next. NUSAKAN failed in his race at Washington Park a few days ago. He can do much better. This might be the day for his awakening, but the mud will be no advantage to him.

SEVENTH RACE—OVERFIRE is picked to beat the platers that are to start here. BLANDRIS should hold the others safe. THEORIST JANE will like the track and will have a good chance to show.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DREANA LEE, $9.48, $5.36, $4.40; WHISKARROW, $5.62, $54.40; LEE COOPER, $5.46.

DREANA LEE, showing a liking for the going, was taken into close pursuit of LEE COOPER from the break and, when ready, took the lead after rounding the stretch turn and quickly drew away in the stretch run. WHISKARROW, outrun in the early stages, saved much ground on the inside and, coming fast in final furlong, was up to outfinish LEE COOPER. LEE COOPER showed his usual early speed, held the lead to the stretch, where he tired and barely outlasted DON TINKEY. Latter improved position rounding turn into stretch, but was unable to reach contention. HOT TIME had early speed, but faltered in final issue. PORT GAR had no excuses. CALCITE showed early speed, then quit badly.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 2-year-olds, colts and geldings. Track fast. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:49. Off at 2:54. Winner, C. B. Irwin's b. c. (2), by Bon Homme—Peggy Martin. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:50 1-5, 1:04 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GABBO, $22.70, $8.38, $5.80; KING'S X, $13.88, $6.52; BURNAM, $4.98.

GABBO, liking the muddy going, forced the pace from the break, carrying KING'S X along at a good clip, went into lead entering stretch and drew away to win with lots to spare. KING'S X, prominent on inside, had the most early speed, could not withstand the winner's challenge but held on well after being passed. BURNAM was ridden wide, escaped interference on the stretch turn and continued strongly to the final drive. GREENWALD, away slowly, raced into a jam rounding the stretch turn and could not improve his position in the final quarter. PERE NOEL began to tire after going half a mile.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:23. Off at 3:23. Winner, Rosehome Stable's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WILLING, $45.18, $19.56, $7.82; EASTER, $5.16, $3.64; LOOK AT LILLIAN, $4.02.

WILLING gradually worked her way up to the leaders on the outside and, coming fast when straightened out in stretch, wore down EASTER and drew out to win easily. EASTER was taken into a long lead in the first six furlongs, then tired after reaching the stretch. LOOK AT LILLIAN began slowly, closed a gap in the first four furlongs, continued evenly to the stretch and finished strongly. BAR SINISTER raced into contention a furlong away, then tired in final drive. AMELIA MAY showed early speed, but tired in stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The South Shore. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:54. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYER, $8.56, $6.10, $5.52; OUTER HARBOR, $18.18, $8.38; JEAN LAFITTE, $4.90.

FLYER, rushed into the lead in first furlong, held command under good rating to the stretch, where he drew away into a long lead in final quarter. OUTER HARBOR dropped back after the start then worked his way up on inside steadily and outlasted JEAN LAFITTE. JEAN LAFITTE, outpaced to the stretch, was taken to outside and closed with a rush. FAIR ROSALIND, a forward factor first five furlongs, tired under pressure in final drive. MAKE HASTE had no mishaps. ANTEBELLUM showed early speed to the stretch turn, then tired.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,600; claiming, handicap. The Lincoln Highway. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:22. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STARS AND BARS, $21.48, $10.1●, $5.52; THE NUT, $6.82, $4.92; MY DANDY, $3.30.

STARS AND BARS, outrun in early stages, responded strongly to hard urging and worked his way up rapidly, headed THE NUT in the final seventy yards and won going away. THE NUT was kept under restraint while steadily working his way up to the leaders midway of the stretch and closed fast on the inside, worked into the lead a sixteenth out but could not offset the winner's rush. MY DANDY had most early speed, held the lead to midway of the stretch, then tired. MARTINIQUE kept pace with MY DANDY for first seven furlongs, but weakened in the hard final drive.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:53. Winner, J. N. Camden's blk. f. ELLICE at home in the going, opened up a commanding lead in the first half mile and, never seriously threatened, won eased up. NED O., away slowly, worked way up gradually, closed a gap and outfinished TANNERY in the final sixteenth. TANNERY followed in closest pursuit of ELLICE to stretch, was unable to gain on the leader and then tired. ROYAL PANOPLY was never a serious contender. PROSE AND POETRY began dropping back after the first half mile. RICHARD M'DONNELL quit.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:19. Off at 5:23½. Winner, L. M. Severson's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OTILLA $8.20, $4.30, $2.76; RAY RUDDY, $4.72, $3.20; SEMPER FELIX, $3.02.

OTTILLA was kept forward in pursuit of the leaders under restraint for the first mile and, having most in reserve on reaching the stretch, went into the lead reaching the last eighth and drew out in the end. RAY RUDDY worked his way up steadily after being far out of it in early stages and, coming fast in final furlong, was up to outfinish SEMPER FELIX. SEMPER FELIX followed MASTER ACE closely, moved into the lead rounding the stretch turn, but faltered when OTILLA challenged.

Guyon Leads Eastern High Faculty to 15-12 Triumph

The above remark, made yesterday at the Eastern High School Stadium, was amply justified as almost 1,100 spectators saw that individual slug and pitch a team of Eastern High School teachers to a 15-12 victory over a faculty nine from Tech.

Having coached the Lincoln Park School to three successive championship cups, Guyon admitted that he liked another loving cup, fully three inches high, waiting on a nearby table yesterday for the winner of the game. Whereupon, the hefty director of athletics personally saw to it that his team would win the first leg on the miniature piece of silver, which, it is said, must be won three times for permanent possession.

Not only did Guyon hold Tech helpless from the mound, until his team had assumed a safe lead, but Guyon was one of the main dynamos in Eastern's scoring machine. After connecting safely the first three times at bat for clean singles—singles only because the chief could not navigate beyond first base before the ball was brought in from the far open spaces—he made sure of a home run and a tremendous ovation in the fifth inning when he socked the ball far over the right-field fence for the only extra base hit of the game, permitting him to jog slowly around the base lines, undisturbed by any possible relay of the ball.

Like coach, like team, is an adage that was proven yesterday, not only in Guyon's case. Mal Edwards, Tech's mentor, had three chances in the field and made as many errors to lead the fielders in errors.

League Seeks Fields For Games Tomorrow

Managers of sandlot teams having permits for Monument and Ellipse diamonds that are not being used tomorrow are requested to communicate with the secretary of the Capital City League at National 4205, branch 36, today after 3 p. m.

Boys and Juniors to Open District Net Tourney Today

THE largest entry list in recent years is expected when play begins today in the District of Columbia boys and juniors tennis championships on the Rock Creek courts. When entries close at 9:30 o'clock, Robert E. Newby, chairman, predicts that twoscore or more contestants will be entered in each division. This would be practically double the entry list of last year.

Not since 1925 has so much interest been shown by the young netmen of the District, Newby stated last night. No entries have been accepted, he stated, but interest has been manifest in general among the youthful tennis players. Entries will be received between 9 and 9:30 o'clock at the Rock Creek courts. All entries must be in a half hour before play gets under way at 10 o'clock.

Draw to Be Made After Closing.

The draw for both divisions will be made immediately after the closing of entries. Just how many entrants will have to play first-round matches will not be determined until the entry list is closed.

Should rain prevent the start of play today, the first matches will be scheduled at 4 o'clock Monday on the Rock Creek courts, Newby stated. Matches will be scheduled next week after 4 p. m.

Winners and runners-up in the local tournaments will be sent to the Middle Atlantic championships at Richmond.

BUCK ROGERS, 2430 A. D. — Tallan Can't Lie — By Phil Nowlan and Dick Calkins

As Lt. Burk and Wilma neared the southern edge of the equatorial desert of Mars in the captured sand ship a fleet of similiar craft threatened to cut them off.
The tiger fleet swung closer to them.
They think we are tiger men.
Maybe we could disguise ourselves. Maybe there are some uniforms aboard.
Wilma found some uniforms, and Burk locked the steering controls.
We might pass as goldies in the tiger army if they came aboard. But throw away your rocket pistol and helmet.
We'll fool 'em yet!
Meanwhile, King Innaldo proved obstinate, and Tallan's attitude didn't help. The king offered to aid the search for Burk and Wilma on one condition only.
Oh please, Tallan! Please!
But I can't say I don't love you, when I do!
Yeah!? And so Wilma must die or something.

ELLA CINDERS—The End of the Chase — By Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb

Ella hopped into a passing limousine to escape the police who were closing in on her and Giggles. She is confiding in the elderly gentleman who owns the car.
The grandfather of this baby is old man Cole, the multimillionaire! He has offered $10,000 reward for the recovery of Giggles, so he can take her away from the mother! I wish you knew the mother! She's a sweet, wonderful girl!
Go on! I'm listening!
I've been hiding the baby all these weeks with the police one jump behind and my heart two jumps ahead! I was asleep when Giggles was left in a basket beside me, but I've had to stay awake ever since or get caught!
And you say that the mother would rather have her baby than all the millions Cole can offer her to give it up?
I'm sure of it! You've been so sympathetic and kind! It's too bad Mr. Cole can't be like you! You have the kind of a face that baby hands love to touch!
I'm afraid that Cole has been harsh and unkind, but he's going to change! He didn't understand until you touched his heart! Give me the baby!
I'm Cole—the wicked grandfather you've been hiding from!

Film Version of Hamlet
Part Twelve
On the same night the performance was staged by Hamlet in order to verify the ghost's dreadful revelations and he gave the players their final instructions
Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue: But if you mouth it, as many of your players do, I had as lief the town-crier spoke my lines!
Hamlet then confided his plan to Horatio
There is a play to-night before the king; one scene of it comes near the circumstance which I have told thee of my father's death: I prithee, when thou seest that act a-foot, even with the very comment of thy soul observe my uncle:
If his occulted guilt do not itself unkennel in one speech, it is a damned ghost that we have seen—
Give him heedful note; for I mine eyes will rivet to his face, and after we will both our judgements join in censure of his seeming!!
At last the play started before a crowded hall, Hamlet having placed himself near the king
When the player king fell asleep in the garden, the real king became uneasy and turned to Hamlet
What do you call the play?

SCORE OF STOCKS TOUCH 1930 LOWS

Index of 90 Issues Loses 3 Points in Generally Quiet Market.

UTILITIES HEAD DECLINE

New York, June 6 (A.P.).—Selling pressure carried stocks almost steadily downward today. So successfully did the bear faction maintain its control of the price movement that final quotations were generally the lowest of the day and more than a score of issues went to new minimums for the year.

The composite price index on 90 leading stocks was carried down 3.1 points to 186.8, or 5.4 points above the bottom reached on the May decline. Liquidation by professional shorts and by discouraged holders who had been in the long side made substantial inroads into the quotations of prominent shares, notably utilities and industrials, volume of trading, nevertheless, remained small and sales totaled only 2,514,860 shares.

Most of the day's news played into the hands of those working for lower prices. Bar silver was unable to continue Thursday's rally and slumped again, although not so sharply as earlier in the week. There were reports of a prospective slump in automobile production and of a decline last month in amusement company earnings. Sales of a leading chain store system for May showed a drop of nearly 11½ per cent. Cotton broke 60 cents to $1 a bale. Wheat was firm, but corn eased.

Business Reports Negative.

The familiar negative reports came from the weekly trade reviews. Dun's said that the "chief advance continues to be in forces making for eventual revival rather than in actual present gain, and the approach of summer apparently precludes any early essential change from this condition." Bradstreet's found some evidence that the slackening noted late last month in iron and steel, automobiles, lumber and cotton was being carried over into June. The summary also said that the downward movement of commodity prices last month apparently was not checked.

The money markets were unchanged. The official rate of 3 per cent on call loans is regarded as more or less formal, for most of the business is being done at the outside level of 2½ per cent. Banks are said to have made large withdrawals of funds, while corporations are switching surplus funds to short term bonds, particularly U. S. Government securities.

The increase in brokers' loans was brought forward by the bears as an unfavorable sign. It was pointed out that the rise, during a stagnant stock market, was probably due to borrowings for the purpose of carrying new bond issues, indicating the slowness of the demand for security offerings.

U. S. Steel Declines.

With such leading shares as U. S. Steel, General Electric, American Can, American Telephone, General Motors, Westinghouse and Consolidated Gas manifesting little resistance to the declining tendencies, selling elsewhere in the list was accelerated and the losses of 1 to 4 points in the stocks mentioned were exceeded by a large number of more volatile issues. Air Reduction, Auburn Auto, J. I. Case, Vanadium and American Tobacco tumbled 5 to 8.

Detroit Edison, Electric Power & Light, North American, McKeesport Tin Plate, Johns-Manville, New York Central, Lackawanna, Paramount, Loew's, Warner Brothers and Public Service of New Jersey sold off 2 to 3. Columbian Graphophone was heavily sold and broke 4 points to a new low.

Others selling down to new 1930 low levels included St. Paul preferred, Erie, Lima Locomotive, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Rolling Mill, Simmons, American Radiator, Coty, Prairie Pipe, International Mercantile Marine, and Firestone preferred.

There was little activity in the foreign exchanges. British and French currencies rose slightly in common with most of the other European rates.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 6 (A.P.).—Moisture scarcity throughout the North American spring wheat belt, together with serious crop damage complaints from Canada, gave wheat values a general upward trend today. Toward the last, also, the wheat market received further impulse to advance from cables telling of excessive rains in Europe. There were crop damage reports, too, from North Africa, including assertions that the central and southern districts of Tunis the yield of hard wheat this season would be reduced nearly to zero.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, ½@¾c higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅛@⅛c down, after a ¼c decline to sin equal to rain and provisions from 2c setback to a rise of 20c.

At first, wheat values sagged on selling that appeared to come largely from foreigners. However, with almost complete absence of rain reported in Canada and domestic spring wheat States, the market rallied quickly and throughout the remainder of the day had an upward slant. Meanwhile, dispatches from Alberta attracted notice, as a large area there was reported as promising at best but half a crop with rain needed within the next week, whereas without such rains the crop is regarded as almost a failure.

Although weather and crop conditions in the North American spring wheat belt received the lion's share of wheat traders' attention today, uneasiness was also shown as to harvest developments in domestic winter wheat sections of the Southwest. Talk was current that as the harvesting operations make progress northward there is likely to be considerable disappointment as to yields. Some Oklahoma reports, though, were at hand indicating a crop of 40,000,000 to 45,000,000 bushels for that State and it was added the wheat would be of the best quality in several years. Late indications today were that North American export demand was somewhat improved.

Increased offerings of corn from rural sources led to lower prices in the corn market. Beneficial rains over part of the corn belt were reported. Oats averaged lower with corn.

Provisions advanced on account of buying of December lard and because of good cash demand for meats.

TWO LIBERTY BONDS REACH 1930 PEAKS

Domestic Group Maintains Firm Structure in Listless Session.

FOREIGN LIST ADVANCES

New York, June 6 (A.P.).—Two liberty bond issues went into new high ground for the year on today's trading in the listed bond market. Their rise was about the only feature of the day in which the trading was brisk only at the start and close.

Liberty 4¼s, of both the first and fourth issues, erased the former 1930 high mark for the year, and the continuance of the good demand for United States Governments enhanced the price of nearly all of them.

The domestic section maintained the firm trend, but suffered from dullness most of the day, and the activity of the market as a whole was not what might be expected in view of the credit situation. The spread between the current rates of money and the yields of legal issues brought increased trading in some railroad bonds, but price enhancement was small. Stock privilege issues were jumpy, with the trend downward.

New reports concerning the long awaited German annuity issue, the first piece of financing under the Young plan, caused no commotion in the foreign bond section. Trading was in a wide list of issues, with most bonds closing higher.

The State Department at Washington announced formally that it had no objection to the American flotation of German bonds, which is expected to be about one-third of the $300,000,000 issue. The bankers committee of the Bank of International Settlements is expected to call a plenary session of directors June 10 which was taken in New York financial circles to mean that all countries concerned with the issue have agreed in principle. The latest guess on the date of issuance now is June 12. The price of the bonds remains a subject of much speculation.

The International-Manhattan Co., Inc., head of the syndicate which offered $5,360,000 5 per cent sinking fund bonds of 1980, of the Kingdom of Norway Municipalities Bank, announced today that the entire issue has been oversubscribed.

STUDENTS WILL PAY FOR INSTITUTE WORK

FLEMING MAKES SPEECH

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Asheville, N. C., June 6.—On account of greater operating cost of classes in Washington chapter, American Institute of Banking, due to increased enrollment and addition of more subjects to its standard courses, the District of Columbia Bankers Association at today's session of its annual convention, approved the recommendations of A. E. Henze, chapter past president, that tuition be charged for all courses in its curriculum.

Rates recommended were $5 for all first year courses, $10 for other prestandard and standard courses, price of advanced courses remaining at $15 as heretofore. Adoption of the plan will permit employment of three additional instructors to the present staff of ten and division of classes into smaller groups. Under present conditions, there are in some instances as many as 109 students in a class.

Study of a plan for expediting clearing of checks on points near Washington will be undertaken by the association with the Washington Clearing House Association. Necessity for such a plan was urged following presentation of an able essay on this subject by John C. Franzoni, young Federal American National Bank clerk. During the discussion it was revealed that in one case eleven days elapsed before a Washington bank received information from a bank near that city regarding non-payment items.

Franzoni Reads Essay.

The method suggested by Mr. Franzoni, a winner in the association's essay contest on this subject, provides a messenger and clearing point system, reducing time for complete collection from four to two days, although the actual receipt of credit from the Federal Reserve Bank on items would be increased from two to three days.

Need for the banker to at all times keep his institution liquid to meet unexpected demands arising from causes beyond his control, is considered by President Robert V. Fleming, Riggs National Bank, as the outstanding of numerous lessons to be learned from the stock market panic of 1929.

Discussing the question of liquidity, Mr. Fleming, in an excellent address, stressed the desirability of every bank building a proper secondary reserve, suggesting Government bonds, commercial paper eligible for rediscount, and a well-selected list of high-grade bonds of short maturity as components.

Alabama Banker Speaker.

Difficulties in development of proposed "trade areas" for branch banking were discussed by Oscar Wells, president of the First National Bank of Birmingham, Ala. Such areas, he said, are not easy to define and, if defined, it still would be difficult for banks situated at different locations and competing in common trade territory to adjust themselves to arbitrary fixation of imaginary lines. If overlapping were allowed this might give an artificial stimulus to competition between banking points to the detriment of sound banking practices.

Winners on a second subject of the association's essay contest also read their papers at the meeting. They were Miss Frances M. Pearce, Federal American National Bank; Louis E. Purnell, and Miss Catherine M. Krieg, Riggs National Bank. The subject was "My Job. My Duties. What are the requisite qualifications and how may I be of the greatest service to my bank in helping to increase earnings and reduce expenses?"

The long sports program of the convention has begun, President Fleming, of Riggs Bank, winning for a second time the I. A. "Pop" Fleming cup in the golf tournament, and Albert S. Gatley, executive vice president, Lincoln National Bank, the Edward B. McLean cup. In the top-spinning contest, Mr. Gatley's top spun 1 minute 23½ seconds. Greenville Gude won the horseshoe-pitching contest and James H. Lemon was second. Both are directors in the Washington Savings Bank.

Strawberry Movement Continues Rather Light

The movement of strawberries from the Eastern Shore region continues rather light, the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday. Truck movement to date total 232,251 crates, Virginia and Maryland have each shipped about 90,000 crates and Delaware 50,916. Truck movement to June 4 last season was 462,240 crates. Movement by rail this season totals 727 cars, of which Virginia furnished 249 cars, Maryland 334 and Delaware 144. Shipments to date this season are approximately one-half those of last year.

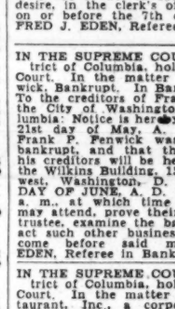
CLAIRVOYANTS



This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

CITY'S HEADS URGE CONGRESS TO PASS VAGRANT MEASURE

Bill Would Allow Capital Police to Jail at Will Suspected Criminals.

ACT WOULD SAFEGUARD PUBLIC, STATES REPORT

Shelby Declares Innocent Citizens Are Not to Be Annoyed Under Plan.

The District Commissioners yesterday asked Congress to give early and favorable action on the bill drafted by the Police Department which would enable them to arrest suspected criminals against whom they had no evidence and punish them as vagrants.

"The legislation proposed by this bill," the Commissioners said in a report to Senator Arthur Capper, chairman of the Senate District committee, "is believed to be necessary in order to properly safeguard the public from persons of the character described in the bill as vagrants. Existing laws on the subject are insufficient to accomplish this. The definitions of vagrancy as contained in the bill were prepared by the corporation counsel."

Police Conceived Plan.

The bill was introduced by Senator Capper at the request of the Police Department, where it had its inception. It had its beginning in a futile effort of the Police Department to send to jail several persons who had been arrested. The police had no specific complaint against these arrested persons and charged them with vagrancy. They proved they were not vagrants to the satisfaction of the court and were set free.

The police thereupon set about drafting a law which would permit them to convict as vagrants persons against whom they had no specific evidence of crime but whom they suspected of crime or who had been convicted of crime in the past. Vagrants under the police bill include all persons so deemed under common law—all persons "known to be burglars, pickpockets, thieves or confidence operators," unable to give the police a satisfactory account of themselves, persons found with things which might be employed in commission of crime, and, in short, all persons whom the police suspected but against whom they had no evidence except their failure to have regular employment or their possession of a past conviction of various offenses.

Blanket Authority Sought.

The proposed law is designed to give the Police Department blanket authority to arrest as vagrants almost any one whom they please and, police officials frankly admit, is designed to get convictions and jail sentences in court against persons whom they could not convict of crime unless such a law were on the statute books.

The measure has been pending for some time and has met with considerable opposition which was recognized by police officials in the report submitted to the commissioners several months ago by Maj. Pratt. That report was written by Inspector William S. Shelby, assistant superintendent of police in charge of the Detective Bureau, and brushed aside objections to the broad vagrancy law with the statement that the Police Department did not intend to annoy innocent citizens by means of the law because the police had enough persons of the opposite character to engage their attention.

15 PERSONS NAMED TO TRAFFIC COUNCIL

District Code Will Undergo Thorough Overhauling by Committee.

ENO TO BE CONSULTED

The District traffic code is to undergo a thorough overhauling at the hands of the new traffic committee and traffic advisory council named yesterday by the District Commissioners. The Commissioners selected fifteen persons to constitute the traffic advisory council. The traffic advisory committee members will be ex-officio members of the advisory council.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, coordinator and chief engineer of the District Engineer Department, is chairman of the traffic committee, and will guide the activities of the two newly created bodies—the work of which interlocks to such a degree that neither is predominant.

William Phelps Eno, the millionaire whose hobby is efficient traffic regulation, while not named on the advisory council, will be called on by Capt. Whitehurst for advice.

George W. Offutt has been invited to be chairman of the traffic advisory council. Others asked to be members of the council are Selden M. Ely, Rudolph Spaeth, Theodore P. Noyes, A. F. E. Scheer, W. H. Lanham, E. D. Merrill, J. H. Hanna, Harry M. Bedell, C. H. Frame, Norman W. Baxter, Lowell Mellett, Dan O'Connell, Capt. R. C. Montgomery, C. W. Eliott 2d.

A meeting will be called of the two groups just as soon as appointees of the council accept the posts. The work of the combined organization will be divided among various subcommittees. The revision of the traffic regulation system is expected to consume two or three months.

Cleaves, the Rev. J. L. S. Holloman, Mrs. Susie Carr, Mrs. Sadie Marze, Miss H. L. Collier and Edward Brooke.

Alfred T. Bell was master of ceremonies assisted by Miss L. A. Duckett and Miss M. B. Wade. A children's chorus furnished a special musical program.

WASHINGTON JUNIOR ALLIANCE LAUNCHED

DISTRICT VOTE ONE AIM

Organization of the Junior Citizens Alliance of Washington was launched last night at a meeting in the assembly rooms of the Washington Board of Trade. George J. Adams was named provisional president and will serve until an election is held early next year. Many charter members were enrolled.

The alliance will work for promotion of national representation for the District of Columbia, and will also develop social activities for the members. Proposed activities include formation of a drama unit, a dance orchestra, a debating team and the holding of an essay contest. Prizes amounting to $300 will be given to winners of the essay contest. The prizes will be divided into one of $100, ten of $10 each and four special prizes of $25 each. The subjects will deal with national representation for the District, and only members will be eligible to compete.

The alliance is also designed to act as a body for young men and women who have no other affiliations. The new body is sponsored by the Citizens Joint Committee on National Representation and it has been indorsed by the Washington Board of Trade and the Chamber of Commerce. At the meeting last night talks were made by Jesse C. Suter and Judge Mary O'Toole. The next meeting has been set tentatively for next fall. The essay contest will close at midnight November 26.

Chairmen Named On Radio Audition

Teachers and Musical Groups to Be Informed of Contest.

Dr. A. W. Harned, chairman of the committee sponsoring the participation of young District singers in the Atwater Kent's fourth national radio audition, has named chairmen of two subcommittees to undertake an intensive canvass in the interest of the contest.

Mrs. William Lee Corbin, president of the Women's City Club, will acquaint the various women's organizations with the audition, while Mrs. Katherine Hertzberg will conduct the publicity among Jewish organizations interested in music.

All teachers of music in Washington have been invited to a meeting in the WRC studio, National Press Building, at 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning. A meeting of the full committee will be held in Perkins Hall, new Universalist National Memorial Church, at 8 o'clock Wednesday night.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was studying a bunch of booklets.

"What're you doing?" I asked.

"Taking a course in advertising?"

The flaring, flamboyant covers, cowboys and mountains, sea captains and ships shouted for recognition. 'Twas the art of lithography at its height.

"I'm looking for a good place to spend our vacation," she said, and went on with her reading.

Vacation. That's an idea.

"Have you any particular choice?" I asked, wondering if her mind was made up.

She flung the booklet aside "Anywhere," she said, languidly, "anywhere but here."

* * * * *

SO that was it. She wanted to get away from it all.

"Luella!"

"I mean it," she affirmed. "All cowboys are bowlegged——"

"How do you know? You've never seen a cowboy!"

* * * * *

COME to think of it, Luella is right. Not only that. Cowboys are what they'd call straddle-footed. They walk on their ankles.

"You could ride side-saddle," I suggested.

A faraway look came into her eyes. "When I was a girl, down on the farm, we all rode side-saddle," she said, and went on dreaming about it.

"Then you really would like to go to a dude ranch?"

"Perhaps you would," she said. "You're more of a dude than I am. Women aren't dudes, anyway——"

"Dudeens. You'd be a dudeen——"

"A dudeen?"

"Certainly! Didn't you ever hear of the poem,

"When you were a dudeen,
And I was a dude,
On the Triple-Bar-Y-X,
We roved the range
With the wild and strange,
And almost broke our necks——"

* * * * *

SHE stopped me short: "You call that a poem?"

"It's one of those cowboy jingles——"

Immediately she gathered up her literature. "If that's what they call poetry out West," she said, "we'd better go to Europe."

Not to be guilty of slander, I confessed: "That was my composition," I told her, "a parody on 'Evolution.'"

Luella came over, put her arms around me, looked anxiously into my eyes: "You poor boy," she said, soothing my brow. "I think the heat's got you! Perhaps it would be a good idea to get you out on a dude ranch. Anywhere, away from this——" She pointed to the bookshelves and what we jokingly refer to as literature. So I guess it's a dude ranch for mine.

FEDERAL OFFICIAL ACCUSED OF EFFORT TO AID VIVISECTION

Bureau of Chemistry Is Said to Seek Experiments on Cats and Dogs.

PLAN TO COVER WORK DRAWN BY SOLICITOR

Women at Hearing Applaud Attacks Upon Use of Animal Subjects.

A copy of a letter purporting to show that an official of the Department of Agriculture proposed entering an agreement with a local veterinarian for experiments on cats and dogs was submitted at a hearing before the Senate District committee yesterday. The hearing was on the antivivisection bill, a measure to prohibit experiments on dogs in the District of Columbia.

The letter was turned over to Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, the chairman, and Senator John Robsion (Republican), Kentucky, by Thomas W. Pond, president of the Animal Protective Bureau of Maryland.

Mr. Pond said the note was written by Elton L. Marshall, solicitor of the Department of Agriculture, and that it informed A. G. Rice, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils of that department, there was a way in which he might enter into an agreement with Dr. D. E. Buckingham, a veterinarian at 2115 Fourteenth street northwest.

Plan Called Illegal.

The proposed agreement, Mr. Pond told the committee, was clearly illegal, and would bring suffering to the animals used in the experiments.

Chief Rice, according to the letter, had asked Solicitor Marshall whether it would be legal to hire Buckingham to conduct experiments to determine the effects of rotenone and various other constituents, including fish-poisoning plants, on dogs, cats and other mammals.

Dr. Buckinham, the letter stated, would receive $500 and would "assume all risk for injury or death resulting from the tests to be made."

Solicitor Marshall advised Chief Rice that, while Dr. Buckingham could not be paid for personal services, he could be paid on the basis of a hiring of the animals to the department.

The hearing was attended by a score or more women, who applauded when the witnesses denounced those who practice vivisection. The witnesses were introduced by Mabel E. Orgelman, legislative secretary of the International Conference for the Investigation of Vivisection.

Denies Any Progress.

Dr. William H. Hay, of Buffalo, told the committee the experiments that are now being made on dogs are simply repetitions of experiments that were made 25 years or more ago. The experiments made in that period brought negligible results, he asserted.

"The dog," he said, "has served his time and should be discharged."

Chairman Capper announced that the hearing would be continued on a day to be announced.

The committee also postponed action on the bill to regulate the sale and carrying of pistols, and, judging from the criticism leveled at the measure, it will continue to postpone action on the measure.

Plans Are Formulated For Children's Clinic

Further plans for the organization of a child clinic for the benefit of District public school children were formulated by the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, sponsors of the movement at a meeting yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Loren B. T. Johnson was appointed chairman of a committee which will seek to secure a site for the proposed clinic and employ a director. Four new board members were named: Dr. Abram Simon, Dr. R. Rush Rankin, Mrs. Anne Archibald and Dr. M. W. Johnson. Dr. William A. White presided at the meeting which was held in the headquarters of the Institute of Visiting Nurses Society in the Star Building.

Printers' Union Seeks To Enjoin Capital Firm

The Allied Printing Trades Council, of 423 G street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking to enjoin C. J. Brown, trading as Brown's Printery, at 626 F street northwest, from using a trade-mark which signified that the defendant firm does work under union specifications and conditions.

The council charges that prior to June 19, 1927, it supplied the defendant with copies of its emblem. It also asserts that Brown at present is conducting a nonunion shop but is using the union insignia. In addition to asking for an injunction, the council wants an accounting and damages. Attorney John N. Breen appears for the council.

The Post Tomorrow Offers

Does bridge-playing make or break the happy home? Murder is just an anticlimax, says H. T. Webster, the cartoonist. The other side of the question is taken by Josephine Culbertson, regarded by many as America's greatest woman bridge player.

Although she is the wife of one of the Nation's foremost citizens and the mother-in-law of the world's most famous airman, Mrs. Dwight Morrow has nevertheless succeeded in remaining almost unknown to a personality-crazed public. A sketch on Mrs. Morrow will appear in The Post tomorrow.

There still is a thrill of shooting Niagara Falls in a barrel. Some of the more hearty are now planning the stunt which is still good for a few paragraphs in the paper. There is a story about it in The Post tomorrow.

Stephen Leacock, famous humorist, is funny indeed in his account of a visit to the dentist. The story is entitled "The Perfect Optimist," and it appears in the magazine section.

NEW ELEMENTARY SCHOOL PRESENTED EDUCATION BOARD

Col. Ladue Speaks, Asserting Education Is Bulwark of U. S. Civilization.

KRAMER TELLS STORY OF W. B. POWELL'S LIFE

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle Accepts Building for City Officials.

"In these days when dangerous and subversive doctrines, designed to deceive the young and unwary, are being whispered in dark places the strong, sane influence of the American public school is one of the strongest bulwarks of American civilization." With these words Col. W. B. Ladue, Engineer Commissioner, last night presented the new W. B. Powell Elementary School to the Board of Education.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle accepted for the board at the ceremony in the building at Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest, and in turn presented the building to the new principal, Mrs. L. R. Duganne. Col. Ladue also outlined the history of the new building and spoke of the origin of the five-year building program. The cost of the Powell School, he said, was $196,825.

Kramer Tells of Powell.

Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools, made the address of the evening, speaking on the man for whom the institution was named. W. B. Powell was superintendent of Washington schools from 1885 to 1900. He was the father of the manual training system in the city. Eastern, Western and Business High Schools owe their existence to him. He died in 1904 at his home in New York State.

Mrs. Doyle, in addition to complimenting Municipal Architect Harris on the appearance of the building, paid a tribute to Mr. Powell.

Orchestra to Feature.

Mrs. William G. Ilich, president of the Powell Parent-Teacher Association, spoke to the gathering, and music for the occasion was furnished by the Americanization School Orchestra, under L. E. Manly.

On the stage throughout the dedication ceremonies sat an aged colored man, James Monroe, there to pay his tribute to W. B. Powell, for whom he was personal coachman for twenty years. Monroe is now a messenger for the Board of Education.

Engineer at Hospital Scalded May Not Live

Charles Stone, 46 years old, of Hyattstown, Md., engineer employed at Georgetown Hospital, was so severely scalded by steam last night that he may die.

Stone was playing live steam through a hose in the institution when he was stricken with epilepsy and collapsed, the steam scalding his entire body.

Note of Two Words Held Threat by Police

Two Russian words, interpreted as "I will set you afire," were scrawled on a scrap of paper received in an envelope yesterday and turned over to Eighth Precinct police by Jake Schmidt, 45 years old, proprietor of a grocery store at 400 W street northwest.

Schmidt expressed no concern over the message. He believed it the work of a practical joker, although police took his store under surveillance.

Plans to Attract Conventions Laid

Clearing House Will Urge Meetings During 1932 Bicentennial.

A "clearing house" to work with local and national business organizations in an effort to book as many conventions as possible for Washington during the bicentennial George Washington celebration in 1932 will be established, according to announcement yesterday.

The plan was agreed upon at a conference of representatives of the Board of Trade, the convention bureau of local hotels and other agencies, together with members of the Bicentennial Commission.

Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, professor of history at Harvard University, has been here this week conferring with members of the commission regarding historical publications the Government will issue during the ten-month anniversary. He has charge of a 25-volume edition of the writings and documents of the first President, which will also be published for the first time in 1932.

SOROPTIMIST DELEGATES SAIL

REVALUATION ASKED IN CAR FARE BATTLE

HAM'S WORDS QUOTED

Revaluation of the street car companies was asked of the court in a joint brief filed with Justice Jennings Bailey in the District Supreme Court yesterday on behalf of the Public Utilities Commission and the public.

Signed by William W. Bride, Vernon E. West, as counsel for the commission, and Richmond B. Keech as people's counsel, the brief quoted William F. Ham, president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. in support of the contention of Mr. Keech that the court must order a revaluation of the street car properties before it may justifiably grant the companies's plea for an order for 10 cents cash fares with four token for 30 cents.

Ham's Words Are Given.

"A revaluation would be helpful to the commission in determining these cases," Mr. Ham said in the course of the hearings before the Public Utilities Commission, it was pointed out in the brief.

The court can not, in fairness to the public, order higher fares, in view of the utilities commission decision, without first having a new valuation of the street car properties, it was contended in the brief.

The 10 cents cash fare, it was said, would not bring the companies the increase in revenue they estimated because there would be an accelerated decrease in the number of passengers which would more than offset the increase in revenue due to the higher fare.

No Basis in Advance, Claim.

Inasmuch as the companies have failed to present to the utilities commission or to the court a sound showing of value, the brief said, the court has no basis upon which it may decide the companies are entitled to a higher fare or to a higher rate of return than they are now earning. The going concern value of the companies is constantly decreasing because of the constantly lessening demand for their service, due, in part, to the increased use of the automobile, it was contended.

The court, the brief said, should order a revaluation. The case should be remanded to the utilities commission with orders to revalue the properties or should be sent for a revaluation to a master in chancery or to the auditor.

MERCURY FALTERS AFTER TORRID WEEK

Thermometer Falls to 88, but Humidity Increases 60 Per Cent.

SHOWERS LOOM TODAY

After soaring up around blood levels or higher all week, the mercury slumped yesterday to a mere 88-degree peak. But at the same time the humidity increased to 60 per cent, and as the thermometer continued to decline, the humidity advanced consistently.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning, the temperature was down to 71, which was about 10 degrees higher than it has been at the same time on other mornings this week. But this relative increase was not maintained, for when it reached 88 at noon, the mercury began to retreat, and at 6 o'clock it was down to 80. On the other hand, by that time the humidity recording was 70.

With all that moisture in the atmosphere, as attested by the limp condition of once-starched collars, there was only one course open to the Weather Bureau: to predict showers today. Following that prescribed course, the Bureau reports that there will be showers today.

There was a shower yesterday afternoon, for that matter, and again in the evening there were more, but they really had no professional standings as showers; their precipitation was insufficient to cause even a flicker in those wavy lines that the Weather Bureau translates into rainfall records.

While yesterday's rainfall therefore goes down in history as only a "trace," something more substantial in the way of precipitation is promised for today, with the corollary that it should be and feel cooler after the storm.

Winning Cadet Company Is Given Silver Plaque

Company H, of Western High School, winner of the high school cadet competitive drill held last Tuesday at Griffith Stadium, was presented yesterday with a silver plaque by the District of Columbia chapter of the Military Order of the World War.

The presentation was made to Capt. Elbridge Church, commander of Company H, by Capt. George F. Unmacht, commander of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Military Order of the World War. Capt. Church was also presented by Charles W. Darr, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, with a replica of the Allison Naylor gold medal. The original medal is retained by Western High School until a victory is scored by a cadet company from another school. The same ruling applies to the plaque.

Hospital Treats Youth Felled by Automobile

Thomas Rogers, 17 years old, of 529½ Ninth street northeast, while attempting to cross the street at Ninth and F northeast, late yesterday afternoon, was struck by a car operated by Lilio McKenny of Lamont street near Sixth northwest.

He suffered the loss of two teeth and severe lacerations about the mouth. After receiving treatment at Casualty Hospital he returned home.

MAN FATALLY HURT BY TAXICAB WHILE CROSSING STREET

DRIVER SWERVES CAR, BUT FENDER HITS HIM

Skull Fracture Proves Fatal in Garfield Hospital Few Hours Later.

His view blinded by an umbrella which he was holding to protect him from the rain, Walter W. Scott, 62 years old, an employe of the congressional joint committee on printing, was fatally injured by a taxicab last night while on his way to meet his wife.

Mr. Scott, who was employed for the last ten years as inspector of paper and material at the Government Printing Office, was crossing in front of 2628 Fourteenth street northwest, when he was run down by a cab operated by Otis Busch, 21 years old, of 2920 Ontario road northwest.

Busch told the police that he was driving south in Fourteenth street at 6:15 p. m. and saw Mr. Scott in front of him and swerved his machine to avoid knocking him down. The driver said that as the car swerved the rear fender brushed Mr. Scott, knocking him to the pavement.

Mr. Scott was rushed to Garfield Hospital, where he died an hour later from a skull fracture and bruises on the body.

Busch reported the accident to the Tenth Precinct Police Station. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt ordered the release of the taxi driver, to appear at an inquest which is scheduled for 10:30 o'clock Monday morning.

Busch was released in the custody of Leo Grill, counsel of the Bell Cab Co. The brakes of the taxicab will be examined by police auto mechanics today.

Mr. Scott, who lived at 1400 Fairmont street northwest, was born in Dover, N. H. He leaves, besides his wife, a son and two grandchildren.

Gallagher Called Mentally Unsound

U. S. Attorney Enters Nolle Prosse for Man Who Flouted Census.

On receipt of a letter from Dr. Edgar Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital, to the effect that Patrick Gallagher, of M street near Fourteenth street northwest, was of unsound mind and not responsible for his actions, Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray yesterday nolle prossed charges of "willfully neglecting to answer census inquiries" against him.

Gallagher is said to have greeted enumerators with evasive answers such as "ask Vice President Curtis about it" when approached for information of himself and his family.

He was arrested on complaint of J. Sterling Moran, superintendent of the census for the District, who had endeavored, unsuccessfully, to get the desired information. On his arraignment in Police Court Gallagher satisfied Presiding Judge Gus A. Schuldt by his actions that he was unfit for trial and was sent to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation. It is understood he will have a sanity hearing later in the District Supreme Court.

G. W. U. Clerical Force Granted Five-Day Week

Students and professors at George Washington University were looking with envy at stenographers, secretaries and clerks in the administration office yesterday, following the announcement by Dr. Cloyd Marvin, president, that the latter would go on a five-day week.

The reduction in working hours was ordered, Dr. Marvin said, "to allow more time for the pursuit of the avocational life and the development of family life." Classes will still be held six days a week.

Woman Seeking Work, Four Days Without Food

Suffering from hunger, Mrs. Emma Brown, 40 years old, of Baltimore, Md., was picked up at Fourth and H streets northwest and sent to Gallinger Hospital yesterday. She told police of the Sixth Precinct that she had come here four days ago to look for work. She had had nothing to eat in that time.

Mrs. Brown is the second person to be picked up in two days suffering from hunger. Joseph R. Morris was sent to Casualty Hospital Thursday. He said that he came to Washington from Chester, S. C., to look for work, and had been unsuccessful in the search. He left the hospital yesterday with no job in sight.

Fatal Street Car Crash Held Accident by Jury

A verdict of accidental death was rendered yesterday by a coroner's jury in the case of Edward J. Handley, 85 years old, of the 4500 block of Georgia avenue. Handley died Wednesday morning at Gallinger Hospital as the result of an accident on May 21.

Thomas G. Hayden, motorman of the street car which struck Handley, failed to appear at the first inquest, which was scheduled for Wednesday afternoon. A warrant charging him with manslaughter was served on him at his home in Rock Point, Md. It was said that the accident preyed on his mind so much that he gave up his job, and could not be notified to appear on Wednesday.
